TRAGEDY: The scene

Lad found dying: 2 arrested

TWO people have been arrested and a murder investigation launched after a teenager was found dying in the street.

The victim, thought to be 17, suffered serious injuries and died a short time later, police said.

A 19-year-old man and a woman aged 20 were later held on suspicion of murder. One is in custody and the other was receiving hospital treatment for a wound.

Police said the 17-year-old was found on a residential road in Heywood, Rochdale, in the early hours yesterday. Another man had asked for help at a nearby property.

Residents reported that the teenager had been stabbed.

Forensic officers continued to search the street for clues as uniformed officers called house-to-house.

Detective Chief Inspector Gina Brennan said: "Our inquiries are very much ongoing and anyone with information should contact us."

Race rally for Chris

A PROTEST against racism and police brutality was held outside the headquarters of the Metropolitan Police yesterday.

It followed the fatal shooting of 24-year-old unarmed black man Chris Kaba by a Met officer earlier this month.

Members of Mr Kaba's family, who have accused the force of racism, joined protesters and politicians in central London.

Former Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn spoke at the gathering.

It was part of a National Day of Action organised by the Justice For Chris Kaba campaign.

MORTGAGES SET TO SOAR

Interest rate rise as £ slumps

MILLIONS face mortgage hikes of more than £700 as interest rates rise in the coming weeks.

The pound has fallen again amid fears the UK economy is already in a recession.

This could force the Bank of England to make one of the largest rises in history.

Rates are expected to shoot up by as much as 0.75% in the next month, ahead of new Chancellor Kwasi Kwarteng's planned Budget statement.

Stephen Millard, deputy director of forecasting at the National

by SIAN HEWITT

sunday@dailystar.co.uk

Institute of Economic and Social Research, said: "A change of 0.75% in a base rate in one go is incredibly rare, and this is certainly possible."

"The situation with sterling dropping is a worry."

"If sterling falls, the price of anything we import, including energy, goes up."

"This is likely to mean inflation rises, which could mean they will have to put rates up more. If your mortgage goes up to 2.75% that is a hefty increase when you have a cost-of-living crisis to contend with."

The additional slump in retail sales at the end of summer triggered widespread selling of the pound on international money markets, taking it to a 37-year low against the dollar.

An announcement on the UK interest rate is expected to be made on Thursday.

EX-GOALKEEPER: James

Lion Dave: Save of my career

FORMER England goalie David James has told how a stranger he wrongly thought was a psychologist revived his career.

The 52-year-old said: "I couldn't understand why I wasn't playing well.

"The club doctor got me in touch with what I thought was a sports psychologist. He came round the house and we sat in the kitchen for two hours.

"I said, 'I'm having a bit of a problem with crosses'.

"He goes, 'When was the last time you practised crosses?' and I'm like, 'Yeah, erm, we haven't really done much for a while'. He went, 'Maybe you need to do some more practice'.

"So I addressed that situation. When he walked out it was like the weight of the world had been taken off my shoulders.

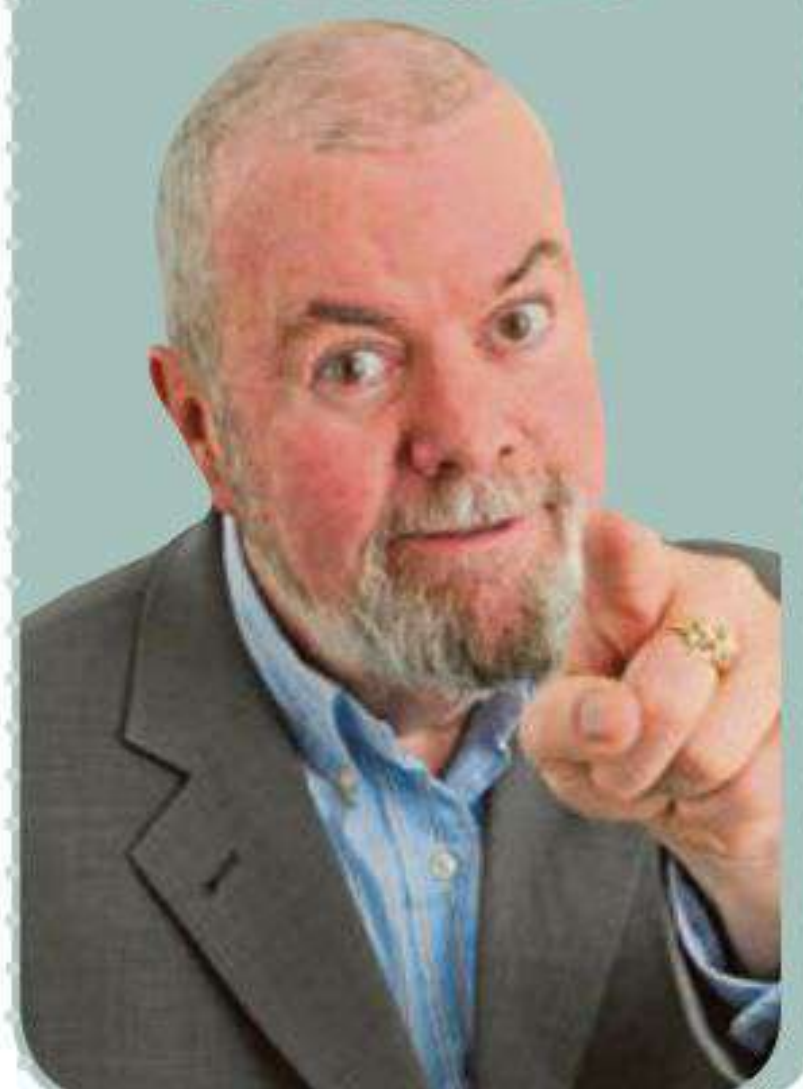

"In work the next day I've seen the doc and gone, 'That sports psychologist - amazing'. And he goes, 'It's not a sport psychologist'.

"I don't know what he does - I never found out."

But the Three Lions hero said after the chat, his performances got better.

MoD Danny: African tribe are Reds fans

by DAVID O'DORNAN
sunday@dailystar.co.uk

MATCH Of The Day pundit Danny Murphy was recognised by a remote tribe in Africa - who were fans of his old club Liverpool.

The ex-England ace said they pointed a spear at him and praised him for scoring a free-kick against fierce rivals Manchester United.

Danny, 45, explained: "I was in Kenya in the Masai Mara with the family - wonderful place, no phone service, out in the wilderness living in glorified tents.

"The guy looking after us asked was everything going well, and I said, 'Fantastic. Just one thing: you couldn't get me the football scores, could you?'"

Danny was led through the camp to a building "like a very large shed, with a bucket of beers and a telly the size of my iPad on a chest of drawers".

He said: "As I walked in ACE: Dan a hit with Maasai there were about 30 Maasai in there. Not dressed up for the kids, proper Maasai.

"They were all watching Liverpool playing Southampton.

"Almost the moment I walk in, one of them points at me with his spear and says, 'Danny Murphy. Free-kick. Liverpool. Manchester United'."

In new book Red On Red, Danny admitted he gets collared about his famous strike around the globe.

The former midfielder added: "Everywhere I've been on the planet, a Liverpool person, a Liverpool supporter or a football supporter will mention the Manchester United goals."

OZ CHICKENS OUT

OZZY Osbourne says his neighbours feared he was performing satanic rituals.

The Black Sabbath star, 73, placed chickens "full of car antifreeze" around the edge of his Beverly Hills estate, to kill coyotes that were attacking his dogs.

He said: "Three weeks later a cop knocks on the door, 'You've been leaving black magic effigies to put a curse on the neighbours'.

"I'd forgotten them - there was blue stuff oozing out of cursed chickens."

TOP TV: Colman in role

Olivia tribute as drama tops charts

THE Queen is at the top of the TV charts in the UK in the wake of her passing.

The Crown, which starred Olivia Colman as the late monarch, has rocketed to the top of the Netflix viewing chart.

And the number of UK viewers has increased by 800%.

The series, which portrays the reign of Her Majesty, saw viewing figures soar on the weekend following the Queen's death, Variety magazine said.

Olivia paid tribute to the monarch, saying: "She made a promise as a young woman and she absolutely kept it with such dignity."

"We're all incredibly impressed by what she did."

IN DEMAND: The dogs

Corgi pups sell for £8k

THE Queen's love of corgis has sparked a boom in demand for the pups, with dealers hiking prices to £8,000.

Searches for the furry friends increased by 10 times after the monarch's death.

Animal rehoming website Pets4Homes revealed the figure as it also emerged prices for the dogs had trebled from their usual £2,500.

The Queen was given her first corgi, Susan, for her 18th birthday in 1944. She went on to have more than 30.

Her last surviving pair, Sandy and Muick, will go to live with her son Andrew and his former wife Sarah Ferguson, the Duchess of York.

Princes in uniform for granny vigil

PRINCES William and Harry stand united in grief as they lead the Queen's grandchildren in a vigil.

The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Sussex wore military uniforms as they joined their six cousins for a moving vigil at Westminster Hall.

William was flanked by Zara Tindall and her brother Peter Phillips at the head of the coffin, while Harry stood at the foot with Princesses Beatrice and Eugenie. Lady Louise Windsor and her brother James, Viscount Severn, stood at the middle.

All held their heads bowed as the public filed past.

King Charles granted Harry, an Afghan war veteran who has 10 years' military experience, special permission to wear his military uniform during the 15-minute vigil yesterday.

Buckingham Palace said it was a "one-off" decision by his father as a mark of respect for the late monarch.

After a signal from one of the Queen's bodyguards, William led his brother and cousins away. It came as the line to see Her Majesty lying in state in London reached 10 miles and could even be seen from space.

The coffin will be placed in the State Hearse and carried to Windsor. 3.06pm: The hearse will arrive at Windsor, and join the procession. 3.53pm: The procession will halt outside St George's Chapel and the coffin will be carried inside.

4pm: The Committal service will begin. 7.30pm: A private burial service will be conducted by the Dean of Windsor.

The Queen will be laid to rest with her late husband, Prince Philip, alongside her father King George VI and the Queen Mother.

Charles and Wills say 'thank-queue'

by ISOBEL DICKINSON

KING Charles and Prince William delighted crowds queuing to see the Queen's coffin.

The new monarch and the Prince of Wales greeted worn-out well-wishers waiting to enter the Palace of Westminster.

Hundreds cheered, with many shouting "God Save the King".

As William shook hands with the crowds, he told them: "It means an awful lot you're here. She [the Queen] would never believe this."

He also said he became emotional seeing his gran's corgis, adding: "They have gone to a good home."

DAILY STAR Sunday Says

Time for E.T. truth

THE clever people may scoff, but most ordinary folk now believe in the existence of aliens.

That's what the surveys say.

Actually, quite a lot of those clever people do too.

The dribble of evidence from bodies such as the US air force and former Government officials must give even ardent sceptics pause for thought.

And lots of reputable, sensible types have revealed their encounters with extra-terrestrials.

Of course, there are daft conspiracy theorists and swivel-eyed loons who make a proper debate difficult.

But a majority reckons there must be something in it – and the authorities are not being straight with us.

Today we tell of a Hollywood film boss who was approached by a "Man in Black" to put a genuine alien event into his sci-fi TV series.

If it happened there, it's bound to have happened before.

The explanation is that the powers-that-be are preparing us for an official "revelation".

If so, we wish they'd get on with it.

We're big enough to take it and it will certainly make life more interesting.

Mind you, with the winter we have ahead of us, why would aliens fancy a spell down here on Earth?

E.T. will take one look and go home!

Be a first rate PM

IT feels as if normal life has been put on hold after the death of the Queen. And quite right too.

But later this week we will have a stone-cold reminder of the trouble our country is in.

Interest rates will almost certainly go up, possibly by a whacking 0.75%.

It will add hundreds of pounds a year to the average mortgage.

And we will be paying hundreds of pounds more for heat and power, even if our new PM puts a limit on energy bills (a move that will cost us billions).

It's now time for Liz Truss to show her talent and imagination.

It's hard to see how we get out of this mess. But that's precisely why she is paid the big bucks.

Go on, Liz. Surprise us.

It's bats!

TABLE-tennis balls revealed a ghost, says phantom hunter Yvette Fielding.

That must be the pings that go bump in the night...

WE CELEBRATE OUR TOP GRUB

HERE'S
tum thing to chew over...

British Food Fortnight is celebrating our national dishes and the best of our homegrown brands.

But how much do you know about our kitchen staples? JAMES MOORE has a bite-sized guide to a cupboard full of tasty treats...

GETTING THE BIRD'S:

Birmingham chemist Alfred Bird invented a custard powder using cornflour, rather than traditional eggs, because his wife Elizabeth was allergic to them.

They served it to visitors one day and they loved it so much that Bird decided to launch it as a product in 1837.

LUCKY DIP: Liquorice Allsorts were created by accident in 1899 when employee Charlie Thompson dropped different trays of sweets he was showing a customer.

They loved the idea of selling them mixed up and a new brand was born.

NUTTY NUGGET: KP Nuts got their name from a firm started by 19th Century confectioner Charles Kenyon, later called Kenyon Produce – hence KP.

New boss Simon Heller launched the country's first salted peanut snacks in 1953 at two pennies a packet.

BEEFING IT UP: Savvy Scots butcher John Lawson Johnston came up with a recipe for a meat extract, given the snappy name company boss Abram Lyle and taken from a Bible passage.

RELISHED RECIPE: Branstor Pickle was launched in the Staffordshire village of the same name in 1922, supposedly using a formula cooked up by a Mrs Graham and her daughters Evelyn and Ermentrude. It combined diced veg, a vinegary sauce and various spices.

AAH! BISTO: The gravy granules have been pepping up roast dinners since 1908 when, following a request from their wives, two employees of the Cerebos Salt Company devised a recipe for a powder that would make gravy less lumpy.

SAUCY DISCOVERY: Asked to create the taste of an exotic fish sauce in 1835, Worcester-based chemists John Wheeley Lea and William Henry Perrins thought their first effort was so vile they left it in a basement. Eighteen months on, it had matured into a delicious condiment.

POTTY START: Marmite was first made as a brewing by-product in Burton-on-Trent in 1902. It was named after a type of French cooking pot still shown on the label and was among rations for World War One troops.

SNACK OF IT: Frank Smith started selling his unsalted crisps to north London boozers from a garage behind a Cricklewood pub in 1920.

He soon had the brainwave of packaging them with a twist of salt to create the first salt 'n shake crisps.

'NO HURRY': Vladimir

Putin vows to fight to bitter end

UKRAINE'S recent counter-attack will not change Russia's plans, Vladimir Putin has vowed.

Ukrainian forces say they captured over 8,000sq km in six days in the north-eastern Kharkiv region.

In his first public comments about the situation, the Russian president said he was not in a hurry, and the offensive in Ukraine's Donbas region is on track.

Putin also claimed Russia had so far not deployed all of its forces.

Mad Vlad said after a summit in Uzbekistan: "Our offensive operation in the Donbas is not stopping. They're moving forward - not at a very fast pace - but they are gradually taking more and more territory."

"We have been rather self-restrained in our response to it for now. Recently, the Russian armed forces have inflicted a couple of sensitive blows."

"Let's say that they were a warning. And I remind you the Russian army isn't fighting in its entirety."

Two million flee storm

TWO million people in Japan have been told to seek shelter amid warnings they face "unprecedented" storm risks.

Typhoon Nanmadol is expected to make landfall on Kyushu island today, with winds hitting up to 168mph.

A "special alert" is in force, with warnings of landslides, flooding and homes at risk of collapse.

Train services and flights have been cancelled.

The typhoon is tomorrow expected to turn north-east and move up through central Japan towards Tokyo.

An official from Japan's meteorological agency said: "There are risks of unprecedented storms, high waves, storm surges, and record rainfall."

The agency urged residents to seek refuge in sturdy buildings.

■ EXCLUSIVE by ED GLEAVE

edward.gleave@dailystar.co.uk

THE makers of a TV sci-fi show were approached by a "Man in Black" to include revelations about aliens in their scripts.

Hollywood producer Bryce Zabel said the "US agent" told him it would prepare the public for when they make contact.

He claimed an official asked him to incorporate X-Files-type information about E.T.s into plots on his 90s drama Dark Skies.

Zabel, now a UFO investigator, was contacted by the man called "JC" at the show's launch party.

He said: "I didn't know this guy. He said he was from the Office of Naval Intelligence and he wanted to help us."

"They were looking at a disclosure scenario, so 'How ultimately does this secret become known to the public?'"

"The President just can't come out and say, 'Here's everything' all at once. So they wanted to see more of the truth through fiction."

Dark Skies co-creator Brent V. Friedman recalled: "I can't tell you how surreal this was. They wanted to help us come up with some story ideas."

"JC said to me, 'It's a drip system... get the truth out there in small ways."

"You have a television show that millions of people are watching right now... if we start lacing it with bits of the truth we're preparing everybody."

They heard nothing more from the "agent", but UFO expert Philip Mantle claimed it was not an isolated incident.

He said: "There is a theory that the powers-that-be have influence over Hollywood."

"At one time alien movies were about them invading Earth, like War Of The Worlds."

"But then they became friendly like E.T., where the aliens turned out to be nice."

"The theory is they are preparing us for contact, so when aliens turn up we think we don't need to be worried."

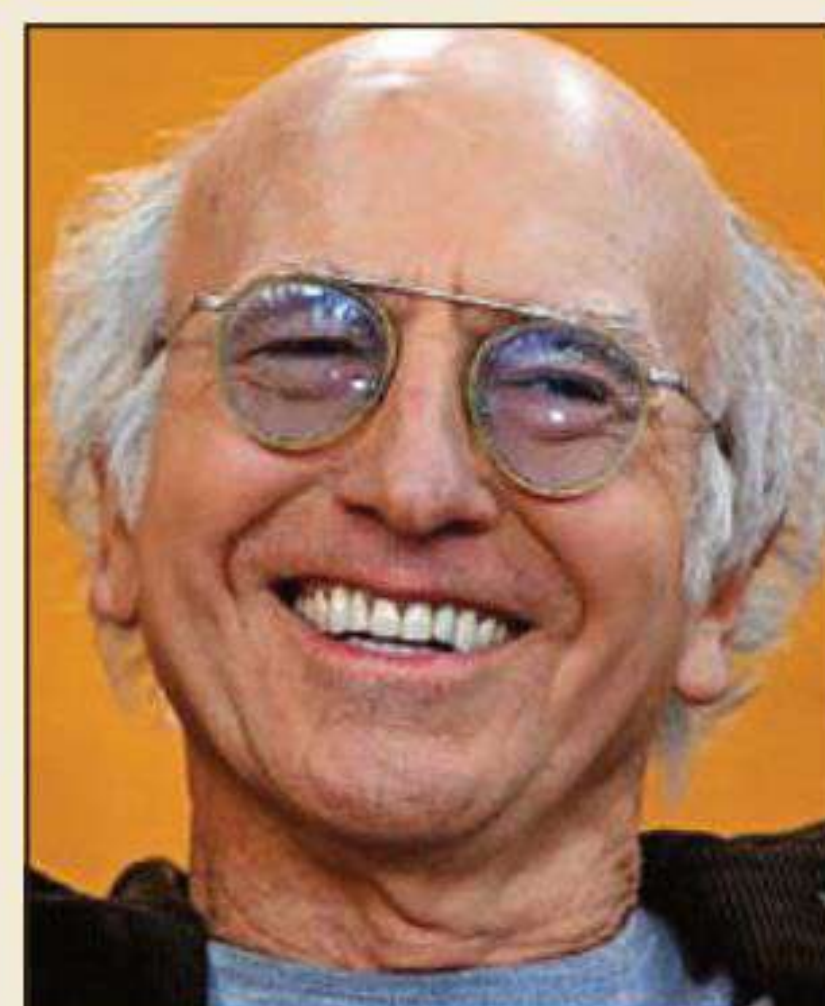

Some investigators think an announcement is imminent.

Videos of encounters between jets and UFOs have been released, and a report said the US could not rule out alien life.

'HOT STUFF': TV's Larry

WOMEN LIKE A BIT ON THE SIDE

BLOKES bald on top but with bushy hair on the sides - like Larry David or George Costanza in Seinfeld - are "hot stuff" for women.

Fellas with the look were among the sexiest, according to a poll of 1,000 women.

They were shown photos of men sporting various hairstyles and asked to pick those that they were most attracted to.

The hair-do is sported by Curb Your Enthusiasm star Larry David, who created Seinfeld, and Jason Alexander, who played George Costanza in the smash-hit show.

Kylie Minogue caused a sensation in 2015 when she said she'd happily date a baldy. She added: "I don't mind grey hair. I don't mind bald or balding."

Erica Furness, 35, from Edinburgh, said she loved bald men, especially those with hair on the sides.

She added: "I've always liked bald men, but I'm not a fan of the completely bald look like Bruce Willis."

"I find men with hair like Larry David very attractive, although he's probably a bit old for me."

TIME OFF: Rousseau

We have the 'right' to be lazy

PEOPLE have a "right" to be lazy and hard work is traditionally a "right-wing value", according to one politician.

Influential French Green MP Sandrine Rousseau said citizens should not have to graft if they don't want to and has started a furious row over the Left's approach to work.

She added that taking breaks and being less productive were healthier objectives.

Ms Rousseau's controversial comments were made to the French media in response to France's Communist Party leader Fabien Roussel.

Last week, he called on his camp to reclaim hard work, saying: "The Left must defend work and not be the Left of handouts and social welfare."

Ms Rousseau replied: "We have the right to change professions. We also have the right to take breaks in our life and, above all, we need to regain time, a sense of sharing and a four-day week."

"They are not talking about that at all."

"Sorry to say this, but the work ethic is a right-wing value."

Tourists in Crossfire

KEELEY Hawes revealed her new drama Crossfire raised eyebrows while it was being filmed.

The location was a hotel in Tenerife and there were plenty of guests around.

Keeley, 46, said: "Some of the guests at the hotel had been informed that there was a shoot going on, but there were a whole lot of other people who had no idea."

"You had actors screaming, running into the hotel, strange goings-on in corridors and people with fake blood trickling down their faces."

"Those poor people were trying to have a holiday around them."

Crossfire is showing now on BBC iPlayer.

Shannon: My SAS lie over injury agony

SHANNON Courtenay lied about a crippling knee injury when she signed up for Celebrity SAS: Who Dares Wins.

The boxing champ, 29, was secretly in agony but hid it from producers so she wouldn't be axed.

She told the Daily Star Sunday: "I had a ruptured ligament in my knee before I went into the show and I didn't tell producers about it."

"I knew if I did, I wouldn't be allowed to take part. So I just told them I had a little niggle in my knee."

Shannon managed to keep her injury secret from producers throughout filming at a base in Jordan.

She said: "I had to put a strap on my knee. Sometimes they'd call us and I'd have to put it on as quickly as I could and run out."

"I didn't want them to know about it. The strap got so wet because we were in wet clothes and it was just horrendous. It made the tasks difficult. I was grinning and bearing it."

"The exercises we had to do didn't help my knee."

Shannon has since had two knee operations, including a reconstruction.

But she added: "I'm fine now."

Shannon later confessed all to show instructor Jason Fox.

She said: "When I told Foxy about the real injury he said, 'How the hell you managed to do the show I'll never know.'"

Despite her suffering, Shannon credits the show for giving her a new perspective on life. She said: "I came back a different person."

KYM: DANCING FOR DYING DAD

Star urged to just go for it

KYM Marsh is doing Strictly in honour of her terminally ill dad.

Seeing her beloved David find out that he had incurable prostate cancer made her want to seize the day even more.

In a heart-to-heart, Kym told the Daily Star Sunday: "I have been offered Strictly before and I never thought it was the right time."

"But then my dad got diagnosed with untreatable cancer last March and I've just decided to grab everything while I can."

"His diagnosis does change things. It makes you look at things differently."

The 46-year-old added: "He told me for years, 'You never know what's round the corner, so grab things with both hands.'"

"But you don't think about that until an event happens."

"Without being melancholy, we don't know how long we've got him for, so you've got to make the most of those situations."

Kym's husband Scott Ratcliff is an Army major who puts his life on the line for his country, so that has also brought things into perspective for her. She said: "I'm married to a soldier and this year he's here but next year he might be deployed."

Former Corrie star Kym plans to give Strictly her all to make her loved-ones proud. And she is hoping her upbeat attitude will give hope to people going through tough times.

She said: "It would be great if we could inspire others and encourage people to do things out of their comfort zone." Kym is also hoping to inspire other grandparents not to let age stop them doing what they want.

The star became a grandmother at the age of just 42 when her daughter Emilie Mae Cunliffe had a boy in 2019.

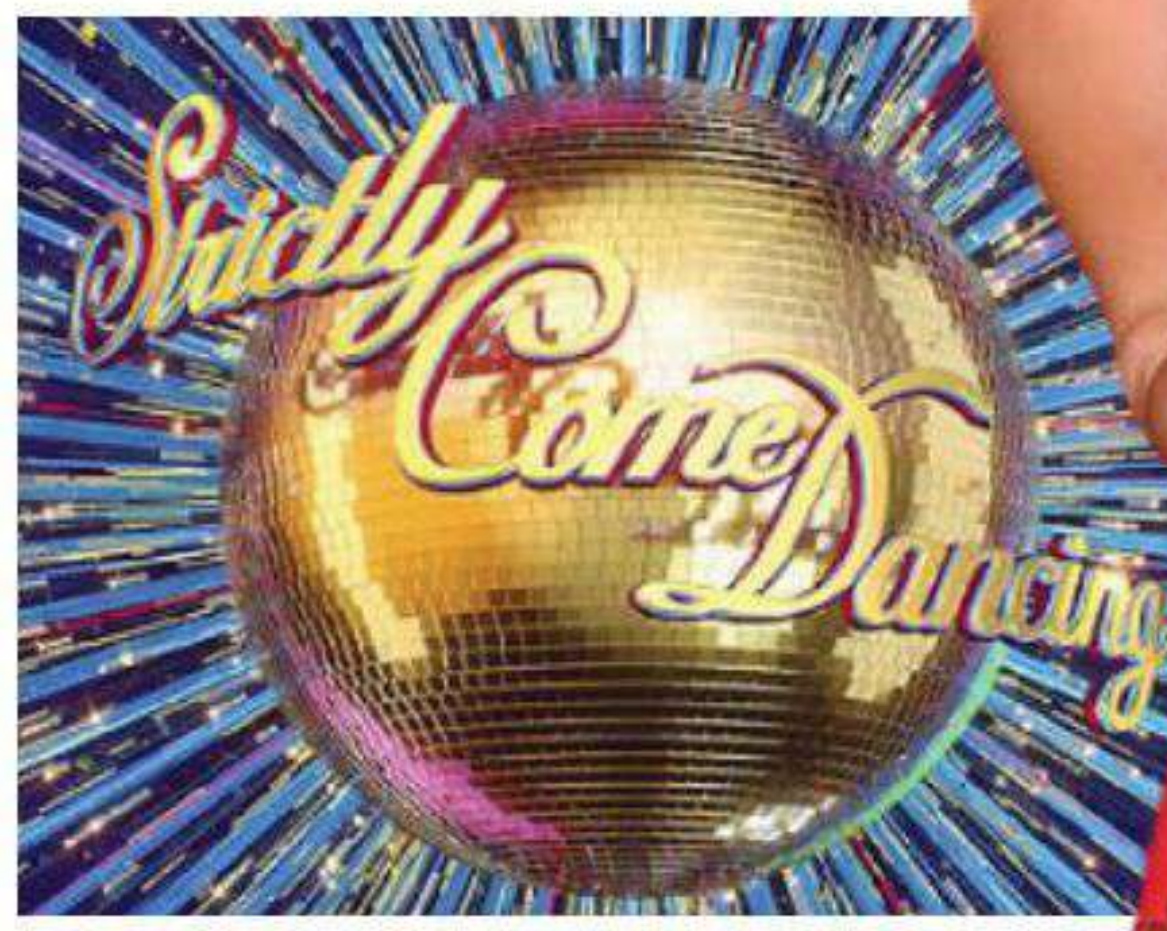

Kym said: "I'm doing this for the grannies. I love being a grandma."

There are just six days until the first live show.

Kym, who is one of the outsiders with the bookies at 14/1, spoke about the gruelling training.

She said: "We're under no illusion, it's hard work."

"We did a bit for the group dance and to say I was a sweaty mess would be an understatement. Everything is hurting."

Helen set to have a glitter ball

HELEN Skelton is excited to sex up her image for Strictly.

She is usually in wellies to present Countryfile and This Week On The Farm.

But Helen, 39, said: "Going into make-up and wardrobe is like going into a sweet shop as a kid. I was trying shoes on and I saw a dress and was like, 'God, whose is this?'"

"For me, one of the main attractions of this show is the make-up, the glitter, the glam and the costumes."

Kaye: I'm a lose Woman

KAYE Adams reckons she's got no chance of winning.

The Loose Women presenter, 59, said: "I have never danced before. This is a huge leap in the dark."

"I will go out of the competition at whatever stage and that is fine."

And she joked: "There is no room on my mantelpiece for the Glitterball."

Kaye is tipped to get voted out early by the bookies and has the worst odds of winning at 50/1.

I'LL BYE-PASS CURSE

JAMES Bye is confident Strictly's famous curse won't ruin his marriage.

The show has been blamed for ending a string of relationships over the years.

But the EastEnders actor, 38, who wed Victoria in 2012, said: "We joke about the curse. We have got an amazing relationship."

"There's no need to even think about it really."

Fleur: I don't have edge

FLEUR East insists her experience as a pop star won't give her an advantage.

The X Factor star is the bookies' early favourite to win the series.

But she said: "When I'm singing and I've got dancers with me, I can just do my own thing."

"I don't have to do the dance myself."

"And I don't have anyone looking at my toes and hands. I'm used to performing by myself."

'NIGHTMARE': The beast

Terrifying fish catch of the day

A FISHERMAN was stunned after he caught a bizarre-looking sea creature thought to be a deep-sea shark.

Trapman Bermagui posted a picture of the alien-looking creature on Facebook, prompting people to call it "the stuff of nightmares".

The sea monster was pulled lifeless from 2,133ft underwater off the coast of Australia - with large, bulging eyes and small protruding teeth.

The fisherman, from Sydney, said: "It's a rough-skin shark, also known as a species of endeavour dog shark."

"These sharks are common in depths greater than 600 metres. We catch them in the winter usually."

Dean Grubbs of Florida State University also said it appeared to be a type of rough-skin dogfish.

WATER makes different sounds depending on its temperature. Boiled water makes a higher sound than cold water as its energy molecules are moving around at a much faster rate. Cold water has a lower-pitched tone and sounds heavier.

COPS CRACK CASE

A MAN was held after cops said he tried to hide 8oz of methamphetamine under the car when stopped for speeding in Florida.

TREAT: Pairs buy treats Trolley bad shop habit

COUPLES who shop together end up filling the trolley with biscuits, crisps and sweets.

Lovebirds are bad influences when it comes to the weekly shop, stocking up on unhealthy grub.

Researchers said they act as "accomplices" rather than "minders".

Professor Robert Wilkes, of the ESCP Business School in Berlin, said: "Everyone has weaknesses, for example, for sweets or a burger and fries."

"The accomplice effect means that when you go shopping together, you give each other a kind of permission to consume so-called vice products."

In a study, people shopping alone bought an average of eight products. But shopping together they picked up 20, spending an extra £41 on average.

Of the 12 extra products, nine were "vice" items, totalling £37 of that amount.

OFFAL NICE!

Cheap cuts booming as prices soar

by ISOBEL DICKINSON
Chief Reporter isobel.dickinson@dailystar.co.uk

HARD-UP shoppers are having a butchers at offal again – and snapping up entrails and organs to beat rising prices.

Consumers are shunning steak and lamb as prices soar due to the cost-of-living crisis.

Experts have warned that shoppers could be forking out as much as £100 for fillets and prime cuts in the latest grim predictions.

But despite being out of fashion for years, savvy Brits are snapping up cheap cuts – with sales of hearts, liver, kidneys, oxtail and pork cheeks soaring.

Leading supermarkets are reporting a rise in demand for offal, which was popular during wartime rationing.

At Waitrose, sales of ox cheeks were up 9% on this time last year. Meat buyer Oliver Chadwyck-Healey said: "Lots of our customers are trying out lesser-known, cheaper cuts of meat."

"We've seen oxtail and ox cheek doing particularly well – perfect for hearty stews and slow-cooked casseroles."

Morrisons said they had also recently seen a "good demand from our customers for these types of products".

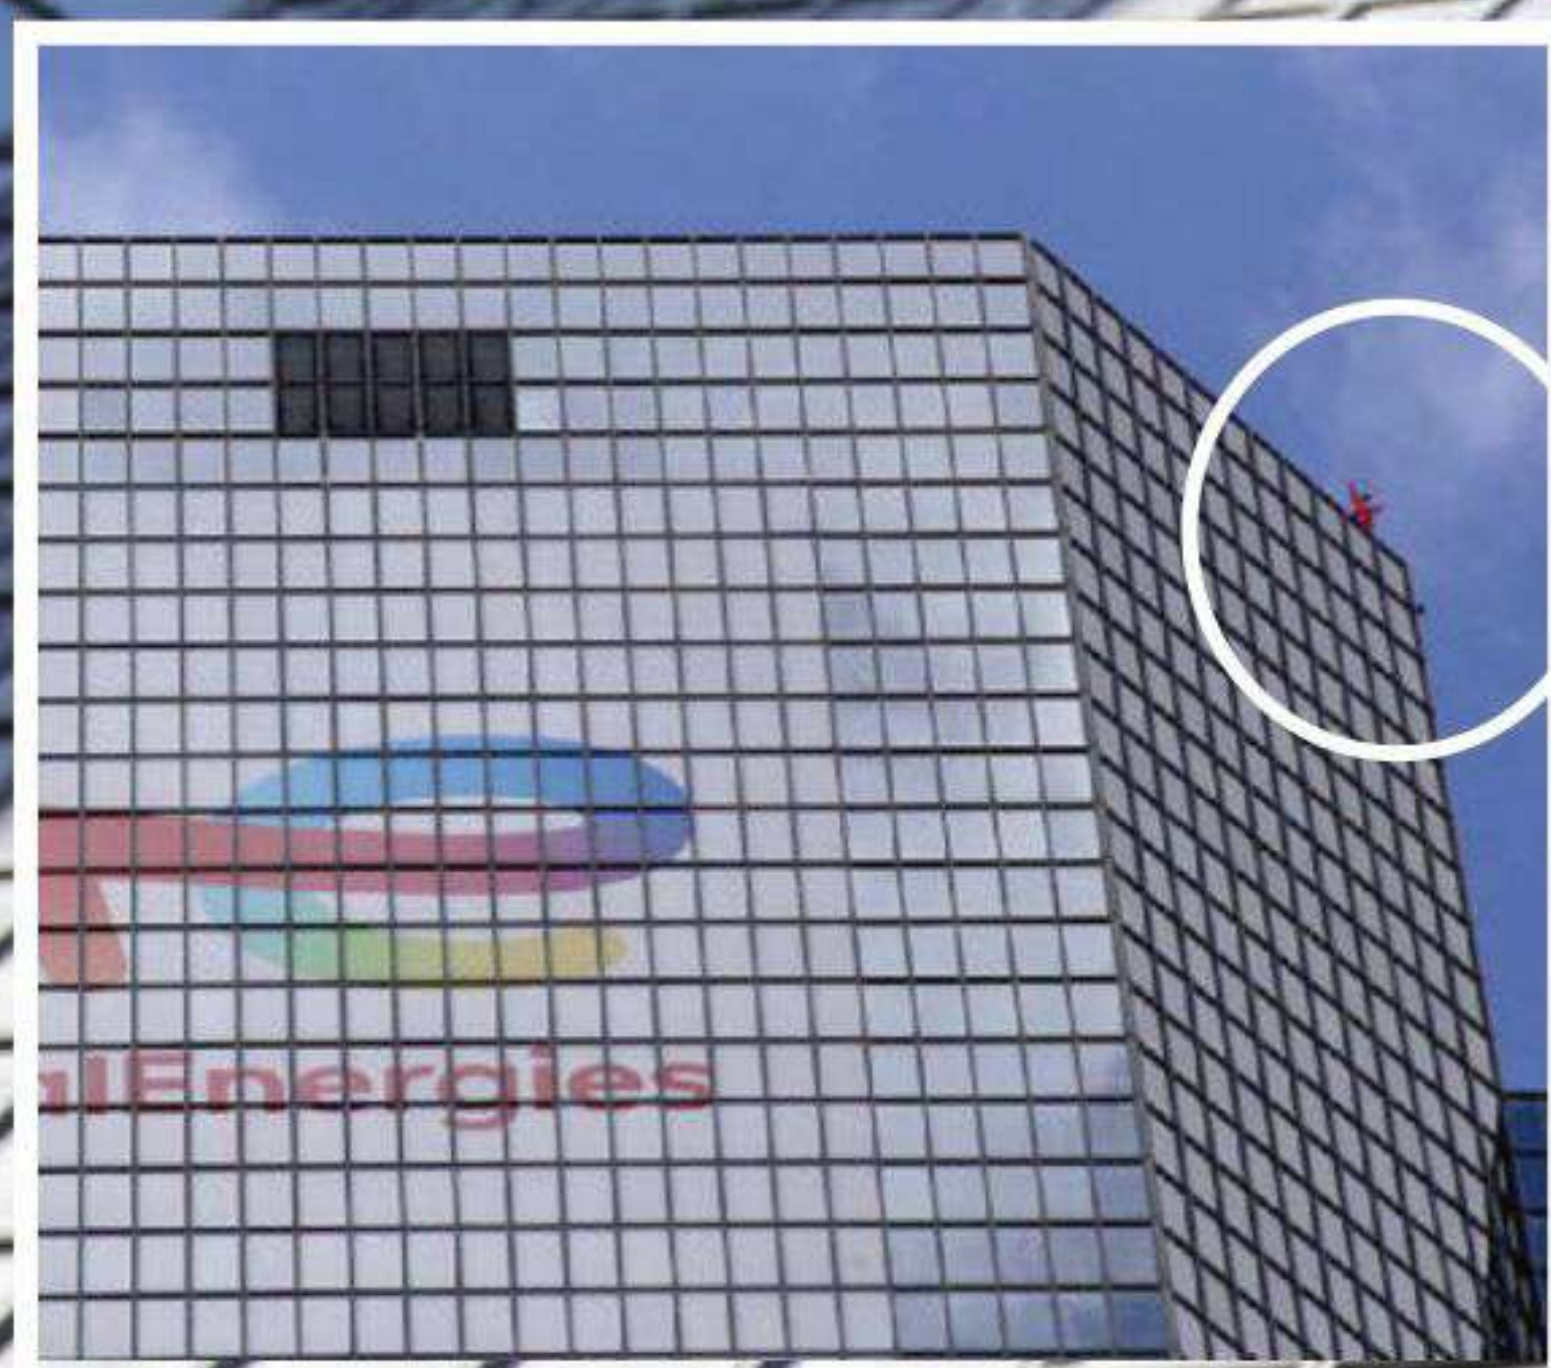

Cash squeeze hits charities

CHARITY bosses are becoming "overwhelmed" with enquiries from vulnerable people in need.

And donations are dropping to pre-pandemic levels as people have less money to spare.

Charities Aid Foundation said: "People are worried about putting food on the table. Paying for gas, fuel and electricity can be a struggle for many."

"Charity giving is one of the costs many people can no longer afford."

of the week

Sailing a bit close to wind...

I HAVE enjoyed reading about how quick-witted and funny the Queen was. I guess she needed a sense of humour being part of that family.

My favourite tale is from a dinner party in the 1950s, not long after she was crowned.

Singer Maurice Chevalier, inset, was entertaining the gathering, but some of his songs had fruity lyrics.

The host of the party decided they had no choice but to approach the young Queen and ask her if she minded.

She fixed him with a steely gaze and said: "I'm married to a sailor. Tell him to sing on!"

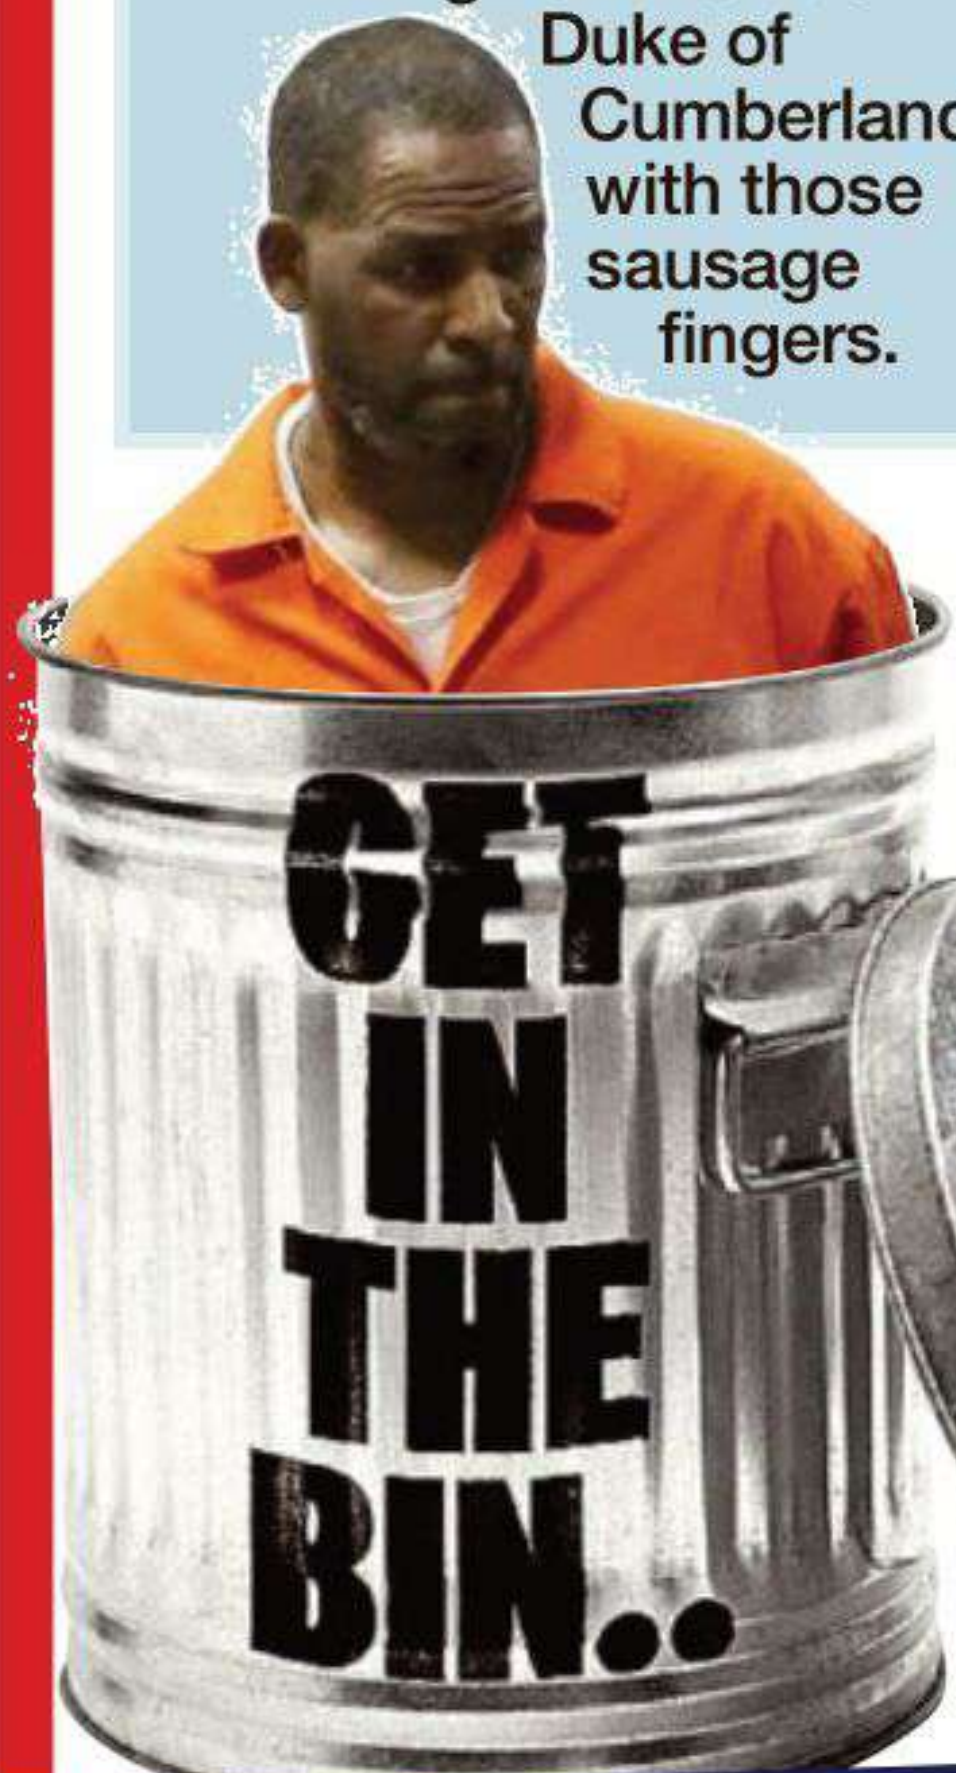

We'll miss you, Your Majesty.

King high and meaty

THOSE photos of our new monarch's hands left me perplexed.

Have you seen them? What is going on there? Had Charles not become King he could have been given the title

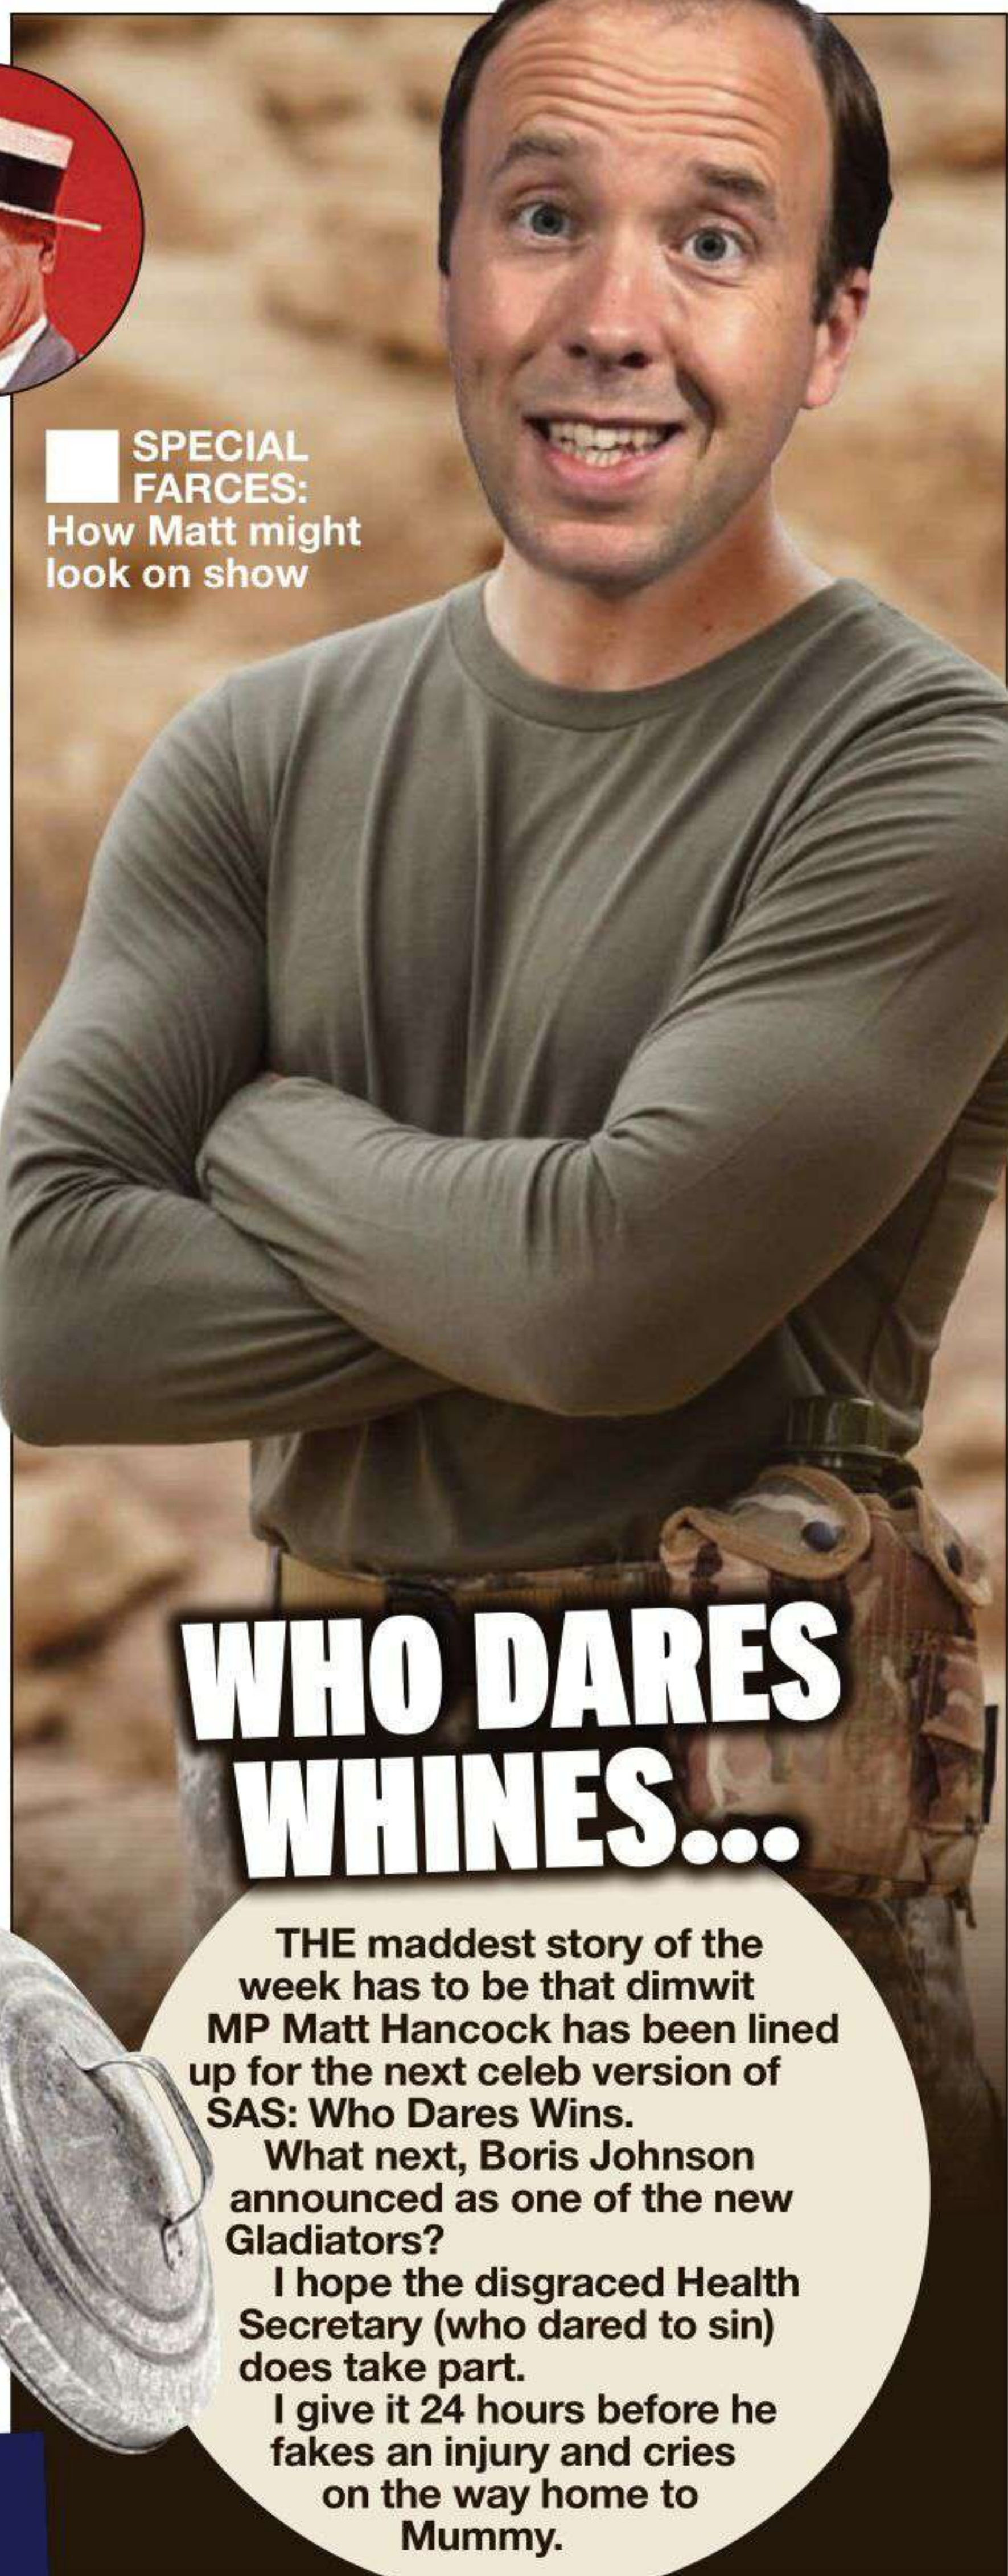

Duke of Cumberland with those sausage fingers.

THE singer, already serving 30 years, has been convicted in a trial related to child abuse images. Doesn't the US have the death penalty? I believe he can fry.

SPECIAL FARCES:
How Matt might look on show

WHO DARES WHINES...

THE maddest story of the week has to be that dimwit MP Matt Hancock has been lined up for the next celeb version of SAS: Who Dares Wins.

What next, Boris Johnson announced as one of the new Gladiators?

I hope the disgraced Health Secretary (who dared to sin) does take part.

I give it 24 hours before he fakes an injury and cries on the way home to Mummy.

DON'T panic... we live in a completely sane country.

It's totally fine that Heathrow flights were delayed so they didn't disturb the Queen's coffin procession.

As for Morrisons' checkout beeps being turned down as a mark of respect... quite normal.

And it was perfectly OK for a supermarket to halt the use of a kiddies' ride, below, while the "nation is in mourning".

Pesky toddlers – they need to learn the rules.

Most shops will shut for the funeral, even Greggs.

Damn right. How dare you think about scoffing a sausage and baked beans snack at a time like this?

And it was quite proper for Center Parcs to say they were going to kick out holidaymakers for tomorrow's funeral.

They should have obviously volunteered to forgo their breaks at such a dark time.

The NHS cancelling urgent appointments and operations? Why ever not?

And it's been great to see the police again using their famed common sense. It was totally fine to arrest a guy who had briefly heckled a man who paid a woman £12million to prove his innocence.

As was threatening to collar the man who carried a blank sheet of paper with him in Parliament Square.

The officer involved said that if the chap had written "Not My King" on it he would be arrested under the Public Order Act... because someone might be offended.

Three cheers for that copper. Every stationery shop should be raided and every bit of paper burned, just in case.

It's what the Queen would have wanted.

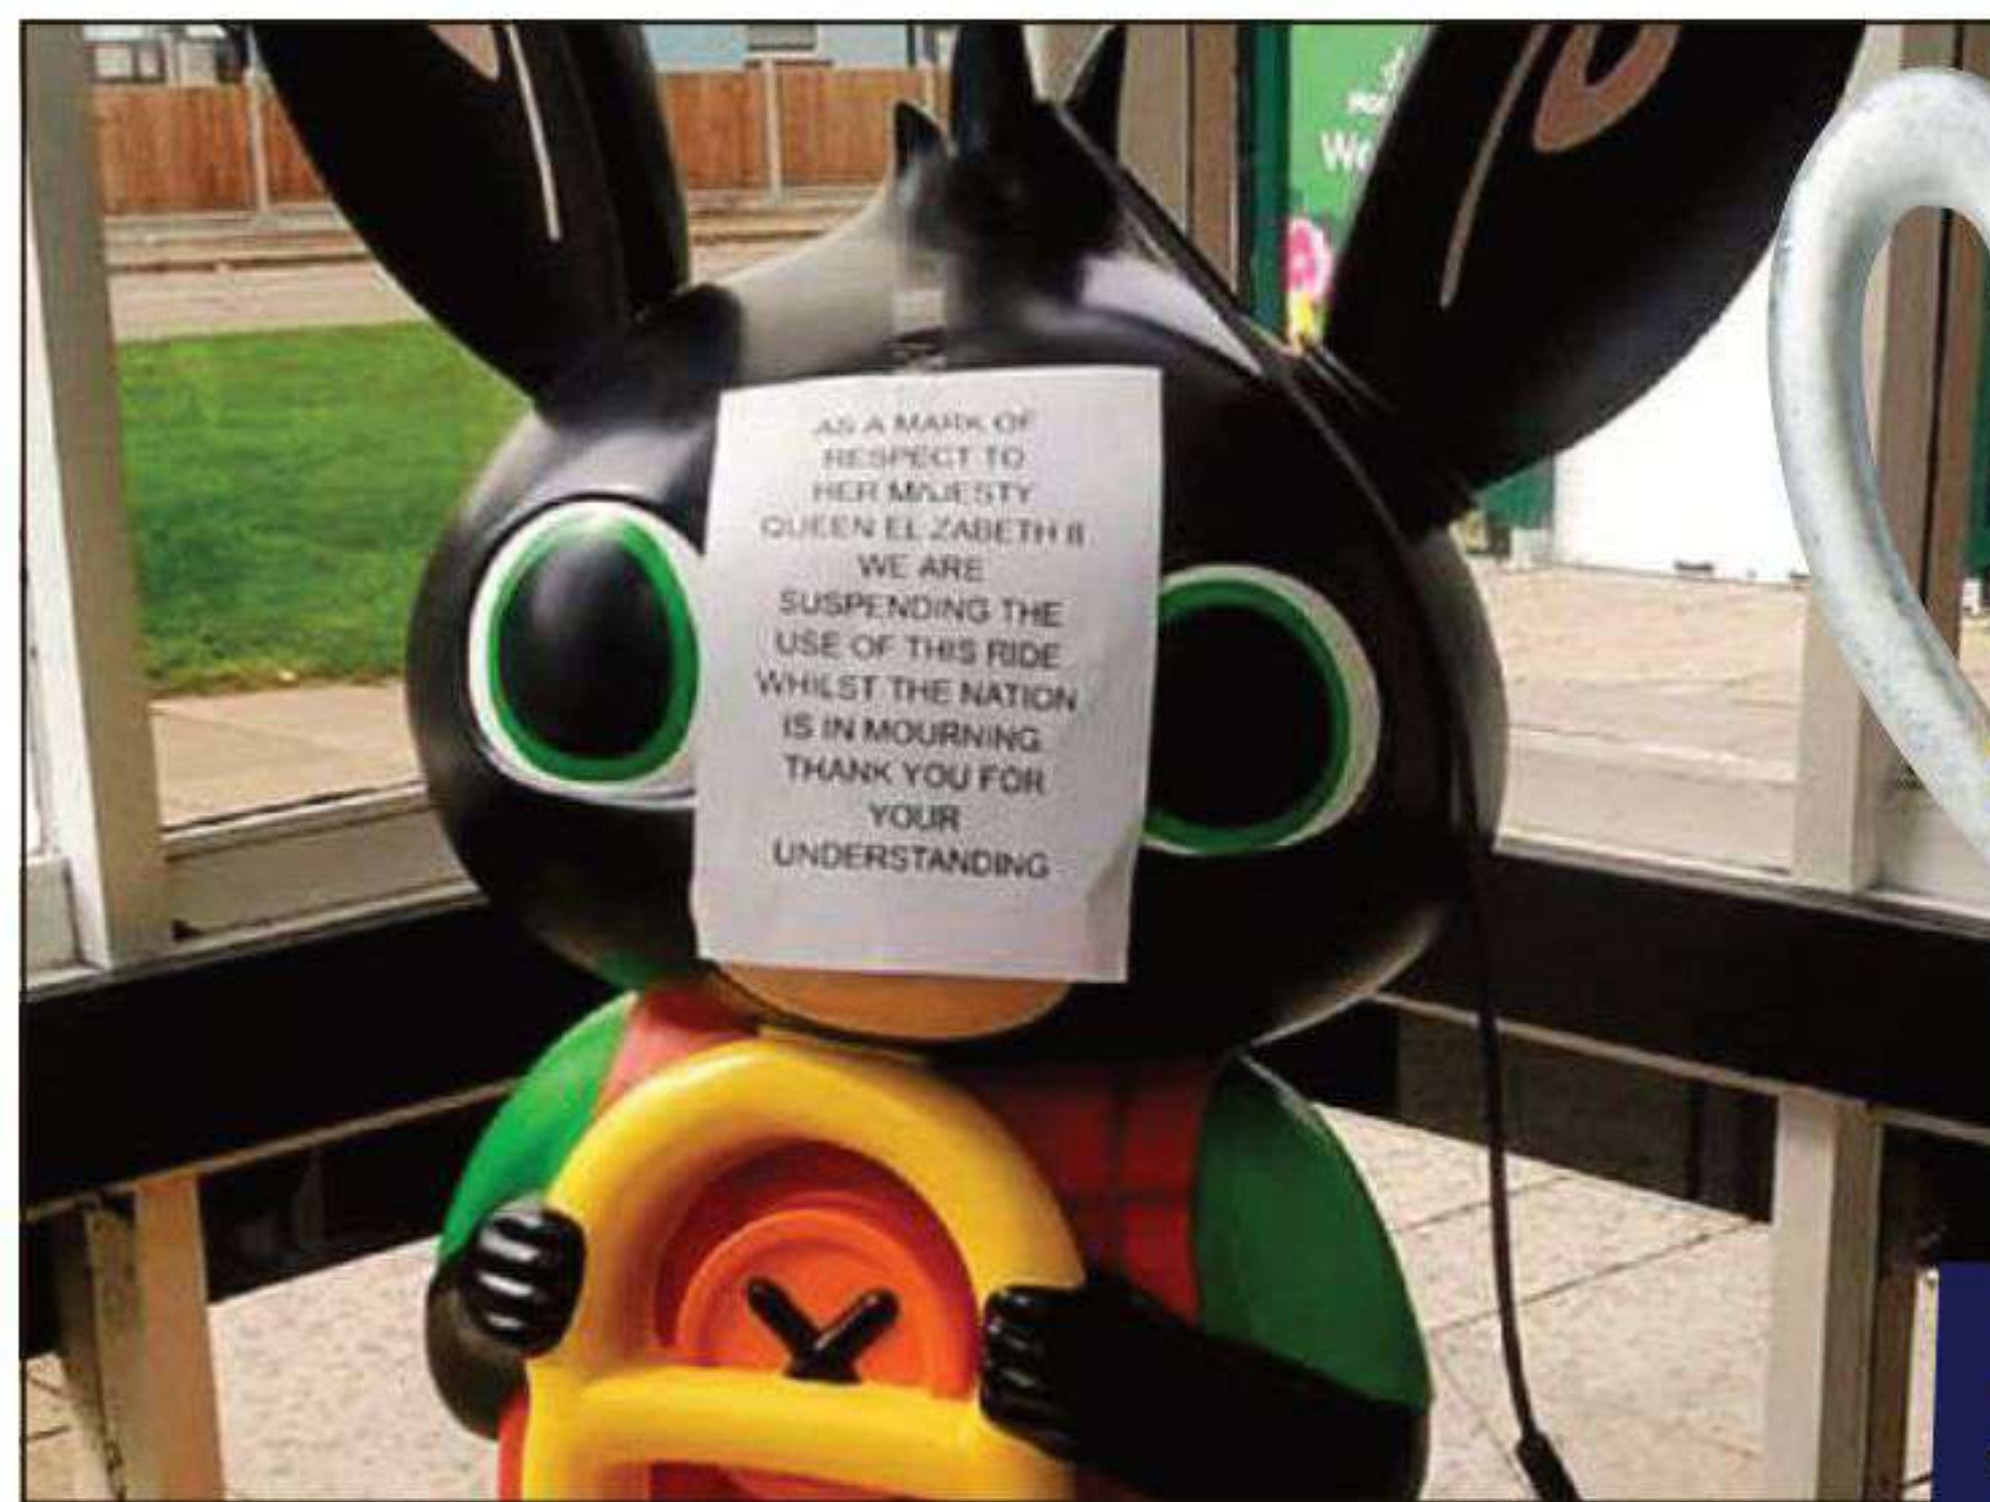

And don't get me started on our TV channels showing 24/7 coverage of the aftermath of the Queen's death.

How could her subjects even think about watching anything else?

Yes, it's all perfectly normal right now!

God Save the King?
God Help Us All.

● DID anyone else roll their eyes and groan when they saw Charles getting ratty with the flunky who left a pen tray on his desk, inset, or am I off to the Tower? Now then Jeeves, where's my bloody Bic???

CHAMPIONS IN WAITING

NO nation on Earth can queue quite like us.

I love the word queue – the important letter first, and then four more silently waiting behind it.

Tens of thousands of mourners have patiently hung around for up to 14 hours to catch a glimpse of the Queen's coffin.

Everyone involved has behaved impeccably and spirits have been high. It makes you proud.

Surely the whole thing deserves a proper title? It ought to be known as the Elizabeth Line.

Snap, Crackle & popped off

ANOTHER tale about our late Queen made me chuckle this week.

In 1996, as she opened a Cambridge law faculty, one professor played a trick.

Convinced she never really listened to what subjects said on such occasions, he told her: "I murdered, Ma'am, my mother-in-law at breakfast over Rice Krispies."

And without missing a beat, Her Majesty said: "What a good idea."

Huw Edwards

THE veteran broadcaster had the unenviable job of delivering the news of the Queen's death on BBC One. A masterclass in news reporting. God bless Huw.

FURIOUS: Car fan Goss

Matt driven bonkers by road rules

PETROLHEAD Matt Goss has channelled his inner Jeremy Clarkson in a rant about the roads.

The 53-year-old Bros singer, who hit stardom in the late 1980s with When Will I Be Famous, claimed the UK's 36million drivers were "easy targets".

The self-confessed car geek said it was appalling they could end up with a penalty charge for straying into a restricted bus lane.

In London, drivers also face a £160 fine for veering into cycle lanes. Matt said: "I believe the British public have been bridled."

"Going 20 miles an hour and not knowing particularly where the lanes are, if you just edge to the left you get [fined]. That's a dictatorship. That isn't British."

He added: "I went to the Tower of London recently - one of my dear friends is a yeoman there - and the bicycle lane was twice as wide as a car."

Grand Tour presenter Clarkson has previously branded bicycle users as "self-righteous".

Yvette's scariest encounter

■ EXCLUSIVE
by ED GLEAVE

A PING pong poltergeist put the willies up telly presenter Yvette Fielding.

The ghost hunter, 53, rates the encounter among the scariest she has faced in two decades of paranormal investigations.

Former Blue Peter host Yvette has appeared in a string of shows about things that go bump in the night, including Most Haunted and Celebrity Ghost Stories.

And at times she has feared her work could push her to breaking point. Of the terrifying table tennis-loving spook she said: "It was a house on a council estate."

"No-one could live in it since the 1970s."

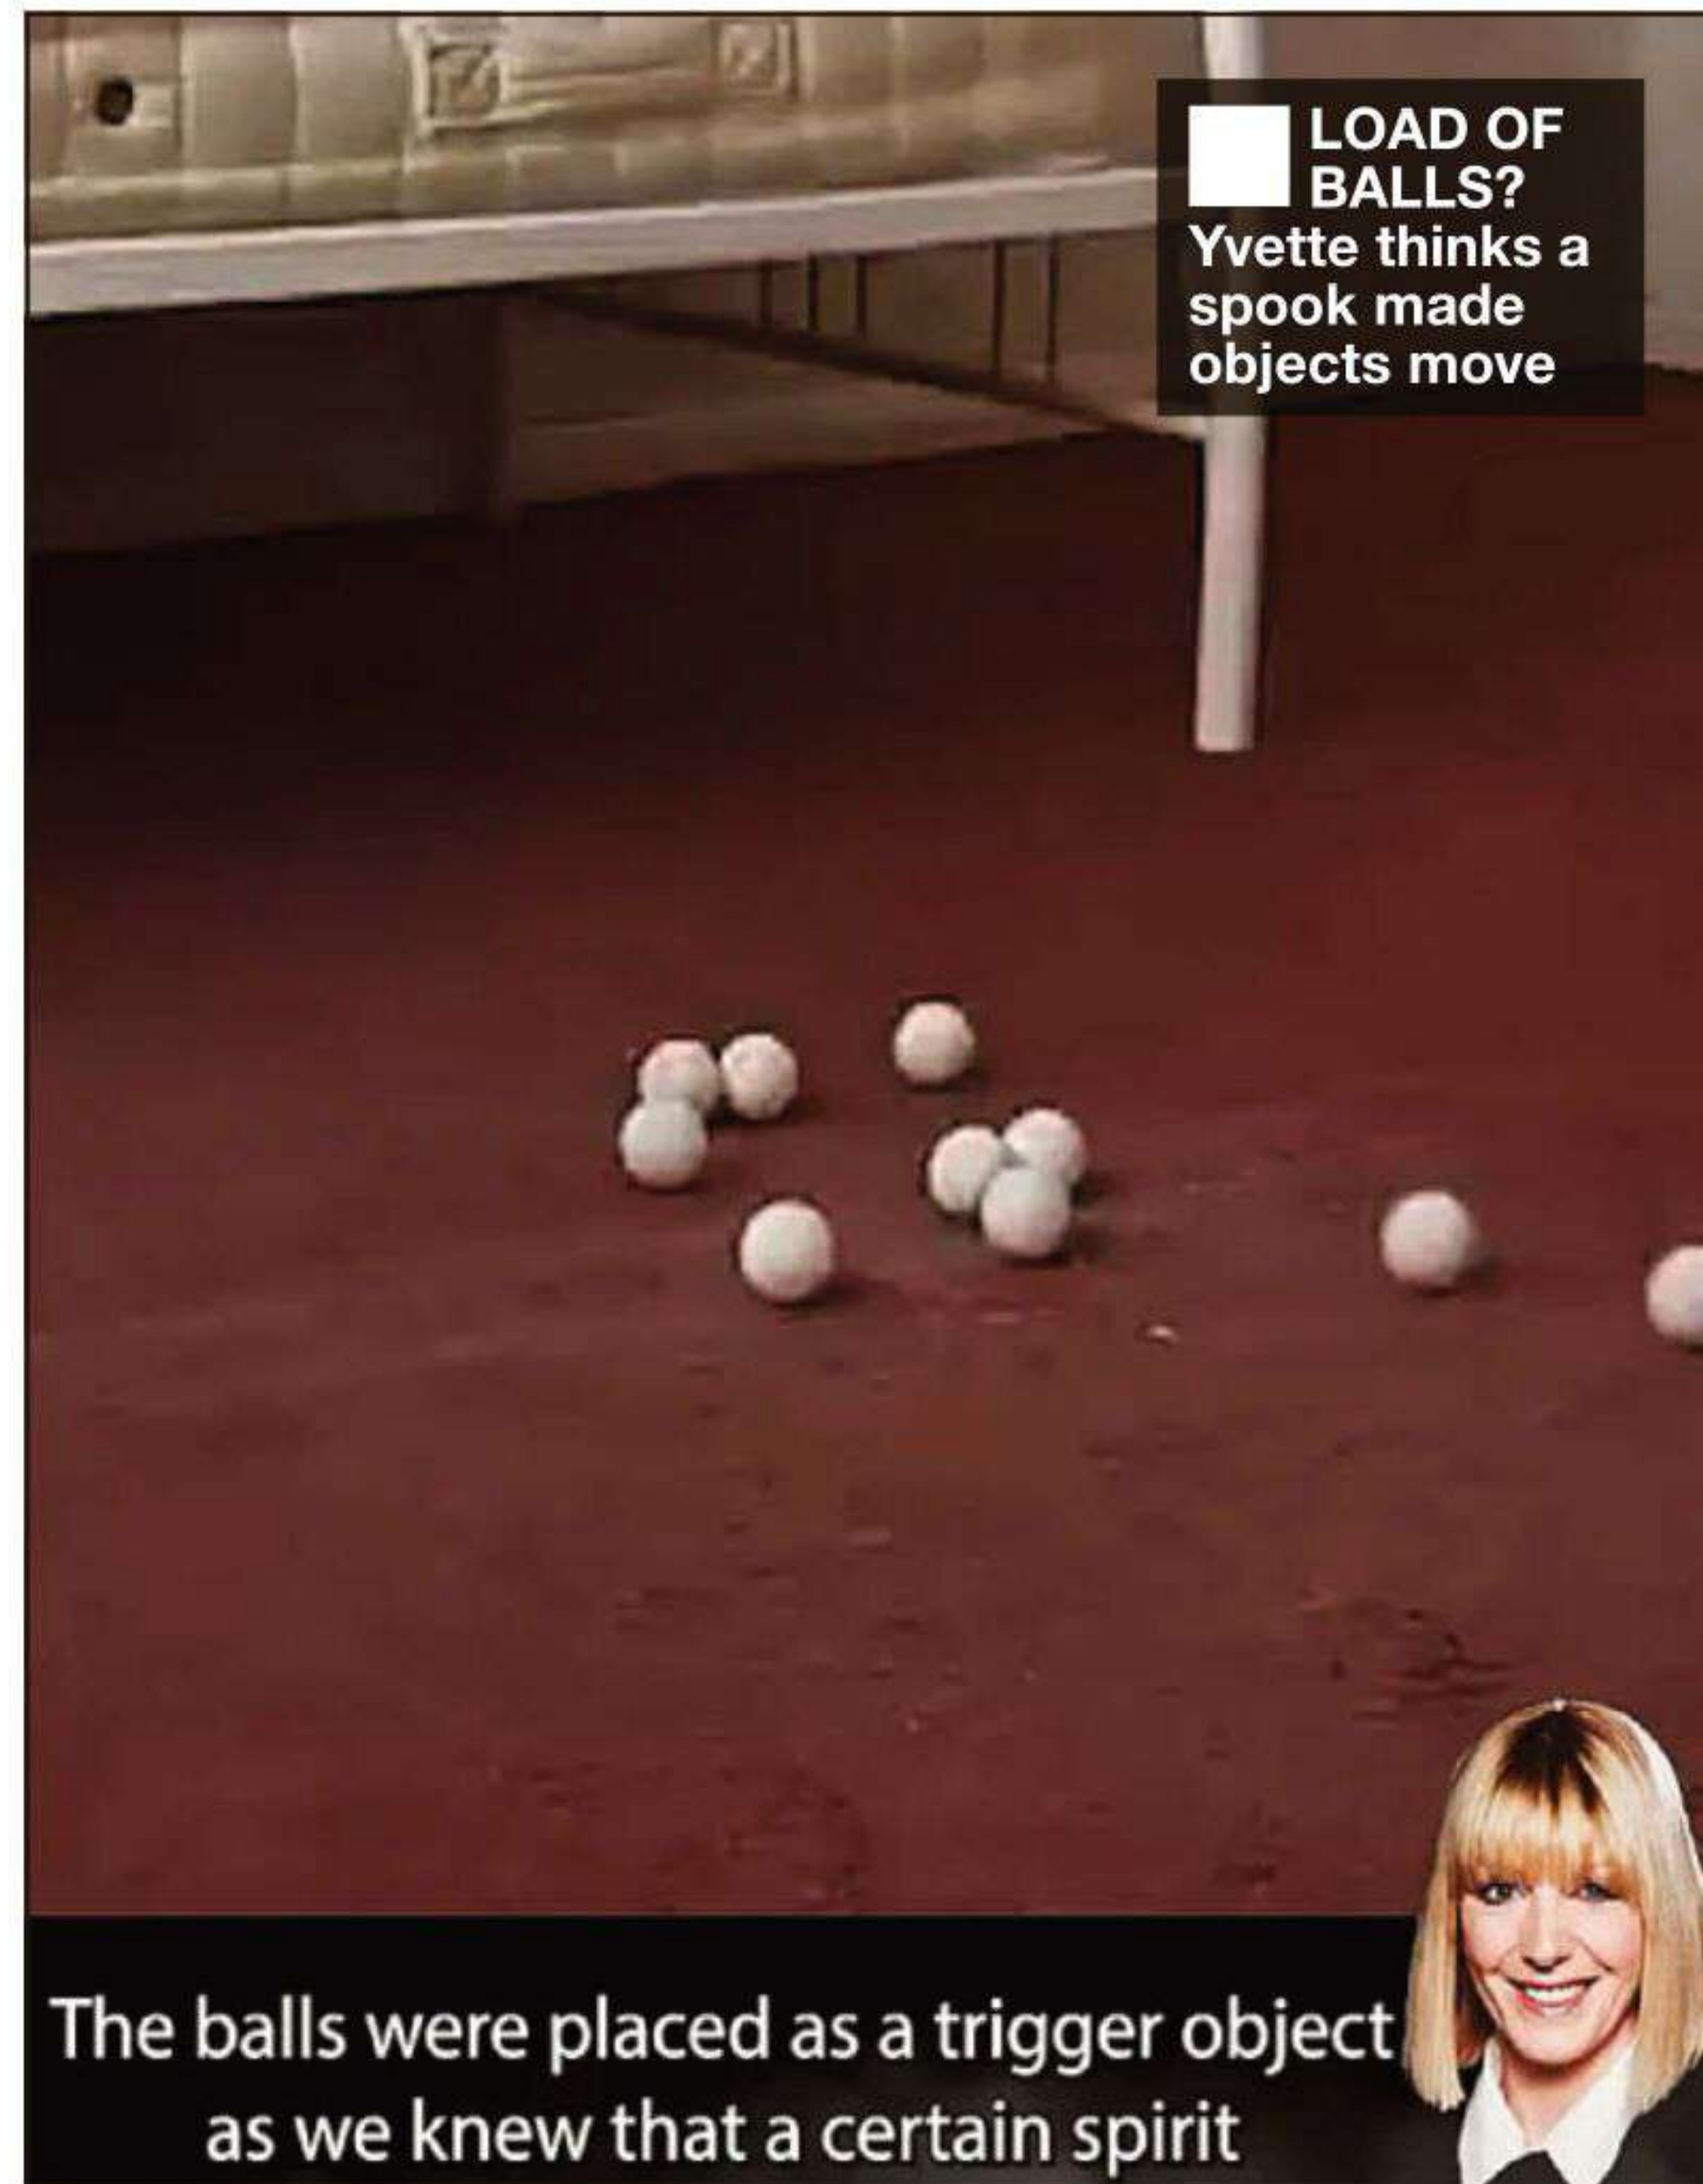

"We had the most extraordinary frightening phenomena. We'd had a carving knife wedged between the seats of the sofa, we'd had things thrown at us."

"And we'd had trigger objects... ping-pong balls. They were moving across the floor and then moving back again."

"There was no logical explanation." The incident, which took place in Pontefract, West Yorkshire, left Yvette badly shaken.

On cult show Nub TV, she revealed: "I remember we finished the investigation and I was sat in the car crying, saying the Lord's Prayer over and over again. It was just a really scary location."

Yvette added: "I have had lots of frightening experiences where you question your sanity. You think, 'If this carries on I'm going to need

LOAD OF BALLS?
Yvette thinks a spook made objects move

The balls were placed as a trigger object as we knew that a certain spirit

Yvette recalled how a violent spirit slashed a crew member.

She said: "I watched, for the first time, people being scratched and harmed. The sound man ended up in A&E having stitches because something had cut his leg."

I resigned that night. I was like, 'What the hell? What are we dealing with here? I don't want to do it anymore. This is too scary.'

Yvette is a guest on the new series of Nub TV, which airs on Thursdays at 9pm on Sky TV Channel 186.

Steven said: "It's a very emotional show. It's very powerful and very dark in moments. But

LOVE ISLE? WE'D BE LEFT TO DRIFT

No place for 'normal folk' says Charl

CHARLOTTE Crosby has had a pop at Love Island bosses for only picking toned contestants.

She wants to see more body diversity on the ITV2 show.

Charlotte told me: "Love Island would be better if they had different kinds of people, 100%."

"The beauty standards TV now are fed."

"I want to see people who are like Fiz and Tyrone on Corrie."

"I want normal people off the street who genuinely fall in love with each other. That would be so cute to watch."

Charlotte found fame on Georgie Shore 11 years ago and became one of TV's most popular stars.

But she reckons the producers on Love Island would never have given her a chance.

She went on: "If us lot from Georgie Shore had auditioned for Love Island instead, there wouldn't be a chance in hell we would get on it. When we first started we were just a bunch of normal girls, and that's why everyone loved us."

"They were thinking, 'I do that... that's what I do on a night out.' We were real people."

Charlotte has headed back to Georgie Shore for a new reunion series. It starts on Tuesday at 10pm on MTV and Paramount+.

WHEN I met Carl Froch I decided to challenge him to an arm wrestle. To this day, I'm not sure why. "The Cobra" could have beaten me in an instant.

Carl then won, obviously. I bet I could beat him at Wordle though.

SWAMPED: Newborn's outfit once far too big is now a perfect fit, inset

So tiny it took 30 mins to confirm he was a boy

A PREMATURE baby weighing little more than 1lb was so small that a babygrow meant for a newborn swamped him.

George Kirwan was born at only 28 weeks, weighing 1lb 7oz.

The pregnancy had been fraught with worry after mum Chloe Kirwan, 33, suffered bleeding at 18 weeks.

At the 28-week scan, doctors saw George had stopped growing and told Chloe he would need delivering early.

He was born that week after a potential blockage in George's bowels could have led to cerebral palsy.

George spent nearly 10 weeks in hospital but is now a thriving six-month-old. He weighs a healthy 11lb 5oz – and finally fits his England rugby babygrow.

Chloe said: "At points we thought he might not make it, but he's so strong-willed.

REVERSIBLE: Vaccine Men to get jab instead of the snip

A MALE contraceptive jab that lasts a decade and prevents HIV could be available within a year.

The vaccine, which is said to be "less painful and also reversible", is set to replace the vasectomy and could be offered within months.

Final trials of the jab, named Risug, are under way now and researchers at the Indian Institute of Technology say it should be ready by the start of the new year.

The jab is a non-hormonal reversible polymer gel and can be used as a replacement for a vasectomy, when surgeons cut the sperm duct.

A local anaesthetic is applied to the scrotum at the injection site first. It is then injected into one sperm duct and then repeated for the other one.

Once in there, the gel sticks to the inner walls of the sperm ducts and damages the sperm that passes through, so they aren't able to reach and fertilise an egg.

Reeves set for sequel

KEANU Reeves is returning to rid the world of evil as an exorcist in the sequel to supernatural action flick Constantine.

Warner Brothers Studios will make the follow-up to the 2005 film, and the star will reunite with original director Francis Lawrence.

Reeves, 58, will head to London early next year to film the project about DC comic hero John Constantine as he battles evil.

The sequel has been tipped since a 15-year reunion saw Keanu and Francis attended a Comic-Con event.

The actor has said of the first movie: "I just loved that world and I love that character." Bad Robot Productions boss Abrams will produce it.

GUARDS TOLD HOW TO STOP ESCAPES

Lessons in cuff justice

by ISOBEL DICKINSON
isobel.dickinson@dailystar.co.uk

BUNGLING prison guards who let lags escape because they are not properly restrained are having lessons in how to cuff criminals.

The number of offenders who have done a runner from prison escort services has increased by 45% in the past year, according to Government documents.

In the 12 months from March 2021 there were 12 escapes, 11 of which occurred from contractor escorts and one from an HMPPS escort. That is an increase from five the previous year.

Prison escorts are used to transport lags to a variety of locations including courts, hospitals and other jails.

The document said 77% of escapes were down to "poor practice".

A staggering 62% of lags fled due to "breached restraints", including loose cuffs, inadequate supervision and failure to carry out proper searches.

The findings have prompted the Ministry of Justice to issue a 51-page teaching booklet.

It advises: "Handcuffs must be correctly applied and only removed if acting within the risk assessment or through appropriate authority".

It also says: "Escort staff must regularly (at least hourly) physically check that the prisoner's restraints are properly applied, remain intact and are not tampered with."

Under the heading "Escape From Escort - What To Do" it advises: "If a prisoner escapes, at least one of the escorting staff must pursue the prisoner and try to recapture him/her."

Another handy tip urges the guards to "shout for assistance" if a criminal escapes.

healthcare offered is "second to none".

The jail is famed for its sausages and lamb, from its own herd of saddleback pigs and flock of sheep.

Writing in the latest issue of lag mag Inside Time, the inmate said she had recently been moved from a closed jail and was revelling in life in an open prison. She said: "Wow! What a difference East Sutton Park is after being in closed conditions."

"As you come up the long drive of the prison, in front of you is a great big house standing within surrounding trees and greenery."

"Horses look towards the van as it goes past them. It is such a wonderful sight to see animals again."

SPACE AGE: Two Calafat designs and, far right, a Carzana creation

Fashion is so spaced out

by SIAN HEWITT

GET ready for blast-off, fashionistas, because next year is all about space-themed designs.

One model stalked the runway wearing an alien-like cream tassel jacket, created by Alvaro Calafat, during Mercedes-Benz Fashion Week in Madrid.

Another of his designs in the show featured creepy hands stuck on a model's breasts.

Meanwhile, Paolo Carzana stole the show at the London Fashion Week's Newgen Presentation Show Space with an out-of-this-world cream creation.

The designer said: "It's me creating what I don't see."

MORE HORSES THAN TANKS IN THE ARMY

'Now focus on what's important'

THE Army still has more horses than tanks.

Military chiefs have 492 of the animals in their fleet, compared with 408 tanks.

Latest Ministry of Defence figures show that at the last official count the Army had 227 Challenger 2 tanks, and 181 light Scimitar tanks.

Douglas Young, chairman of the British Armed Forces Federation, said: "The figures don't necessarily mean we have got too many horses."

"It's more likely the figures mean we don't have enough tanks."

But Iraq and Afghanistan war veteran Gordon Wavell questioned the worth of the animals to the military.

He said: "Maybe it's time to focus on what's important and drop ceremonial duties, because that is all the horses do."

"These horses would no longer serve

EXCLUSIVE by SIAN HEWITT
sian.hewitt@dailystar.co.uk in a war should there be one, it is purely ceremonial." The tanks are among more than 4,000 armoured fighting vehicles in the UK's Armed Forces.

However, former Combat Support Officer Mr Wavell also questioned their future as frontline weapons.

He said they had long been under threat as modern anti-tank technology allows a "single combatant to damage or destroy a big expensive tank" with a "relatively low-cost handheld weapon".

In addition to the horses, the MoD also has dogs in the serving fleet. The Army says on its website: "Animals have played a vital role within the Armed Forces for centuries and, just like humans, they receive the highest level of training."

All military animals start their working life at the Defence Animal Training Regiment HQ in Melton Mowbray, Leics.

The regiment's commanding officer, Lieutenant Colonel Mike Robinson, said: "We care passionately about our people and the animals we train."

He added: "We want our animals to be driven, well-trained and safe and we do that by providing them with the best healthcare."

Smell test by Anne-Marie

SINGLE singer Anne-Marie is after a non-smelly new partner.

Asked what she is looking for in a future suitor, The Voice UK coach said: "Chefs [whose] farts don't smell and have ADHD – that would be great."

Anne-Marie is clearly fond of toilet humour, adding: "It's quite funny but the smell is not good."

"If it don't smell you are fine. Farting is all right but go away from me – don't fart in my mouth."

Back with new Aitch collaboration Psycho, she added: "We should all bring out our inner psycho."

SUEDE / AUTOFICTION ★★★★★

BRETT Anderson is louder, angrier and more erudite than ever on this punky masterpiece. Few frontmen can conceive a hook as simple yet as brilliant as "will you be my personality disorder?" An LP that's up there with Suede's finest work – and that's saying something.

RINA SAWAYAMA / HOLD THE GIRL ★★★★★☆

MADONNA producer Stuart Price helps Rina elevate her HI-NRG bangers and sweeping ballads to the next level. On This Hell she sounds like a more soulful Lady Gaga, but it's the heart-wrenching drama of slowies like Phantom that will have her playing stadiums one day.

MARCUS MUMFORD / (SELF-TITLED) ★★★★★☆

A DARKER and unflinchingly personal solo debut that's a world away from his band, in spirit at least. The rawness of the lyrics sometimes jars on the softer country/folk outings, but when he unleashes his rage on Better Off High and Grace it all makes sense.

DINO'S DUO

COMEBACK dance star Totally Enormous Extinct Dinosaurs has been offered a classical gig.

Oxford musician TEED, real name Orlando Higginbottom, is the son of a former choirmaster at Oxford Uni.

He told me: "We play piano duets at Christmas and one promoter suggested we do a show together. If we did a track together it'd be terrible musically, but I'd be up for it as it'd be so hilarious."

"I had never really fallen in love with someone's musicianship and artistry before."

Legend is a naughty boy

JOHN SONG MAKES MUM BLUSH

HE has a reputation for being the nice man of soul but John Legend's latest album had his own mum blushing.

It boasts a sexy R&B jam called Splash that's a little racier than his normal romantic ballads.

At an exclusive London album event for double LP Legend, he explained: "I call the song 'classy nasty'."

"We do Splash live and we have female dancers doing a simulated synchronised swimming routine and it's quite sexy. My mother was there and when I showed what they were wearing, she blushed."

The album boasts 24 tracks and one, Wonder Woman, was written for Mrs Legend senior.

He explained that it's for "my mum, my grandmother, my wife – all the women that have made a huge impact in my life. It's in honour of all the special women in our lives who make magic happen."

The quality of the songs on Legend means it never feels too long, but it could have been even bigger.

"I feel it's the best work I've ever done," John said. "There will be like 60 tracks you won't hear – I write a lot, especially if I collaborate. And because of the pandemic we had more free time. These will be C-sides, D-sides."

Legend boasts a raft of collabs including Rick Ross, Jhene Aiko and Ty Dolla Sign.

"Collaborations are the best combat for writer's block because having two or three people in a room together can spark the imagination rather than being locked in a moment alone. It'll be better than you could do alone."

The real key to John's success is how humble he is: "There's no guarantee. I feel like every time I create a new album, I have to prove myself."

LISA'S EYEING UP A TOP TEN

★ BLACKPINK'S new album is just a day old and yet one member is already eyeing a solo project. Lisa has hinted a collaboration with fellow K-pop star and NCT member Ten is on the cards. The duo are close friends and the main dancers of their respective groups, so fans are hoping for something aimed at the dancefloor.

'Sad' ban left Gaz off Pops

GARY Barlow says a booze ban slapped on Take That backstage on Top Of The Pops made him "sad".

The boy-band were not allowed to party in the "star bar" with other acts after filming.

Gary, 51, said: "We never got to have a drink with the other bands and appreciate where we were. Sometimes that makes me feel a bit sad. Apparently, the star bar was the setting for countless p-ups and rock-star wobbles."

In his book A Different Stage, Gary said they were whisked off to other engagements, adding: "We never got up to mischief."

BBC in Wimbo smash & grab

BEST SEATS DISHED OUT TO TOP EXECS

BBC staff enjoyed some of the best seats at Wimbledon this year as the broadcaster dished out more than 400 tickets worth £51,000.

Household TV names, Beeb executives on six-figure salaries plus their pals got seats for this year's tennis showpiece that ordinary people could only dream of getting their hands on.

The public can only land Wimbledon tickets by either getting lucky in a hugely over-subscribed ballot, queuing up overnight or paying for a pricey hospitality package.

But as the tournament's "official broadcaster", the BBC gets a wedge of tickets, which it dishes out to business contacts as well as selected staff.

Among those handed freebies were reporters, news executives, MPs, members of the House of Lords, sports company big-wigs and stars including comic Lee Mack.

BBC officials said it handed out 239 tickets with a face value of £32,890 as part of its business dealings.

The details were revealed in a Freedom of Information Act response. Leigh Tavaziva, the £400,000 BBC Chief Operating

by MATT DAVIS

Officer, had prized Centre Court seats to see stars Emma Raducanu and Andy Murray.

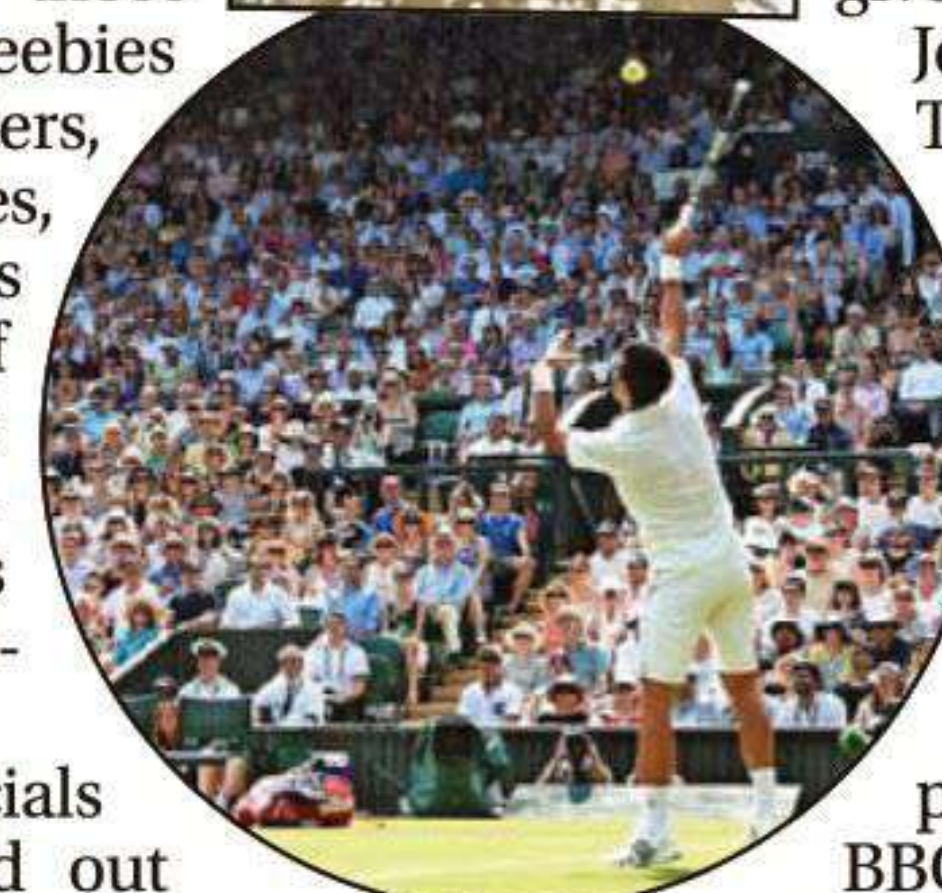

Labour's Lord Bassam, who was caught up in an expenses scandal five years ago, was among Parliamentarians given tickets.

Joe Ventre, of the TaxPayers' Alliance, said: "BBC bosses do very well out of these Corporation comps."

But a BBC spokesman said: "These tickets are provided to the BBC as part of the rights contract we have with Wimbledon and there is no cost to the licence fee payer.

"Parliamentarians are invited as part of a broader visit to see broadcasting facilities and discuss media issues."

KATY STILL WEDDY

KATY Perry says that she is still planning to marry Orlando Bloom, even though they have been engaged for more than three years.

The singer, 37, said: "I mean, there is still a plan, but the location is challenging."

"But I love a big celebration. I am all about big, fun, exotic, great celebrations. So, hopefully soon."

The keen photographer, from Lowestoft, Suffolk, explained: "The deer was just trying its luck attempting to steal food from the squirrel."

"The squirrel kept its food, but it was a friendly encounter."

SEX STOP: Train driver

Ticket to a saucy ride

TRAIN drivers are the most likely folk to romp with someone from work.

Nearly a third (30%) confessed to a one-night stand with a railway colleague.

They came top in a poll which also revealed that sports centre staff (6%) are least likely to have a fling.

In total, 16% of workers admitted having sex with a colleague in the survey of 2,000 UK workers by events firm AYRE.

Train driver John Scott, 49, said he had never had a one-night stand but knew lots of staff who had.

The married father-of-two, of Birmingham, said: "I've seen plenty of drivers copping off with other drivers or station staff."

"It's usually after a trip to the pub after a hard day."

"You see them sneaking off early and then coming in the next day looking very sheepish."

Mum feared she would go blind MY BROW TINTING ALLERGY HORROR

Pictures: SWNS

BURNING: Megan after the eyebrow tint and, below, well again with kids

A WOMAN ended up in hospital after suffering a horrific allergic reaction to getting her eyebrows tinted.

Megan Francis, 23, says she was in excruciating pain after having them threaded and coloured.

The mum-of-two started to worry about the cosmetic procedure when she experienced an "intense burning sensation" in her brows and face.

Three days later, her face had swollen so severely that she was unable to see and had to go to hospital.

Megan's eyebrow appointment took half an hour, but her allergic reaction was so severe that it took nearly a month to heal, she said.

She added: "It felt as though my face was cooking."

"It was so painful and so scary. I had no idea what was happening to me."

"My mum gets her eyebrows tinted and threaded all the time, so I assumed it would be fine. It left me really shaken."

Megan claims that prior to the appointment, at a Superdrug store, the beautician who tinted her eyebrows did not ask any questions or do a patch test.

She claimed: "It felt really rushed. They sat me down and started straight away, without asking any

by ELLIE FAWCETT
sunday@dailystar.co.uk

questions or checking that I wasn't allergic." In the days following the appointment, Megan's face swelled so dramatically it scared her young children.

She said: "The girls were so worried about me, they couldn't understand what had happened to my face."

"They were so distressed at nursery that their teachers called me to find out what was happening."

"It was so frightening when it started to affect my vision."

"I was worried that I might go blind."

Megan was eventually taken to A&E, where she was given strong antibiotics and creams to soothe the burning.

Megan, from Telford, Shrops, spent a day in hospital before being able to return home to recover.

Superdrug said they are no longer working with the supplier who performed Megan's treatment.

A spokesman for the retailer added: "We would like to reassure our customers that all beauty therapists that work with Superdrug are fully qualified across all of the treatments that we offer."

STRESSED OUT: Football fans

WATCHING football is the biggest cause of stress for most men.

survey found the second biggest worry for fellas is money, with 68% saying it kept them awake, while buying a home was third at 58%.

Fear of going bald is the fourth biggest stress, on 39%, with asking someone on a date fifth on 36% and concerns about penis size sixth on 30%.

Going on a first date came seventh on 27%, followed by getting married in eighth place on 24%.

Losing a job is the ninth most stressful thing for men on 20%, with gaining weight 10th and a worry for 18%.

Cosmetic surgery specialists longevity.co.uk asked 2,158 football fans for their biggest concerns.

Spokesman Kagen Seymenoglu said: "The results shocked us."

"We expected the most common causes of stress to be money, dating and work."

"What we didn't expect was the level of stress men go through watching their favourite team."

Frustrated, Rhae shot home and played lance-a-lot with Ser Criston. Shocking? Maybe. But rolling-your-own was common in medieval Europe. Even Victoria married her cousin.

Calamity Kat's wedding farce

No laughs, seriously...

BRITAIN'S Greatest Obsessions kicked off with an episode on humour, yet missed most of what makes British comedy unique.

Harry Hill chatted to bods about Punch & Judy, panto and Carry On, but didn't touch on Spike Milligan whose genius inspired Python and Harry himself.

Sitcoms were mentioned, largely so Liza Tarbuck could sneer at On The Buses - what ITV would give for Reg Varney's ratings today!

But not the folk circuit (Mike Harding, Jasper Carrott, Billy Connolly), music hall turns, variety comedians - other than Tommy Cooper - or working men's club comics.

Harry noted our love of the underdog but quickly moved on. Surely that's the golden thread from Charlie Chaplin onwards?

We got lazy chitchat and clueless sociological waffle. It was as funny as genital warts.

IN a week of sombre reflection and majestic grief, EastEnders did the unexpected - it made us laugh.

As geriatric love machine Phil Mitchell got set to marry Kat, the writers threw gags around like confetti.

Big Mo burst out of a giant wedding cake saying: "I wouldn't miss my grand-daughter marrying a Kray Twin, would I?"

Like Bake Off on acid, it was. But at least no-one had to sample her soggy bottom.

Kat telling Phil nothing would stop their marriage was funnier.

Cue multiple disasters.

Her wedding car was "a broken-down slapper mobile" - apt, really.

Alfie turned up wearing the same shirt he's had since 2002 and got her stranded on his clapped-out canal boat. He wanted a reunion, but that ship had sailed... unlike the boat.

Desperate fishwife Sharon made a play for Phil, calling Kat "a gold digger". He owns a backstreet garage, luv, not Halfords. The soap's pet agendas were here - all men are bastards, yawn, Mo claiming she'd almost got it on with Fat Pat in 1963, an image that'd turn Binnie and Della straight.

Small joys included a well-judged tribute to the Queen, Mo giving odds on a Kat no-show and near-mute barmaid Tracey declaring Phil was "the best sex I ever had". Hey Trace, get out more.

Mitchell has been on a longer journey than the royal coffin. A recovering alkie and crack addict, with four marriages and two close escapes, he goes in and out of chokey like a prison laundry van.

Yet somehow Kat views Phil as "security" for her family... baffling.

The great stud has bedded Kathy, Denise, psycho Stella, Mel, Lisa, Rainie and Shirley, who still looks sweet sixteen - in dog years.

So how come he's never hit on Honey?

Shazza's gutted. Don't fret, treacle. You'll get him back. Give it 'til Xmas.

● SHARON now! Is she on Matt Lucas' diet? She's half-woman, half-pout.

● WALFORD mysteries: Why does Freddie call Jean "nanny"? She wasn't Little Mo's mum!

Is Kat's "triangle choke" anything like the Singapore Grip?

How was there a "downstairs" on Alfie's Nauti Buoy canal boat?

And what explains 72-year-old Kathy Beale's looks, monkey glands or sorcery?

Grown up? I'm p..p..p.. ping off!

THOSE emperor penguins on Frozen Planet II had it right. As soon as their chicks are fully grown, they jog on and never return.

Imagine! No layabouts eating you out of nest and home, no bedrooms looking like the SAS have just raided... bliss. ● Hooded seals woo females by blowing pink balloons out of their nostrils. You don't get that on First Dates. Surely time to revive Pets Win Prizes?

Random Irritations

AMBER Gill exiting Celeb SAS so quickly, almost as if she should've never been booked. Talentless reality television berks reinvented as "celebrities".

Dear all Garden Bird Lovers,

As Autumn sets in, it is ever more important to feed our garden birds the very best! For birds that do migrate, they require a lot of calories to fly the thousands of miles they cover. For birds that stay at home, they will need a steady source of food to keep them healthy.

Thank you for your support,
Riana and Matt

WINTER'S WILDLIFE

STRIKING Wheatear

Delicacy from ancient times

A flash of dazzling white is the most you can expect from seeing a northern wheatear on the wing.

Such encounters invariably end with the bird vanishing across a fallow field or over a grassy hillside, its striking tail markings seared into the mind's eye.

These glaring features give rise to the wheatear's ancient and rather earthy name - one which has no association with growing cereal crops.

Early Anglo-Saxon settlers dubbed the birds 'white arses', combining the Old English words for white (whit) and backside (aers) as a nod to the pristine rump they flare to distract predators when taking flight.

September is the optimum time to find wheatears in open country or on coastal headlands as British-bred birds and wanderers from as far as Greenland and Canada head towards wintering grounds in Africa. Some birds cover more than 7,000 miles in autumn and have to perform epic, non-stop flights across the Atlantic.

Taking a breather was often a death sentence in previous times, when wheatear flesh was hailed as the "most delicious taste for a creature of one mouthful", according to the 17th century writer Daniel Defoe.

Trapping wheatears for fancy hotels and eateries became a lucrative trade and thousands of birds were slaughtered and sold for a few pence each.

Fortunately, the practice is illegal today but the plight of the wheatear continues. The decrease in rabbit numbers has had the knock-on effect of reducing the burrow-rich, grassy swards where the birds once bred across large parts of the country.

Hence, most birder encounters are with individuals too driven by the migratory imperative to stop and pose. Unless you are very lucky.

I would never consider myself a photographer but I was left dumbfounded by the results of recent point-and-shoot efforts on my local patch, pictured above.

Diarmuid's design in 2004 intrigued the Queen

Recalling with fondness when I crossed garden paths with the Queen

One of the extraordinary privileges for me of making TV shows and designing gardens for the Chelsea Flower Show has been to achieve a certain prominence. While my designs have quite often been wacky or challenging, I gained an audience and acceptance.

The acceptance took many forms. Mail from people who enjoyed what I did, requests for photographs and later selfies but also invitations to places or to meet people I could never have dreamed of when I entered this wonderful profession.

At the very top of the pile was Her Majesty the Queen, the great figurehead of Great Britain. I had the privilege of meeting her on about five or six occasions, mainly at the Chelsea

She was an extraordinary woman who loved gardens and took great delight, even in her final year, in that annual trip where we diggers, planters, designers and creators would line up, on occasion having been given the nod that we would be introduced.

In 2004, I created a Lollipop garden, a Willy Wonka inspired multi-coloured design which intrigued her... just a bit. I treasure the photograph of her delighted face as I rambled through an explanation of the exhibit.

In 2011, I lined up with family in tow as my daughter presented a bouquet of English garden flowers to the Queen whom she had knighted. It really didn't get much better.

If I was to think of plants to associate with the Queen, it wouldn't be fragrant pastel roses or a spring flowering double peony covered in droplets of rain. It would be the evening I marvelled at the television while two nonagenarians, the monarch and Sir David Attenborough, strolled through the grounds of the palace and looked at oak trees that had been planted on the birth of each of her children.

I will remember Her Majesty as a smiling lady who took delight in gardens and those who created them, a person who epitomises the welcome I received on this, your island.

JOBS for the week

■ Get your bird table cleaned and stock up on some food for the approaching autumn.

■ Evergreen hedges can have their final trim before winter.

■ Lift maincrop potatoes and store in a dark, frost-free area.

■ It's a good time to divide plants in ponds to increase stock if desired, or cut back overgrowth - you are aiming for around 50% plant coverage of the pond.

■ Get your compost bins or bags ready for collecting leaf fall which makes superb compost.

■ While the soil is still warm, these are perfect conditions for applying vine weevil-controlling nematodes into the soil.

■ Observe gaps in your border - does it need some late summer colour? Sedums, asters and chrysanthus are all good options.

■ Plant biennials sown earlier or buy them now - this includes violas, wallflowers and foxgloves.

PLANT of the week

Echinacea 'Sunseekers Red'

Coneflowers have lovely daisy flowers and are useful for providing colour in late summer and early autumn. This is a recent selection with rich red petals and a central prominent orange-brown cone.

Echinacea are popular in prairie planting schemes where their relaxed appearance mixes well with grasses and other prairie perennials. Plant in full sunshine for maximum flowers and if you have heavy clay soil, delay planting until spring as they tend to disappear in very wet soil. They don't like it bone dry either so water during dry spells.

Hi Diarmuid

I've been growing carrots this year - some of them are great but some have split open. Why would this happen?

Thanks, Bill

Hi Bill

Splitting can happen to root veg such as carrots but also parsnips, beetroot and radishes. They are fungus or bacterial infection.

Splitting occurs when the moisture levels are erratic, for example, during drought, heavy rainfall or over- and under-watering. Regular watering when they are growing is best practice, particularly during dry spells.

Electric elegance

Everrati, the company that specialises in electrifying classic cars such as Porsche's 911 and old Land Rovers, recently showed its wares at the Concours of Elegance show at Hampton Court Palace in South West London.

As well as a converted Porsche and Land Rover, Everrati had its electric GT40 on display. The GT40 replica itself is built by American firm Superformance with Everrati installing its own powertrain.

The stunning-looking machine has an 800bhp system with a top speed of over 125mph and stunning acceleration. It's a beautiful thing but although Everrati engineers have synthesised a V8 engine noise, it won't be quite the same as having a Ford V8 petrol engine in the back.

Everrati doesn't quote a price but even though it will be big, it won't be the millions that an original Ford GT40 would fetch.

MGB turning 60... in very good company

This week, something a bit different. We're going to celebrate a birthday, the 60th birthday of a car that we all know very well: the MG MGB. We're actually a day early because the car was announced on September 19, 1962, as a replacement for the MGA.

Compared to that earlier MG, the MGB was modern – it had a unitary or monocoque body rather than a separate ladder chassis on to which a body was bolted. Funnily enough, the Triumph Spitfire, another great British classic which had a ladder chassis, was also launched in 1962.

Initially the MGB was only available as a roadster, but two years later a coupe was launched and badged as the MGB GT. This was a remarkably practical vehicle featuring a rear bench seat and a tailgate so it was almost like a mini estate car.

I have always preferred the GT to the roadster, not just because it is more practical, but because it looks so good. The design wasn't done within MG's Abingdon home but by Italian masters of the art of car design, Pininfarina.

My Auntie Mavis had a mustard-coloured GT in the early Galanthus nivalis is one of the first flowers to poke its head above ground in winter through to early spring. These hardy dwarf perennials, with delicately fragrant, nodding, snow-white blooms bursting open from narrow, dark grey-green stems, are one of the most wonderful sights in the winter months. They love the dappled shade under trees and look even better when planted in drifts through grass, where they will naturalise easily and increase in number year after year. Grows to 10cm.

BMW and Mini will offer fully vegan interiors for the first time from 2023.

Even the cars' steering wheels will be wrapped in a non-animal material. Apparently it will feel like leather and will look like it as well, apart from a slightly different grain pattern.

In other areas, new types of materials and substances will replace those used today so that the total content of future cars derived from animals will be no more than 1%.

Your Parking Space, the company that facilitates households renting out driveway space, has revealed that those who have an EV charging point on their driveway are making on average £1,020 a year. Sounds interesting but surely the most likely time that people are going to want to charge their EV is at night when the electricity is at its cheapest? Which is exactly the same time the driveway owner will want to charge his or her own car.

MGBs were a huge hit with US drivers

1970s and I remember her picking me up from school in it.

Compared to the Escorts and Morris Minors collecting other kids, it was super cool. It also helped that Auntie drove extremely quickly, always and everywhere.

The car felt fast for the day but in reality it wasn't that quick because its clunky 1,800cc engine was heavy and had its origins in an engine designed in 1947.

MG had a go at putting a 3.0-litre straight-six into the car in 1967 (and called the result the MGC) but that engine was even heavier and spoiled the car's handling. Our new king's first car was an MGC GT and Charles subsequently passed it on to his oldest son.

MG had a much better idea in 1973 when it put the 3.5-litre V8 from the Range Rover into the MGB GT. Although it had twice the number of cylinders as the regular engine, the alloy V8 was 20kg lighter.

One of my neighbours bought a brand new MGB GT V8 and I coveted it badly, mainly because of the noise it made. MG only came up with right-hand drive V8s and only GTs, but an enterprising engineer called Ken Costello developed and sold a V8 roadster off his own bat.

Our neighbour's V8 was a rubber bumper version. In the latter part of 1974, MG had redesigned the MGB to meet American crash regulations.

Not only were the unsightly rubber bumpers fitted, but because the headlamps were too low and British Leyland didn't want to redesign the car's front end, it raised the suspension an inch, which didn't help the car's handling.

The journalists who drove those cars, which were built up until 1980 when production of the MGB ended, were very critical of the car. I worked with many of them when I started at a car magazine in the late 1980s and their poor opinion of the MGB influenced me.

It shouldn't have done because up until then I'd loved the car all my life.

Not only is the MGB a great-looking car, and superb to drive in V8 GT form, it's the simplest of all classic cars to own if you live in the UK and pretty straightforward wherever you live in the world.

Almost all parts are available new, even body shells, and are not expensive. Best of all, MGBs, both roadster and coupe, are still very affordable. The V8 models have increased in value over the past few years but even so, fine examples come up for not much over £20,000.

You'll pick up a useable roadster for well under £10,000.

The year 1962 was a very special year for British cars because not only were the MG MGB and Triumph Spitfire launched, but also the Lotus Elan and legendary AC Cobra.

It is also the year that your esteemed motoring correspondent was born. A truly vintage year for British motoring!

Dob just the job

The order books are open for Fiat's new Doblo van. Available for the first time is an electric model called the E-Doblo which costs from £27,865 after the plug-in electric van grant, but without VAT.

Fitted with a 50kW battery the E-Doblo has a range of up to 175 miles.

The conventional Doblo range starts at £18,855 plus VAT with a choice of either petrol or diesel engines.

Two different wheelbases are available and either panel van or crew cab configurations.

A V-STROM FOR OFF ROAD

Suzuki is dropping the 1050 GT version of its big V-Strom adventure bike and replacing it with a new model called the 1050 DE. The DE will be sold alongside the standard bike but will be much more off-road focused.

It's been fitted with a 21in front wheel, longer travel KYB multi-adjustable suspension and the ground clearance has been increased by 25mm. Also, the DE gets a longer wheelbase (by 40mm) over the standard model and revised rake and trail for improved manoeuvrability off-road.

Both the standard and DE version of the V-Strom 1050 will be available early next year but Suzuki has yet to reveal prices.

TICKET TO PARADISE

Cert 12A ★★

In cinemas on Tuesday

You may think you've seen this one before. A story about warring exes forced to travel together to an exotic island feels like something that might have packed picture houses decades ago. But, while unashamedly old fashioned, this pleasant diversion feels perfectly suited for the troubled back end of 2022.

In roles that during the 1960s might have attracted Rock Hudson and Doris Day, George Clooney plays architect David and Julia Roberts, his art dealer ex-wife Georgia.

The battle of wits begins as they reunite for the first time in decades to watch their daughter Lily (Kaitlyn Dever) graduate from law school.

After some amusing back and forth and a bout of competitive cheering, the pair say goodbye. This time, they vow, forever.

But the gods aren't quite done with them yet. During a post-graduation holiday in Bali with her best pal Wren (Billie Lourd), Lily falls for dashing local seaweed farmer Gede (Maxime Bouttier).

Instead of coming home, she shocks both parents by inviting them to Bali for her four-day Indonesian wedding.

After finding themselves on neighbouring seats in the plane, the pair finally agree on something – Lily can't make the same mistake they made 25 years ago. So they hatch a plan they code-name “Trojan Horse”. They will pretend they approve of the marriage but secretly try to sabotage it.

Director Ol Parker (The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel) doesn't need plot twists or edgy jokes. He just plonks two A-listers in glamorous settings, sets up some amusing and mildly perilous problems and lets their movie-star charisma carry us through to his gooey finale.

With gas bills rising, war raging and monarchs changing, there's something comforting about a film as undemanding and predictably entertaining as this.

After a spate of roles playing English baddies, Ed Skrein reveals hidden depths in this slight drama about the friendship between a faded pop star and an autistic teenager.

Twenty years ago, Vince (Skrein) was the frontman of a chart-topping boy band. Now, he's busking on the streets of Peckham with a keyboard perched on an ironing board.

But he gets another taste of fame when a video of one of his street performances goes viral on social media.

The star of the clip isn't Vince but young autistic boy Stevie (neurodivergent actor Leo Long) who turned Vince's solo performance into an impromptu jamming session by thumping a metal bin with his drumsticks.

After tracking the kid down, Vince tries to persuade him to form a two-man band and perform a gig in a pub.

But first, he'll have to win over Stevie's protective mum (Eleanor Matsuura) who is worried her son won't be able to cope with the noise and the attention.

The plot is predictable but Skrein keeps the audience rooting for the wounded but big-hearted Vince.

REBEL REBEL
 Bowie through the lens of his back catalogue

MOONAGE DAYDREAM

Cert 15 ★★

In cinemas now

Here's another film that may sound a little familiar. Over six years after we lost David Bowie, we have yet another rockumentary about the pop icon.

But Brett Morgen (director of the great 2015 Kurt Cobain film) has something his predecessors craved – unfettered access to Bowie's extensive back catalogue.

This engrossing and wildly inventive film smashes the template of the music documentary from the beginning by opening with a lesser-known song from the later period of his career – Hallo Spaceboy, a great track from 1995 album Outside.

The next 140 minutes are a full-on assault on the senses as Morgen weaves candid home movies with little-seen concert performances and clips taken from films, some that Bowie acted in and others that influenced his career.

Other documentaries have made much of the various reinventions that marked his career, but Morgen's loosely chronological musical collage serves to give us a sense of continuity.

As Mavis Nicholson points out in a perceptive interview, Bowie used himself as a painter uses a canvas. And, to Morgen, Ziggy Stardust and The Thin White Duke are two sides of the same coin.

While we hear plenty from Bowie, his voice culled from various interviews, we don't have the usual chats with friends or family members. This is a film that concentrates more on the art than the personal life of the artist.

Slick editing links live footage of the major tours, taking us from early 70s Ziggy Stardust performances, to 1974's Diamond Dogs tour, to thrilling live takes of later hits such as Heroes and Let's Dance.

Morgen also focuses on Bowie's devoted fans and explores the cultural importance of his gender-fluid image. “You don't have to be bent to wear make-up,” says one gruff-sounding young devotee. In the early 1970s, this sounded dangerously progressive.

Not all of Bowie's greatest hits make the cut but Morgen finds room for a long sequence cut to DJ, a thumping dance track from 1979.

It sounds like it was recorded last week.

STRAWBERRY MANSION

Cert 12A ★★

In cinemas and on digital now

I suspect Bowie would have approved of Strawberry Mansion, a sci-fi oddity that blends whimsical humour with hallucinatory visuals.

The year is 2035 and government interference has reached new heights.

Now, everyone's dreams are recorded on VHS tapes so they can be pored over by tax inspectors. Dreams and reality begin to blur when tax auditor James Preble (co-director Kentucker Audley) inspects the nocturnal fantasies of an elderly inventor (Penny Fuller).

Though there's a conspiracy and a love story, the film isn't really interested in plot. This is more about talking beetroots, mice in sailor's pinafores and frog-headed waiters.

Not everyone thinks of consulting the tide tables before a day out in the car. But there are some roads in our island nation that are regularly more suitable for boating than driving. Andrew Eames discovers the scenic routes that could ambush your vehicle with an unexpected bath

Holy Island Causeway, Northumberland

There's something magical about an island that can only be reached when nature permits, especially when that island is called "Holy". As with Mersea (see next page), a proper road crosses between the mainland and Lindisfarne, aka Holy Island, but it is underwater twice a day for up to four hours.

Footslogging pilgrims can also follow a line of poles across the sands, a suitably mystical way to arrive on an island that was the cradle of Christianity. It is from his sanctuary here that Saint Cuthbert set out to spread the faith in the 7th century AD, and these days most of Holy Island's visitors are on spiritual retreats in a village of birdsong and woodsmoke.

The shell of the original priory, destroyed on the orders of Henry VIII, still stands. The castle, which sits up on a rock like the bridge of a ship, is a bit cavernous and lacking in furniture, but the view out to outlying islands is magnificent.

ONLY WAY TO ESSEX
Aerial view of Mersea Island

The Strood, Mersea, Essex

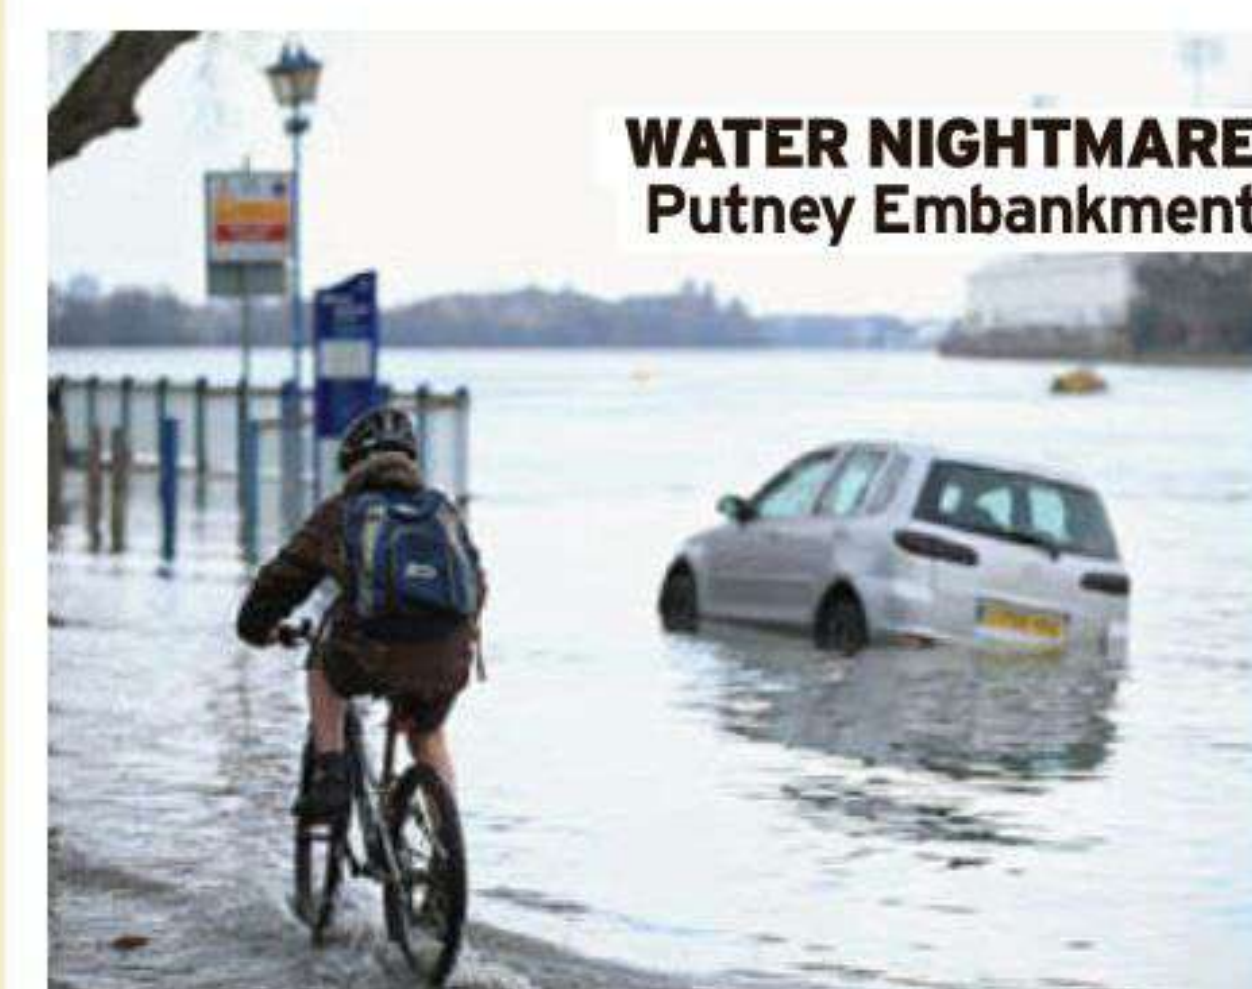

For much of the time, Mersea just seems like part of the mainland, but this is officially the UK's most easterly inhabited island, and its 7,000 "islanders" are proud of their status.

Certainly the main village has a peaceful, communal atmosphere, with great views out across the saltmarshes to the Blackwater Estuary, and a skirt of houseboats reached along rickety boardwalks. This was once a fishing community, and many of its visitors come here for its celebrated Oyster Bar, a plain and simple cafe and takeaway where all kinds of seafood is served for a very reasonable price.

The island's access road, the Strood, runs through a section of marsh and rushes, with warning signs alerting drivers to the possibility of water ahead.

In fact the road is rarely covered for longer than an hour, depending on whether it's a spring tide or the wind is strong.

■ Stay three nights in a static caravan that sleeps six in Mersea's Coopers Beach Holiday Park costs £409. parkdeanresorts.co.uk

WATER NIGHTMARE
Putney Embankment

Thames embankments, London

Urban van drivers don't make allowances in their delivery schedules for high tides, so you can imagine their annoyance at turning on to Chiswick Mall, with fine houses on one side and their gardens on the other, to find the road underwater.

It's quite a sight, bringing a touch of Venice to West London. High tides are regular invaders here, so many homes along the Mall have flood barriers, and locals are careful not to get caught out.

Just downriver on Putney Embankment, however, there have been some famous cases of visitors' parked cars not heeding the roadside warnings, and getting floated away by the incoming tide. The Thames Barrier is deployed in the event of extreme tides and storm surges to stop serious damage, but a little local flooding is quite normal in these parts.

■ Stay locally at Chiswick's new net-zero-carbon "hometel", Room2, doubles from £170. room2.com

Aerial

Davaar

Isle of Athelney, Somerset

Freshwater floods draw great bedsheets of water across the Somerset Levels every winter, isolating raised sanctuaries of land.

One such is the Isle of Athelney, once the site of a medieval fort where King Alfred took refuge among the marshes from Vikings.

These days, Athelney has the distinction of being the most flooded village in England. All the water may be annoying for us, but overwintering wildfowl love it, so this is a great place for birdwatchers.

Other church-topped islands here are Muchelney and Burrow Mump, imbuing this landscape with ancient spirituality.

■ Stay locally in the Devonshire Arms, a former hunting lodge on a village green in the heart of the Levels, with B&B doubles from £110. thedevonshirearms.com

Davaar island, Scotland

Davaar sits right at the mouth of the superb natural harbour of Campbeltown, the main town on the Mull of Kintyre. That means magnificent seaviews all around, especially across to the island of Arran. There is a hard track (the Dhorlin) across to the island, but you'd be best advised not to risk it with your car, and even on foot you should only cross three hours either side of low tide.

Despite this natural obstacle, there are several accommodation options on Davaar: a lighthouse keeper's cottage, a coastguard lookout and two glamping cabins, so the island's proprietors will transport guests and luggage across by 4x4 when they arrive, and when they leave.

■ Stay in the Minke cabin, named after the whales you might see from its veranda, from £135 a night for two (2 nights minimum stay). davaar.co.uk

Bosham, West Sussex

With its red brick houses and flint-walled church, Bosham is very much a typical Sussex village.

But if climate change and rising sea levels are going to follow their predicted path, then its location on one of the watery tentacles of Chichester harbour spells trouble.

Legend has it that this was the place where Danish King Canute sat on a chair and commanded the waves to go back. He was trying to prove a point to his courtiers about his powers. His eight-year-old daughter later drowned nearby and is buried in Bosham Church. Consulting tide tables would be good before trying to drive along Shore Road – it floods every high tide.

■ Stay in Riggers Cottage (sleeps six) and watch water come and go. From £855 a week. cottages.com

Aveton Gifford, Devon

There are two tidal roads in this corner of south Devon.

The first runs along the side of the river Avon linking Aveton Gifford with Bigbury. It is submerged two hours before high tide and covered until two hours after the tide has turned. A hazard is the fringing of soft mud for those who attempt to drive the road when it still has a shallow covering of water.

The second tidal crossing is from Bigbury out to Burgh Island, home to one of our most exclusive hotels. The Burgh Island Hotel's Art Deco detailing have made it a regular location for films. There is a causeway across at low tide, and an island pub, the Pilchard Inn, but visitors leave their cars on the mainland and are ferried across by a unique sea tractor.

■ Stay in the Burgh Island Hotel (if you can afford it), smallest doubles from £500, B&B. burghisland.com

HOTEL OF THE WEEK

BY DIMITRIS KOUIMTSIDIS

Parkgate, Cardiff

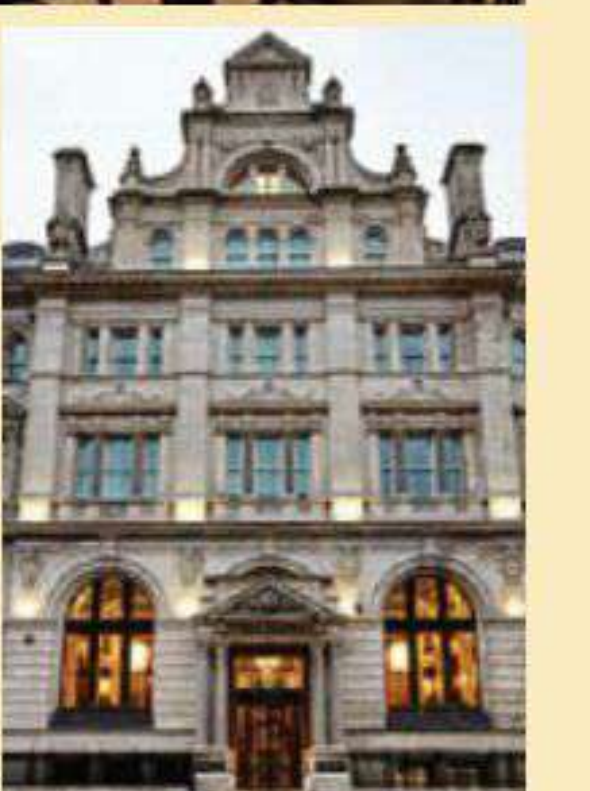

WHERE AND WHY

Set in the heart of the Welsh capital on Westgate Street, two of the city's iconic Grade II-listed buildings – the former Head Post Office and old county court – have been redeveloped and beautifully restored to house this glamorous four-star hotel which has been welcoming guests since October last year.

Dating back to the turn of the 20th century, the 170-room hotel oozes elegance and charm with its Victorian facade and the lobby's jaw-dropping vaulted ceiling.

Our room, a very spacious suite, was equally as splendid with a wraparound balcony, high ceilings, walk-in wardrobe and luxurious bathroom.

Huge windows offer stunning views of Cardiff Castle and Principality Stadium and an opportunity to stargaze before a perfect night's sleep on extremely comfy beds.

ON THE MENU

The Sorting Room restaurant, occupying the grand rooms of the old Post Office, has quickly become the city's chic new dining destination.

Its mouthwatering menu focuses on produce sourced locally – including meat from award-winning Trealy Farm.

We kicked off with delicious (and very generously sized) starters of grilled black tiger prawns and smoked octopus and crispy pork.

Then we tucked into rump steak and beef and ale pie for mains (starters from £7, mains from £18 and desserts from £7.50).

There's also an extensive wine and cocktail list – the Love Letter is highly recommended if you like your cocktails sweet and fruity.

WHILE YOU'RE THERE

The hotel's rooftop spa on the sixth floor is the place to unwind and relax, complete with heated pool, sauna and steam room as you look out over the city skyline – watching the sun set was particularly spectacular.

Just a drop-kick away from Principality Stadium, so the hotel offers an ideal base for rugby fans.

Pay a visit to Cardiff Castle and find out about its fascinating history dating back over 2,000 years.

And Cardiff's shopping arcades offer plenty of retail therapy.

Vote to win a Thailand trip

BY NIGEL THOMPSON

If a luxury beach break in exotic Thailand appeals, then join in the 2022 UK holiday "Oscars" and it could be yours.

Public voting for the prestigious British Travel Awards is on until October 2, with 67 categories covering a range of products and services.

To thank you for taking part in the nation's largest consumer-voted programme, all voters are entered in a draw for a getaway giveaway jackpot worth around £45,000.

Included in the bonanza is a Blue Bay Travel (bluebaytravel.co.uk) seven-night room-only trip for two people to the five-star X10 Khaolak Resort at Bang Niang Beach, where two restaurants, five swimming pools and a tranquil spa await.

The prize is worth £1,000, though flights are not included and T&Cs apply.

HOW IT WORKS

Register your vote online at britishtravelawards.com and vote in as many of the 67 categories as you like.

Only one vote is OK, for example, and you can return to the form to make changes up to October 2. Full T&Cs are there too.

HOT HOTEL

Hotel Chais Monnet & Spa, Cognac, France

BY BYRON MELTON

VIBE

Five-star Hotel Chais Monnet and Spa is set quietly off the road to Cognac's town centre, down a long driveway.

Courtyard gardens and trickling ponds give the entrance a calming influence, while each room inside is an opulent haven away from everyone and everything.

Staff are a pleasure to be around and make it a real treat staying in the best hotel in town.

STYLE

Chais Monnet's 92 rooms elegantly marry traditional French luxe and modern design. Some tell a story, too, thanks to 180-year-old wood beams from the site's days as a cognac cellar.

Expect bespoke Fragonard toiletries, marble bathroom details and oak parquet floors. Elsewhere, communal areas are a canvas for up-and-coming local artists to display their work. The talent on show changes every six months.

FOOD AND DRINK

Chais Monnet has two restaurants – La Distillerie and Les Foudres.

The former, decorated in rustic, industrial style, is your safe bet for a relaxed dinner.

Main course options here are hearty and classically French – and the desserts, naughtily rich.

Order the crunchy milk chocolate and praline and all your sweet-treat dreams will come true.

Les Foudres, which translates

as The Barrels, is a Michelin-starred tour-de-force. At sunset, rays drench its cathedral-like facade to give its dining rooms a magical glow.

Inside, new head chef Paolo Boscaro's tasting menu is nothing short of an ascension.

He injects his Italian heritage into flavour combinations you never knew worked so well, such as lobster and peach, and gnocchi and orange.

For breakfast help yourself, or order an incredible trunk of treats straight to your room.

SPA

Chais Monnet's spa offers treatments lasting from 30 minutes to an indulgent four hours using products from KOS Paris and Olivier Claire.

Salt and sugar scrubs, deep-tissue massages and facial treatments are all on the menu – and there's even options for younger guests.

When you've visited the thundering jacuzzi, hammam, sauna and sensory shower, a tropical-warm relaxation room awaits, with hot and cold teas.

WHAT TO DO

A clear retractable roof makes Chais Monnet's indoor/outdoor pool a must, whatever the weather. Follow your dip with a peaceful sunset stroll around the grounds to take in the hotel's stunning looks – the old cognac warehouse enjoyed a £60million revamp back in 2018.

The new glass pavilion above the swimming pool is striking, but the mansion-turned-office in the front garden is by far the prettiest photo stop.

Before or after dinner, saunter to the hotel's uber-cool 1838 Jazz Bar to sample one of its 200-plus cognacs.

If you're unsure, ask for it instead of whisky in a cocktail of your choice, or opt for a game-changing cognac espresso martini.

A DAY OUT

Trips to local distilleries are the best way to get the most out of Cognac and its lush, rolling backdrop.

Follow the serene Charente river on foot to begin your education at Hennessy.

Its slick interactive tour (from £21.20, hennessy.com) will sow the seed for your love of cognac, spanning the brand's journey from Irish family business to a global superpower.

Next, weave through green fields in one of Chais Monnet's adorable Citroen 2CVs (available to rent for guests at 90€ for half a day and 160€ for a day) to Renaud de Champ Contre.

Led by Bertrand and Sabine de Witasse, passion abounds at this family distillery.

They earn 80% of their income from the cognac they produce for Remy Martin, providing freedom to distil their own labour of love, Cognac Raison Personnelle.

Le Baume de Bouteville, 25 minutes east, is also worth a trip to see how a tiny team uses cognac to make vinegars loved by top French chefs.

And grab some rural je ne sais quoi, park the 2CV in a quiet vineyard for a very French trunk picnic.

SUMMER TIME GOLDEN FOR DANNY

LOCAL lad Danny Tudhope became the first Scottish-born jockey for 50 years to triumph in the Virgin Bet Ayr Gold Cup after snatching victory on Summerghand.

Tudhope, who grew up at Irvine in Ayrshire, was matching the 1972 achievements of Richard Hutchinson, successful on Swinging Junior for Nigel Angus who trained on Ayr racecourse.

"He's an absolute star," said a delighted Tudhope, "but I had a feeling he'd run a big race."

"He needs a bit of luck in running but that's the way he likes to be ridden. Once you get it right, he'll deliver the goods."

Victory looked in the bag for the Stewards' Cup hero Commanche Falls before he was mugged on the line.

Commanche Falls had also come off second best behind Summerghand when they fought out the finish at York last month.

Juan Les Pins took third, with the 9-2 favourite Khanjar out with the washing, finishing 20th of the 24 runners.

Summerghand was receiving a much-deserved victory after his 11th in 2018, fourth in 2019 and eighth last year.

Victory was a second success in this helter-skelter sprint for trainer

by CHRIS GOULDING

David O'Meara following Louis The Pious in 2014.

"He's been with me a long time and he's an old legend," said O'Meara (below).

"He's run here a good few times and hit the woodwork a fair bit."

"Liam Heard rides him out every day but I don't really gallop him."

"Like a lot of these good sprinters, they don't need a lot of work."

"He runs quite frequently and sort of looks after himself. He loves the game, and it was a great ride by Danny."

Earlier in the day, Paul Mulrennan continued his impressive strike rate for owners Helen and Norman Steel after making it four winners from four rides when partnering Barefoot Angel to victory in the Firth Of Clyde Stakes.

"We call him the 100 per cent kid," said Norman Steel.

Hollie Doyle also continued her excellent strike rate at Chantilly when partnering Eddie's Boy to victory in the Group Three Prix Eclipse for Archie Watson.

In June, Doyle wowed the racing world when making history at the track, after becoming the first European female to ride a classic winner with Nashwa in French Oaks.

BAULT CAN VAULT TO SUCCESS

JOIN the winning train aboard THIBAUT (3.20) when he bids for a hat-trick of wins over hurdles in the feature Friends and Family Remembering Norman Sharpe Handicap Hurdle at Plumpton this afternoon.

A winner of three of his last four starts over timber, culminating in a seven-length win over two-and-a-half miles at the East Sussex track, this lightly raced nine-year-old has really got the bit between his teeth.

And with Ben French Davis taking 7lbs off his back, he is actually a pound lower in the ratings today.

The drop in distance is of no concern as my nap selection has plenty of natural pace and showed that he remains in good form with a couple of fair runs over a mile-and-a-half on the Flat.

JACOBS' Crackers

FIVE-TIME NAPS TABLE CHAMP MOORESTYLE'S BEST BETS...

Add to the equation that his biggest rival Just the Man struggles to jump fluently and Stratford winner Sergeant needs to produce a career best by some way and the bay gelding should prove very hard to beat.

BAREST OF MARGINS (3.50) ran into a fair sort in White Turf last time out at Bangor when a distant second but off the same mark and under a feather weight, the six-year-old is the one to beat in the Strong Flavours Catering Handicap Chase.

The selection still has a bit of room to improve his fencing but an opening victory under rules looks likely here, particularly now that Coal Stock is a non-runner.

Earlier on, the four-year-old gelding LUSAKA (1.50) can teach his elders a lesson in the opening maiden hurdle, while a second wind operation may well be the key to INVICTUS DE BRION (4.50) landing the closing bumper.

At Hamilton, SIMPLE STAR (4.00) finished eight lengths behind Clan Jack at the beginning of June but on 14lbs better terms, I strongly fancy the Iain Jardine runner to reverse that form.

The key to his chance is jockey David Allen getting him to relax during the first half of the race.

Once that has been achieved, I expect the four-year-old to secure a second career success on his 15th start.

But an even better value bet at the Bothwell Road track could come in the form of GOLDEN RAINBOW (3.00).

In a competitive race for this class five level, the three-year-old can build on his comeback run behind Monsieur Kodi at Carlisle at the beginning of August.

An impressive winner of the race last year, EASY GAME (4.40) can successfully defend his title in the feature Kerry Group Chase at Listowel.

This classy eight-year-old should hit his peak this year and may have too much speed for veteran stablemate Kemboy and Call Me Lyreen.

BEST LONG SHOT

The step up to two and a half miles could be the key at Plumpton for Ben Pauling's improving handicap hurdler PAWPAW (4.20).

BEST EACH-WAY

The drop back to the minimum trip at Hamilton Park looks just what is needed for Jim Goldie's veteran gelding ZIG ZAG ZYGGY (3.30).

by CHRIS GOULDING

where Jack Mitchell partnered Royal Champion, Dusky Lord and Aimeric to victory

★ "We're having a good day but it's not always like that," said Varian, who landed seven winners in a day for the first time.

★ "I'm delighted and you never expect for it to go how it's gone so far but we ran some nice horses.

★ "There are big fields and the racing is competitive, but everything is clicking and it doesn't usually happen like that."

★ As for Sakheer, now 10-1 from 33-1 for the 2,000 Guineas, Varian added: "He has size and scope, he's very exciting."

★ "I was blown away by that performance."

HUNGRY FOR MORE:
Tom Curry crashes over the line for Sale

WE'RE RED-DY

Alex delighted as Sharks bite back

SALE boss Alex Sanderson feels his side got what they deserved as they bullied Bath, despite having to do it the hard way.

Sale sit on top of the Premiership after two rounds and this was a championship performance when they were up against it with men missing.

Sharks prop Nick Schonert was red carded for a high shot on lock Dave Attwood after just nine minutes – but Sale stepped up to the mark.

They even went down to 13 men for 10 minutes in the second half at the Recreation Ground when replacement prop Ross Harrison was sin-binned in the middle of a goal-line stand.

Bath then hammered at the Sale line but could not score and Jono Ross secured the bonus point for the visitors. A delighted Sanderson said: "They didn't kick stones which you can do after an event like that."

"They managed it well physically, played in the right areas and came alive in attack and showed the endeavour they have shown in the past few weeks."

"It is another performance worthy of all the work they have done in pre-season, that is what I am most happy about, that is what I am chuffed about."

"They get some worth for how hard they worked and how tight they are." Schonert's red came as the game has launched yet another clampdown on high tackles – but Sanderson will review the incident.

He added: "I'll look, if there are mitigating factors, maybe we will get him off a ban but as a tackler you have got to adjust. They are the laws, we've got to apply ourselves to them."

Bath, bottom last year, looked lightweight up front, apart from in the scrum, and lost the arm wrestle.

Head of rugby Johann van Graan moaned: "Against that physicality we lost the physical battle hands down."

"I am very disappointed – it is not the performance I was looking for. Accuracy was not good enough today."

Sale wing Tom O'Flaherty, who looks a top signing from Exeter, kicked off the scoring and hooker Akker van der Merwe bounced four defenders as if they were not there to make it 17-6.

Bath lost skipper Ben Spencer when he failed an HIA and trailed 23-6 at the break before Joe Cokanasiga got one back for the hosts.

Sale then threw on England's Tom Curry for his opening appearance of the season and the flanker scored with his first touch and then won a vital turnover as Bath threatened.

Tom de Glanville nabbed a consolation score for Bath – but they were never at the races and back rower Ross made it four tries, a bonus point and two wins from two.

Sam hit by fresh KO blow

ENGLAND flanker Sam Undershill will miss the autumn internationals after shoulder surgery, his club Bath revealed.

It is another savage blow for the 26-year-old who is expected to be out for three months after already having his year wrecked by injury.

Elsewhere wing star Nemani Nadolo, with two, and Chris Ashton were among the scorers for champions Leicester as they got a bonus point 36-21 win over Newcastle at Welford Road.

At the Stoop, Saracens opened their campaign by coming from 17-0 down to beat Harlequins 30-27 with Elliot Daly's 65th-minute penalty proving the difference.

Northampton shrugged off the pre-match loss of Wales fly-half Dan Biggar through illness to beat London Irish 38-22.

James Grayson and George Furbank stepped into Biggar's kicking boots with 18 points between them and Furbank's 71st-minute score gave Saints a try bonus point.

Bristol made it two out of two in the league with a 23-8 win over Wasps in Coventry.

Callum Sheedy's 18 points, including a try, proved the difference.

ROB BAXTER has demanded his Exeter team keep their focus today and not get sidetracked by the raw emotions swirling about Worcester. The financially-crippled Warriors only got the go-ahead to stage today's game on Friday after staff agreed to work the fixture, despite not having been paid. Baxter said: "We've spoken about the ifs and buts of what is happening at Worcester. What we have to do is make sure we don't get overwhelmed by all of that. We'll stay focused."

Tom Saint expecting easy night

TOM BRADY insists nothing will come easy to his Tampa Bay side against New Orleans tonight.

The Buccaneers have lost four of their five encounters with the Saints since Brady's arrival in Florida, following the end of his time in New England.

But the one win he has against New Orleans in Tampa colours was a key one in the play-offs – which eventually led to a Super Bowl victory.

And Brady (right) expects another tough

by MICHAEL HAM

battle today in Louisiana. He said: "They don't make a lot of mistakes, they make you earn everything."

"Every third down is important, every kicking situation is important, every third down in the low red area is important, turnovers are important."

"It's a lot of things that lead to winning and losing and obviously we haven't done a good job of that in the regular season. We're going to have to play a lot better if we expect to win."

And the quarterback, 45, knows it will take a full team effort to come away with a win to start the season 2-0.

He added: "I think it's just understanding the reasons for winning and losing in the past."

"You can look at them and look at why we won and why we lost."

"They're too good of a team to think that you can win one phase and win the game."

I'M FIGHTING EVERY DAY...

World champ Selby opens up on his mental health battles

MARK SELBY'S dark days are behind him. Or so he hopes.

The four-time world snooker champ shocked the sport when he announced issues with his mental health earlier this year.

It was something of a paradox when he did.

On the baize Selby, 39, is viewed as uncompromising and tough in a sport where every shot carries pressure.

But the mask didn't just slip in January when he announced, via social media, that he was "not in a good place" – it shattered on the floor into 1,000 pieces.

Scrape away the surface from this successful sportsman and Selby's is a tale of heartache, triumphing against the odds in an unforgiving arena.

But it's also one that could so easily have ended in tragedy.

Now, following six months of treatment, he is on the mend.

Selby said: "From where I was a few months ago, it's like night and day. I've been speaking to a psychiatrist for six months and his message was, 'Mental health issues don't go away, you just learn to deal with it far better'.

"When I spoke out I wasn't dealing with it well. In fact, I wasn't dealing with any of it.

"When I'm at the snooker table I'm in control. I know how to handle my emotions.

"Away from it I was anything but that. I thought it would blow over. It didn't – it just got worse.

"I was going through the motions, being beaten but not feeling anything. I wasn't bothered. That's when I knew I was in trouble."

Selby's backstory perhaps partly explains the suffering. His mum left home when he was eight years old. His dad died of cancer when he was 16.

That was tough, and the up-and-coming snooker star barely coped.

He said: "I grieved for about six months or a year when I lost my dad to cancer when I was 16. I didn't have a great relationship with my mum.

"I felt I couldn't go back into the house, knowing my dad wasn't there any more.

"So I moved in with a friend. But for about six months to one year afterwards I wasn't playing any more. I wasn't practising.

I didn't want to compete in tournaments.

"I wanted to curl up into a ball and hope that everything would go away. To the point where, at one stage, I did try to end my life a couple of times.

"My friend caught me once having taken an overdose. I thought, 'I'll take these tablets, fall asleep and that will be it'.

"I was found. I went to the hospital, they brought me round and pumped my stomach."

Selby will line up at the British Masters looking to prove a point.

He said: "I didn't do it for people to rally around me and put their arms around me and say, 'Everything is going to be fine'.

"It's great that they have but my way of trying to help myself was by speaking out. And I feel like it has.

"It will never go away, it will always be there somewhere. I feel as though I have it under control – for now, at least."

I thought, 'I'll take these tablets, fall asleep and that will be it'

TENNIS

Murray

Ageing Andy gutted home sign-off will mean nothing

ANDY MURRAY admits he doesn't know if today will be his final competitive match in Scotland – he just wishes it could be more than a dead rubber.

Great Britain's defeat to The Netherlands on Friday night confirmed their exit from the Davis Cup, having lost to the USA earlier in the week, and today's match with Kazakhstan in Glasgow will count for nothing.

That won't stop the crowds flocking to the Emirates Arena in the hope of seeing Murray, 35, in action.

In the wake of Friday's close defeat with Joe Salisbury to Wesley Koolhof and Matwe Middelkoop, former world No.1 Murray cut a dejected figure and admitted that motivation for a match with nothing at stake will hardly get the competitive juices flowing.

"I have not met a player that loves playing dead rubbers and dead matches," he said. "Yeah, it's difficult to get motivated.

"Obviously the way that we have lost these two matches as well makes that even tougher.

"It's a slight flaw with this format in that you have essentially, on the final day, no tennis.

"Well, there's tennis, but it's kind of dead, irrelevant, the results of it. That's what brings the energy and the passion I think from the fans and the players.

"I wish we were still alive on Sunday."

Murray, who played his 50th Davis Cup tie on Friday, admitted he doesn't know how many more cracks he'll get at the World Cup of tennis.

Despite this hugely disappointing week,

by DAVID MCCARTHY

captain Leon Smith has quality players in the shape of Cam Norrie, Dan Evans and new young star Jack Draper available – with Kyle Edmund on the way back from injury.

And in the doubles, Salisbury and Neal Skupski are world No.1 and No.3 respectively, even if Smith hasn't played them together this week.

The Scot went with the Murray-Salisbury partnership that did well at the Olympics and, although they played well, they lost both matches.

Murray added: "I think our games complement each other pretty well.

"But I know when you lose, it's easy to say – and I'm thinking the same thing right now – should I have played or should Neal have played or whatever?

"When you get to my age, I don't know how many opportunities I'll get to still be part of this team."

While Murray was facing Davis Cup dejection, he admitted that the news of Roger Federer's (below) retirement was another sad day for tennis.

He said: "Obviously he was an amazing player. I was lucky to get to compete against him in some of the biggest matches, in the biggest tournaments, on the biggest stages. At the time I probably didn't appreciate it as much but now, looking back, it's pretty amazing.

"It's incredible what he achieved and also what Rafa and Novak have done. "It's a sad, sad day for the sport again."

White-ball IPL dream is Top of the agenda now for Reece

REECE TOPLEY has enjoyed a golden summer with England in white-ball cricket.

Now he's hoping England's tour of Pakistan can take him one step closer to striking it rich in next year's Indian Premier League.

The Surrey star has established himself as a go-to bowler in both T20 and 50-over cricket.

He has also shown what he's capable of in the red-ball format since making the switch to The Oval.

But he's not eyeing a Test call-up.

Instead, Topley believes he's getting close to fulfilling his dream of landing a mega-bucks IPL deal.

"All my energies are going to be channelled into white-ball cricket from now on," said Topley (below), who's likely to lead England's attack in their tour opener against Pakistan on Tuesday.

"My goal is to play in the IPL."

"That's my biggest dream in cricket right now. I would obviously like to win the T20 World Cup with England but after that my focus is really on getting that IPL deal."

"I've had opportunities to go in the past."

"Unfortunately, people have said if you want to play Test cricket then you can't go to the IPL because it's not red-ball cricket."

"So, something has to give, and if that's red-ball ambitions then that's fine.

"My dream is to get to the IPL next year."

Given his form for England, he's unlikely to be short of suitors.

This tour of Pakistan represents a perfect opportunity for him to show his versatility on wickets which will be far less helpful than those he bowled on in England this summer.

For Topley, 28, the upcoming World Cup in Australia also offers him a chance to banish the memories of the 2016 tournament, when he sent down just 4.1 expensive overs.

He was on the outside looking in at the 2021 tournament too, not bowling a single ball as England were knocked out in the last four by New Zealand.

"We've got these seven T20s now and then a series against Australia, so we'll be going in with double-digits worth of games under our belt," he added.

"We're going to have to box clever to make sure that we're all fresh and firing for knockout cricket."

"You'd hate to be running out of steam at the business end but we've got a good squad and people who can take on responsibility."

"Hopefully the Pakistan tour will go well and we'll be ready to hit the World Cup running."

KENT ended a run of eight consecutive defeats in one-day finals as they overcame favourites Lancashire to win the Royal London One-Day Cup at Trent Bridge.

On-loan Joey Evison scored 97 as Kent defended a total of 306 for six by bowling out Lancashire for 285 to win by 21 runs.

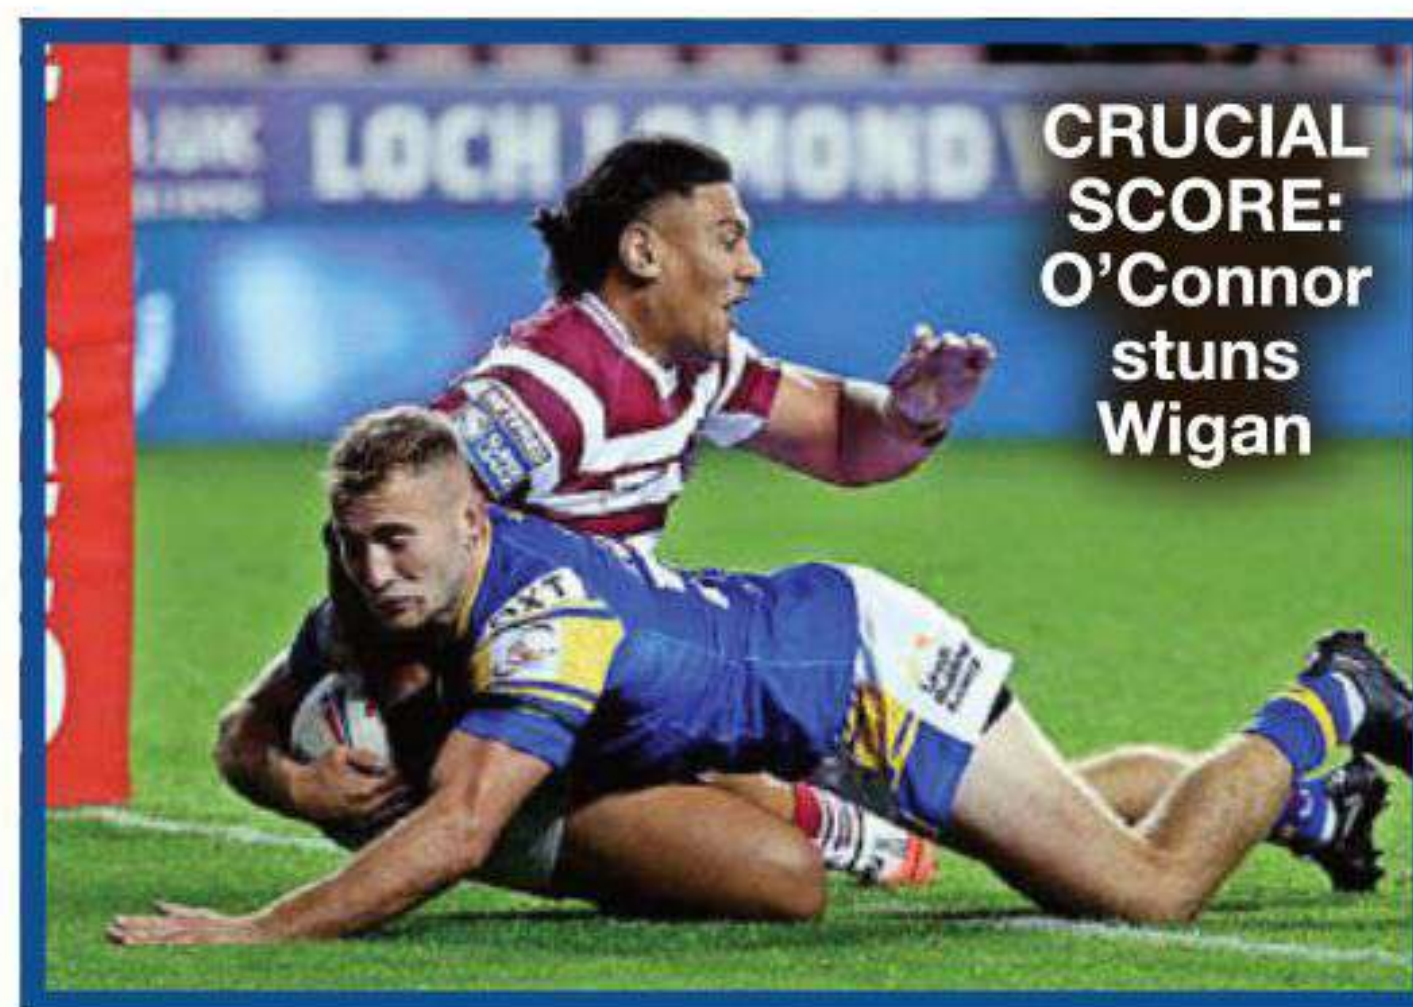

Kent's bowlers Grant Stewart and Nathan Gilchrist took three wickets each as the Red Roses' hopes of winning a 12th one-day final were ended, despite skipper Keaton Jennings and Steven Croft each scoring 72.

Joe Denly added to Evison's efforts with a superb 78 from 69 balls.

Ollie Robinson made 43, Alex Blake 38 and Darren Stevens – in perhaps his last professional match at the age of 46 – finished unbeaten on 33.

CRUCIAL SCORE:
O'Connor stuns Wigan

SO SPECIAL TO FOLLOW DAD SAYS JARROD

■ by DAVE CRAVEN

LEEDS RHINOS rookie Jarrod O'Connor admits it will be "surreal" walking out at Old Trafford – especially behind his dad.

The young hooker's try crucially put his side in front in Friday's epic 20-8 semi-final win at Wigan.

It means Leeds, who were 11th in April and crisis-torn, battle it out with Saints in Saturday's Super League Grand Final.

And it was announced last week that ex-Great Britain prop Terry O'Connor (below) has been chosen to walk out the trophy on the night.

A four-time Grand Finalist, the Sky Sports pundit was part of the Wigan team who beat Leeds in the inaugural Grand Final in 1998.

Jarrold, 21, wasn't even born then and – on the prospect of walking out with his dad at the Theatre of Dreams – he said: "I've not even asked him about it yet. I just saw it on Twitter."

"It will be a special occasion, especially if we get to lift it."

"I go every year to watch the Grand Final and the fact I'm now going to be in it is surreal. I can't believe it."

Neither can most Leeds fans, who feared their side might get relegated after winning just one of their opening 10 games. But little-known Aussie coach Rohan Smith has transformed the Rhinos since arriving in May.

They only sneaked into the play-offs with a win against Castleford in the last regular round. But now fifth-placed Leeds have knocked out Catalans and Wigan away to raise hopes of lifting their first title since 2017.

Much is down to their remarkable defensive resolve and O'Connor, who scored his first try in Leeds colours, added: "I just couldn't see us losing this game."

"But I also can't imagine playing at Old Trafford."

"It's something I've always grown up wanting to do and just knowing we're going to do it next week, I can't get it in my head yet."

Jonny's magic helps send Saints to the Grand Final

JONNY LOMAX stuck the knife into Salford to leave defending champions St Helens 80 minutes away from Super League immortality.

The England scrum-half (below) was outstanding throughout as Kristian Woolf's side proved too strong for a Salford side who have emerged as a respected force this season.

Two first-half tries from forward Joe Batchelor laid the platform for this impressive win but the architect was Lomax, who had a hand in all three of their tries.

Now Saints will face a Leeds Rhinos side with whom they share the record of three consecutive Grand Final victories, the men from Headingley having achieved the feat between 2007 and 2009.

The fact that Leeds beat St Helens in all three of those games – and have won four title deciders against them – adds intrigue to next Saturday's clash at Old Trafford.

But if Saints win, then they will stand alone as the greatest team in Super League history, with no side ever having won four Grand Finals on the spin.

Woolf, who is leaving at the end of the season to return to Australia to take up an assistant coaching role with new NRL outfit the Dolphins, is backing his men to write themselves into the history books in his final game in charge.

He said: "I thought Jonny was great and had a real influence on the game.

"People talk about who are the best scrum-halves or stand-offs in Super League, but I don't think Jonny gets enough recognition for how good he is.

"I think he would be an outstanding NRL player and, as a team, we've got the class to beat anyone.

"Grand Final weeks are fun, they're exciting, you have butterflies in your stomach, but we need to enjoy it.

"I can't thank the fans enough for the way they have supported me and my family. I've got to say the same about the players too. This is the fourth successive Grand Final and they will have played a different team every season.

by ROSS HEPPENSTALL

"That shows you how hard it is to get there, let alone win when you get there. It's going to be a cracking game against Leeds on the big stage."

Salford, already missing key playmaker Brodie Croft with a head injury, saw influential hooker Andy Ackers forced off with a concussion inside the opening exchanges.

The hosts, with prop Matty Lees leading their monstrous pack in the absence of injured England star Alex Walmsley, dominated the first half.

Batchelor, one of several England World Cup hopefuls in Saints' squad, scored twice from Lomax kicks and also had two other efforts ruled out.

Batchelor's first-half converted double and a Lomax drop-goal gave Saints a 13-6 lead, with Kallum Watkins replying for Salford when he finished a fine flowing move before the break.

After the restart, Ryan Brierley finished off a delightful breakaway to bring the Red Devils back within a point in the second half.

But Saints full-back Jon Bennison touched down late on to ensure the job was done for Saints, who had England World Cup hopeful Morgan Knowles sin-binned for an ugly challenge on Chris Atkin.

That could see Knowles banned for the Grand Final if he is cited for the offence but Woolf said: "I would be flabbergasted if anything came of that."

Saints had winger Tommy Makinson sin-binned for a professional foul in denying Tim Lafai a try-scoring opportunity and Salford coach Rowley felt his side could have been awarded a penalty try.

Boss Rowley said: "Maybe, if we had Ackers and Brodie Croft in there, it could have been different.

"But we fell just short and that's heartbreaking.

"Overall we didn't throw enough at Saints and we weren't as clinical as weeks gone by. You can't question the character, though."

GOLF

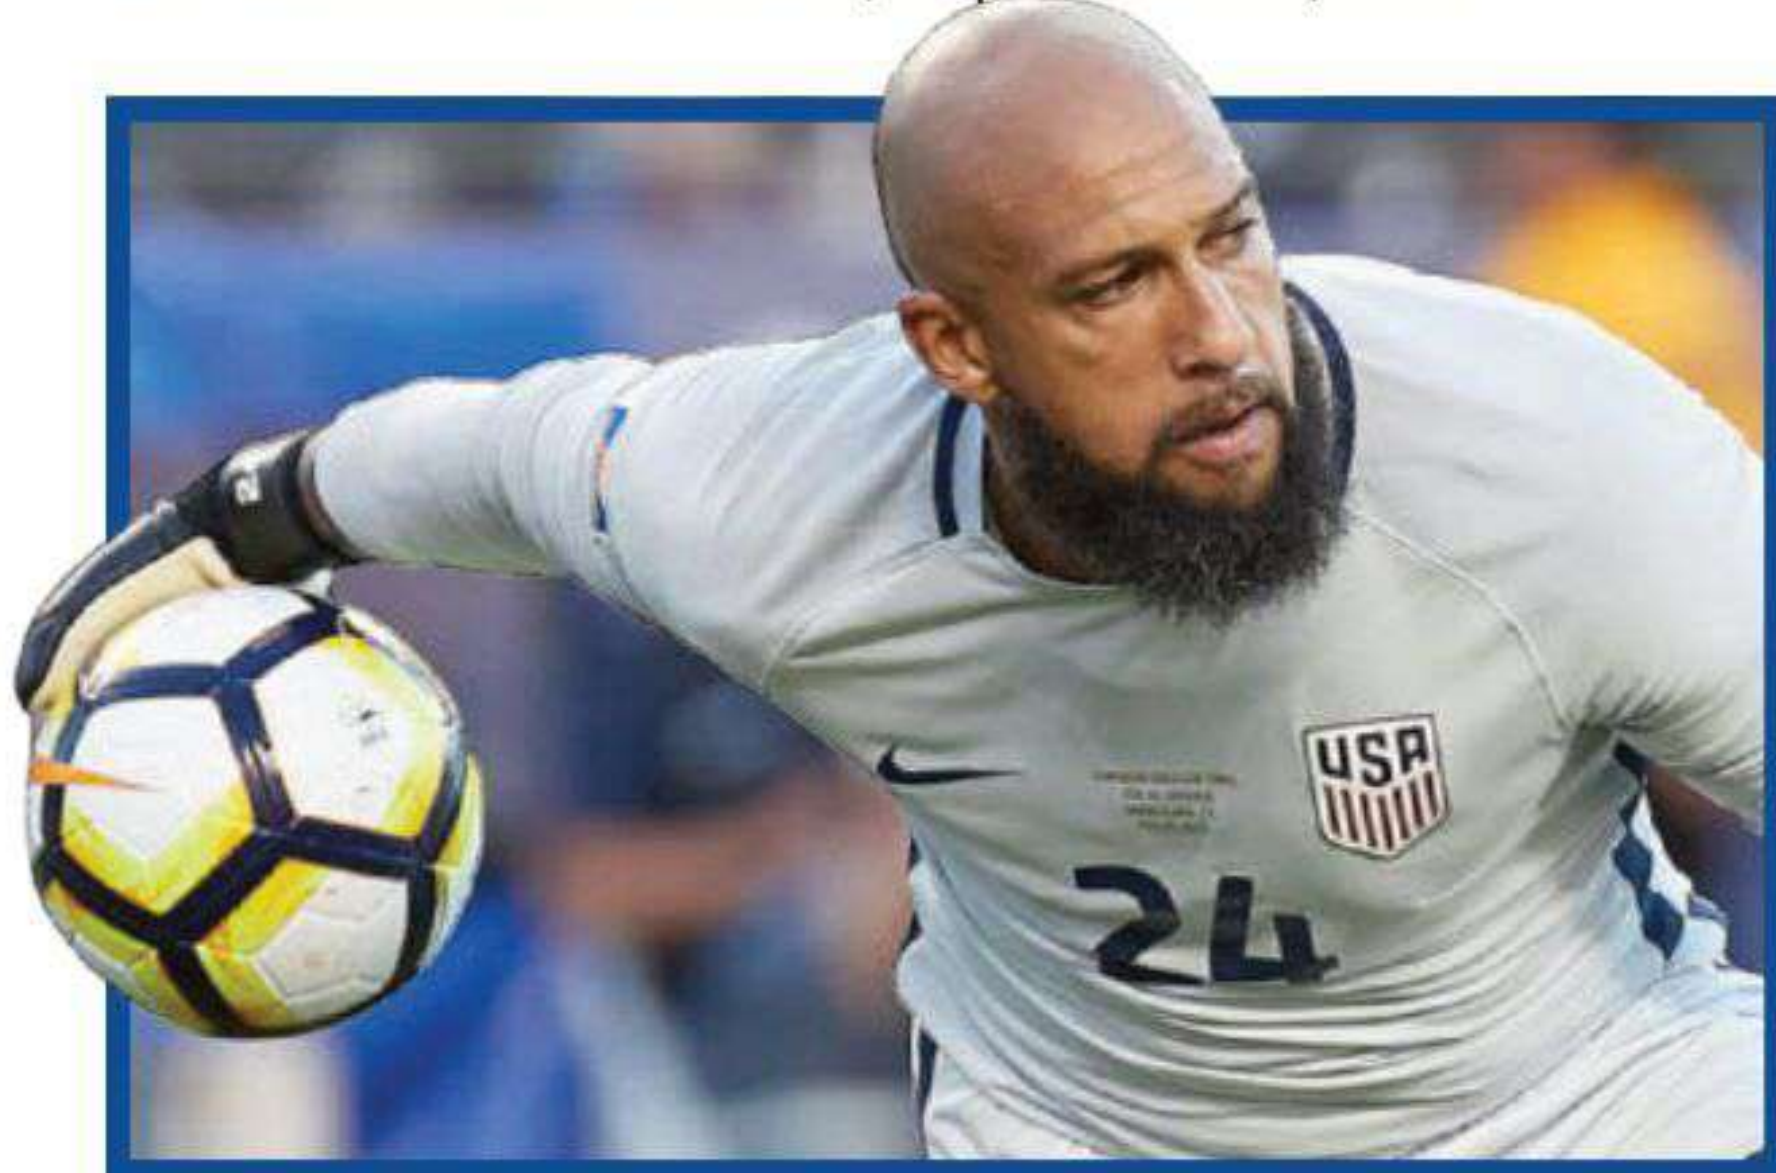

MATT FITZPATRICK takes a one-shot lead into the final round of the Italian Open today.

The US Open champion carded a 69 in tough conditions, with a birdie on the last giving him an edge over Rory McIlroy and Aaron Rai.

McIlroy also finished his round with a birdie on the last, for a 71 that included three bogeys and three birdies in Rome on the course which will host the Ryder Cup next year.

Fitzpatrick said: "We had the wind switch on the ninth and the golf course just completely changed."

McIlroy added: "I struggled with the putter. Thankfully I'm still in it."

HANGOVER: Tim Howard appearing for the US

Tim's warning of World Cup effect on Prem

THE World Cup will have a huge influence over the Premier League this season, ex-Everton star Tim Howard has warned.

Domestic football is going to be paused in the middle of a campaign – for the first time – to accommodate the tournament in Qatar.

As a result, match-round 16 will be the final one played – over the weekend of November 12-13 – before players called up by their countries travel to the Middle East.

The World Cup will then run until the final on December 18, with the Premier League set to resume eight days later, on Boxing Day.

And Howard (below) predicts the hectic schedule will have a huge impact on even the fittest stars.

“There’s a World Cup hangover for each player – not just physically but mentally,” he said.

“You then go away with your family and put your feet up – and then you have got pre-season.

“But even with that four to six weeks,

by ALEX WOOD

there’s still a hangover going into September.

“This year you finish the World Cup and there’s eight days to get right back in.”

Howard, 43, racked up 121 caps for the USA – a record for a keeper – and featured in two World Cups for his homeland.

He also spent 13 years in the Premier League with Manchester United and the Toffees.

And the former goalkeeper believes the unusual scheduling of the World Cup this year will widen the gap between the wealthiest – with the bigger squads – and the more cash-strapped Premier League clubs.

“Teams that are naturally going to do better are the ones with more money and bigger squads,” he added.

“They will be able to rotate more, have more substitutions and field players who didn’t go to the World Cup but are still incredibly talented – because they spent a ton of money in the summer.

‘BURNOUT’ FEARS

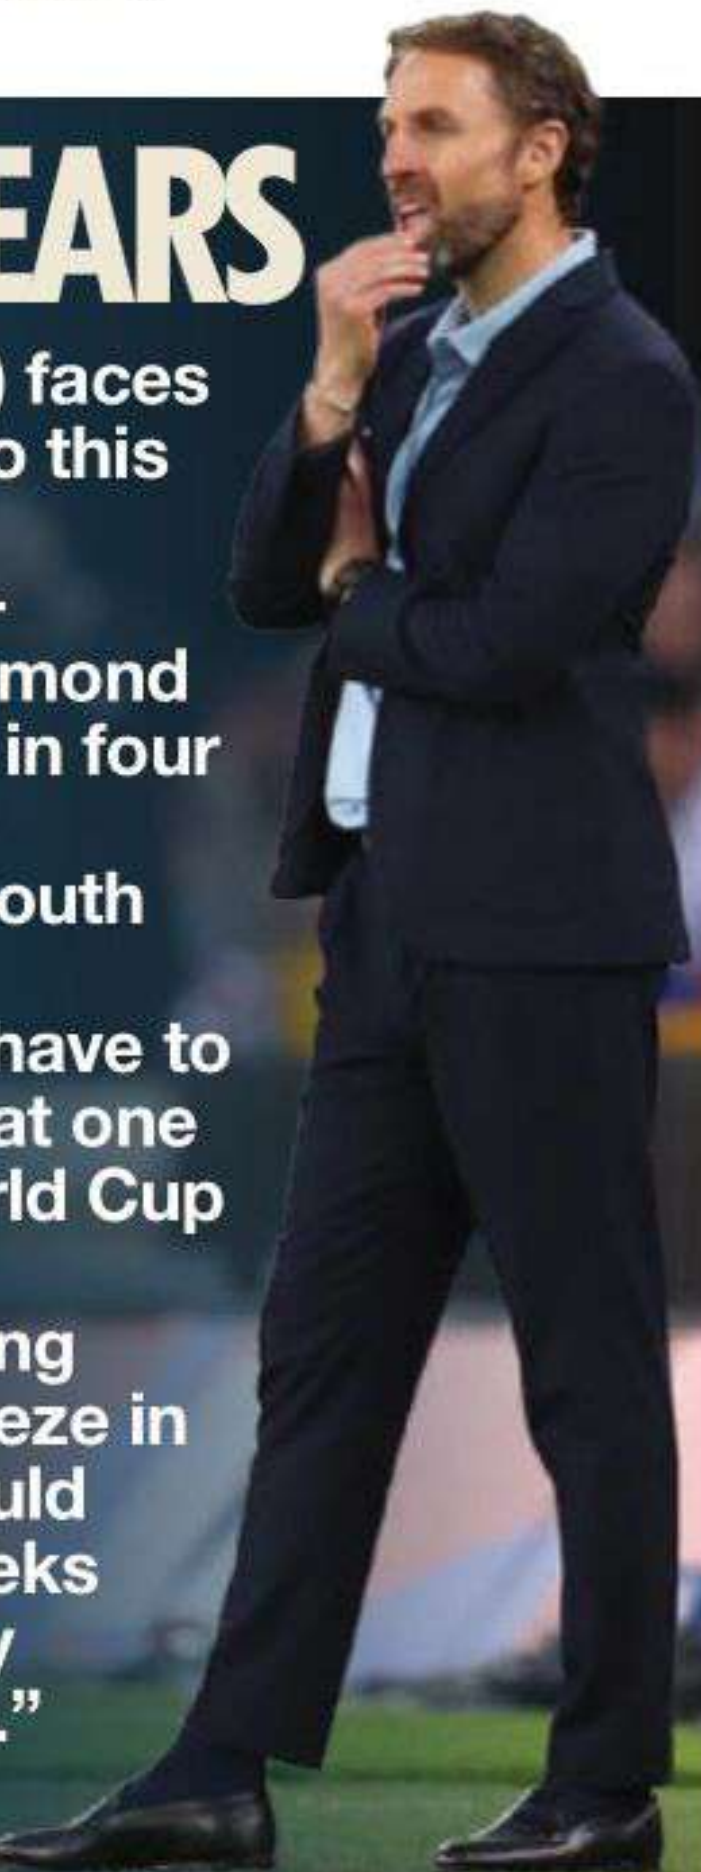

GARETH SOUTHGATE (right) faces taking a burnt-out England to this winter’s World Cup in Qatar.

That’s the verdict of world-renowned fitness coach Raymond Verheijen, who was involved in four of the last five international tournaments with Holland, South Korea and Russia.

Verheijen said: “You don’t have to be Einstein to understand that one week’s preparation for a World Cup is too short.

“The last thing that coaching staff should do is try to squeeze in that one week what they would normally do in two-three weeks as that would mean that they would overload their players.”

FRENCH LESSON

Every day a school day after Maupay takes big step up

TOUGH QUESTIONS: Maupay looks at what the kids are asking on a trip to a local school

NEAL MAUPAY may well have swapped high-flying Brighton for an Everton team yet to win a game this season – but the Frenchman is in no doubt that he’s taken a step up.

Maupay, a £15million signing from Albion last month, understood the scale of the club he’s joined even before he agreed to make the move to Goodison, with Albion ensconced in the top four.

The welcome Frank Lampard and his players were given as they arrived at the stadium ahead of Maupay’s debut in the

by SIMON MULLOCK

Merseyside derby only confirmed it. And now the striker, 26, has made it his mission to make the fans happy.

“This is definitely a step up,” said Maupay ahead of the clash with West Ham. “Everton is one of the biggest clubs in England.

“The coach welcome was the best I’ve ever seen. It was just so great.

“It’s only when you actually see things like that you realise how much it means to the fans and the people of Everton.

“I wouldn’t say it gave me more motivation – because I always do my best – but if you feel tired, or you are struggling during a game, that’s what you think about these people.

“They love the club and they would give everything to be on that pitch to play, so you’ve got to fight and give everything.

“I look at the fans and think, ‘We can make these people happy and proud.’

“I’m not talking about winning every game or scoring 30 goals a season. It’s about having the right mentality. If you fight for the shirt then the fans will love us.

“They travel every week or come to the stadium, so the minimum we can do is give them everything.

“Our job isn’t just about playing football. We can also affect people’s lives.

“I really love that because how many people can say that just by doing your job you make people happy? Not a lot.”

Graham Potter followed Maupay out of the Amex Stadium when he agreed to become Chelsea’s new manager – and the Frenchman is backing his former boss to succeed at Stamford Bridge if he is given time.

“He (Potter) won’t change

Moyes: My pangs at seeing Toff struggle

DAVID MOYES admits he felt a real pang of disappointment at Everton's struggles with relegation last season.

Next summer will mark 10 years since the West Ham boss left Goodison Park to take over from Sir Alex Ferguson at Manchester United.

But the Merseyside club will forever be close to the Scot's heart and so, naturally, when he sees them suffering he still feels it acutely.

"Yes, it

by TOM HOPKINSON

does give me a pang," he said. "Because there have been bits of it where I look back and remember my time with Bill Kenwright.

"He used to say to me, 'David, you have £5million a year to spend, that's all you've got.'

"I used to say, 'Fine, no problem, let's see how we can go', and we got a side which was competitive, tried to be in Europe, we got to an FA Cup final, we finished fourth one season...

"So if you're looking through the time, we tried everything we possibly could on a limited budget.

"Maybe over the periods you could talk about Everton having a lot of money to spend. Maybe this year would not be the case but in the past they have.

"So it shows you sometimes money isn't always the key to everything.

"But when you do get it you have to try to spend it wisely and we're in that situation at the moment.

"We have spent well at West Ham this year and we are hoping we have spent it wisely and are trying to show we have made good signings."

Despite his concerns for Everton last season, Moyes never felt they were going to get relegated.

He added: "I wasn't really that concerned because I felt Everton had enough, I always felt that Everton had enough good players to get out of trouble.

"The club, what they stand for there, they've been in the league for so long, I always felt Everton would have enough.

"I have to say, we were all watching the game at Burnley when things went against them.

"It was tight, but I never really felt that Everton would be one of the teams that went down."

Moyes is back at Goodison this afternoon with Frank Lampard now occupying his old seat in the home dugout.

And he knows the younger manager will have learned a lot from last season's battles.

Moyes said: "Frank has spent most of his career playing at the top end.

"It shows you another side of football and sometimes you need to see exactly what it's like and how to cope with it.

"You would rather not see it, but when you're a young manager you have to expect there are going to be bad times, if you want to be in the job for a long period.

"Frank handled it well.

He got through it.

"They have brought in players who will give them and the team some stability."

things overnight," said Maupay. "He will need time and if he gets it then I think he will do well.

"The question is, will he get time at Chelsea?

"When you're at clubs like that, you've got to win straight away."

Maupay, who arrived in England five years ago when he joined Brentford from St-Etienne before moving to Brighton in 2019, feels Lampard can have the same effect at Goodison.

He added: "Everyone praises Graham Potter for what he did at Brighton. Last season we finished ninth - but the season before that we finished 16th and were only safe from relegation about three games before the end of the season.

"So football changes. Just because we were struggling yesterday doesn't mean that tomorrow won't be good.

"We've got everything at this club - the fans, the structure, the manager and the players.

"I've been in the process at Brighton where we had a new manager and new players. We had two tough seasons.

"The third one was the good one. Last season, Frank Lampard came in and had to save the club.

"Now is the time for him to work on a system and how we want to play.

"We haven't had any wins yet this season, but when I look at the games I see a lot of positives.

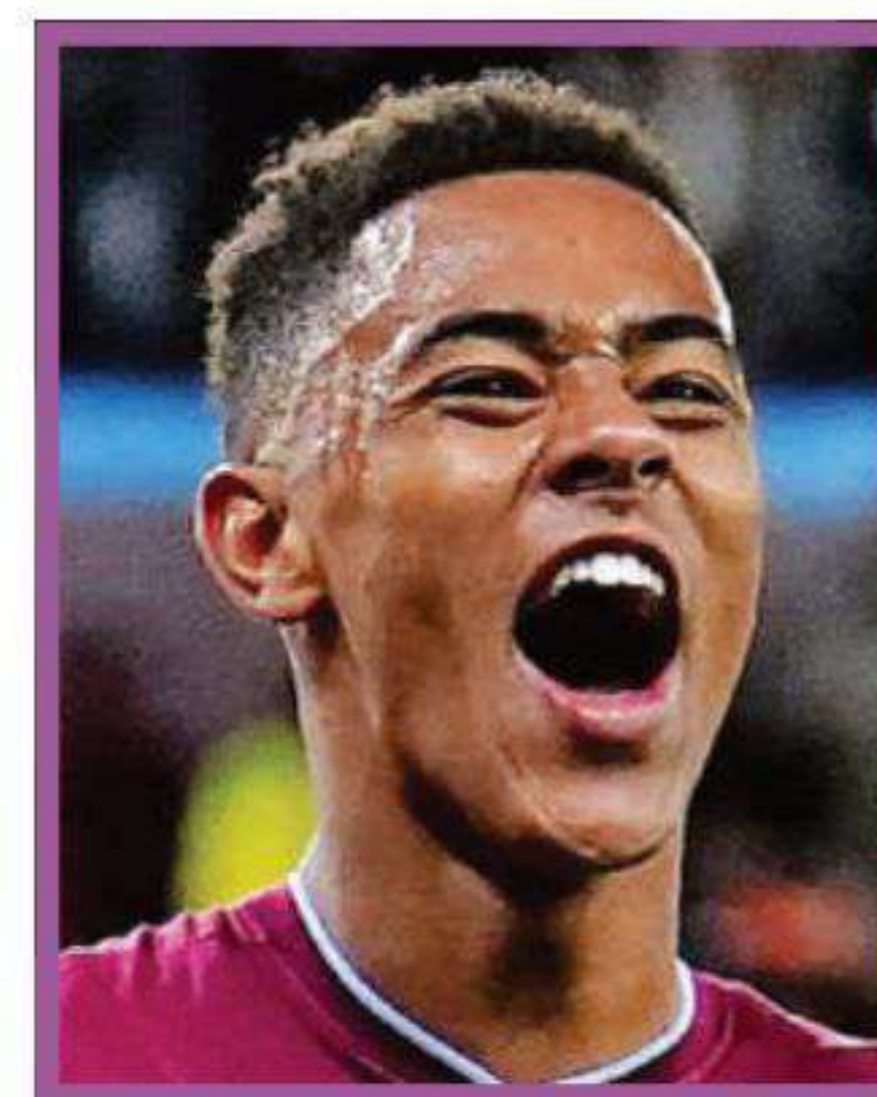

"At Brentford, we were winning, it was the same at Leeds, and we drew with Liverpool.

"I think it's only going to be a matter of time before we turn these draws into wins and the losses into draws."

PATIENT: Ramsey

Ram in no rush to take big step

by NEIL MOXLEY

JACOB RAMSEY believes time is on his side as far as England is concerned - and so does Aston Villa boss Steven Gerrard.

The home-grown youngster was named in Lee Carsley's Under-21s squad this week, having been an outside bet to make Gareth Southgate's seniors.

That now looks a stretch as the fight to make the plane to Qatar was ramped up.

But the Brummie, who scored the winner in a scrappy 1-0 victory over Southampton, believes he can make the step up.

Just perhaps not yet.

He said: "Last season, I went on a run with goals and there were a few shouts about the seniors.

"We haven't started the season well, I've been a part of that, so my full focus has to be getting back in the form I had and pushing up the table.

"I'm still young and I'm still learning - against Manchester City I was playing as a ten and this week it was different again, I was playing as an eight. I'm still adapting.

"And getting called up to the 21s is still a big achievement."

Gerrard went into Friday night's game against the Saints under pressure following a slow start to the campaign.

But a hard-fought point against Manchester City and Ramsey's winner against Saints has given Villa overdue momentum and the goalscorer a shot of confidence.

Gerrard said: "We want to build this around JJ - the important thing is we think he's got all the attributes.

"He's got a lot of development and growing up to do but we can build a really good team around him. I know people want to talk about the World Cup but I don't think that's fair on him.

"There's no rush. He will get there.

"But he's only just broken through, he's only just becoming a regular."

BARCELONA are considering a move for Chelsea star Jorginho next summer when he could be available on a free transfer.

The Italian midfielder, 30, has just 10 months to run on his Stamford Bridge contract and, unless he agrees new terms, he will be available to talk to overseas clubs from January.

Barca are looking at potential replacements for Sergio Busquets, who turns 35 next summer and will also be out of contract then.

And the Brazil-born Blues ace is seen by Nou Camp bigwigs as someone who ticks all the boxes to fill the void Busquets will leave.

CARLO'S GOT MAD

REAL MADRID coach Carlo Ancelotti said he cannot understand the increased media focus on Vinicius Jr after a week in which the Brazilian forward has come under close scrutiny.

Vinicius faced criticism for arguing with Real Mallorca players in last week's 4-1 victory and for his usual goal celebration, dancing by the corner flag, which led to a comment from a Spanish football panellist that has been interpreted as racist.

Speaking ahead of today's La Liga derby at Atletico Madrid, Ancelotti was forced to answer six questions about Vinicius.

"I don't know what is happening with Vinicius, for me it's nothing, he's playing football with quality, joy and happiness," he said.

Tadic still a fighter

by SIMON MULLOCK

FORMER Southampton star Dusan Tadic was lucky to escape serious injury after fighting off gun-toting thieves who tried to rob him outside his house in Amsterdam.

Ajax's Serbian winger, 33, refused to surrender when armed thugs pounced on him as he returned from a local restaurant earlier this month.

He did not inform his team-mates of the drama as they prepared to travel to meet Liverpool at Anfield in the Champions League on Tuesday night.

Tadic said: "Even though they had three firearms, I would never give up my pride. I was born in Serbia and as a child I fought a lot."

Call-up for reborn Toney's a far cry from early days

IVAN TONEY is the Premier League penalty king and on the verge of a first England cap – a far cry from his days as a Newcastle misfit.

The Brentford striker, 26, has been called up by England for their Nations League games against Italy in Milan next Friday, and then Germany at Wembley on September 26.

But it still pains former Toon master spy Graham Carr – the man who spotted him as a raw teenager at Northampton Town – that Toney's Newcastle career amounted to just four fleeting appearances off the substitutes' bench.

As a 19-year-old the Toon had forked out £250,000 for the Cobblers striker (right) on chief scout Carr's recommendation.

Carr had forged a reputation for spotting untapped talent after bringing the likes of Yohan Cabaye, Moussa Sissoko and Papiss Cisse to the club.

"Ivan was in the Northampton first team at the age of 16," he said.

"They were struggling financially and so he was given an early opportunity.

"Once I knew that Northampton wanted to sell I persuaded Newcastle to take him. He only cost them around £250,000.

"At Northampton over the years somebody decent usually comes through the youth set-up there. The latest example is the boy from Aston Villa who has just gone to Chelsea, Carney Chukwuemeka. Ivan was 19 when he went to Newcastle and had things to learn but he wasn't really given a decent chance.

"Sometimes the young players that go to big clubs like Newcastle get lost in the system.

"In the end it probably boiled down to the manager at the time, Rafa Benitez, not fancying him.

"Years ago Liverpool used to take players in and groom them.

"Signings like Ian Rush and Terry McDermott were nurtured in the reserves for 18 months.

"But at Newcastle if you didn't get in the first team pretty well straight away you were sold. Going on loan was his best bet and that didn't do Harry Kane any harm did it?"

There were loan spells at Barnsley, Shrewsbury, Scunthorpe and Wigan before he was sold to Peterborough.

Carr believes that at Posh, Toney finally felt wanted. "When he went there, Barry Fry and everyone put an arm around him and that helped him improve," he said. "He is now playing at Brentford for a good manager in Thomas Frank.

"He needed to feel wanted. He never had that at Newcastle."

And what about those penalties? It's 18 out of 18 for the Bees so far. "Two steps and a whack!" said Carr. "I can't remember him taking penalties as a young player but he could always finish."

DASILVA LINING AFTER EXIT

BRENTFORD midfielder Josh Dasilva says it would be a special moment to line up against his former Arsenal team-mates today.

Dasilva joined Arsenal at the age of eight and played with Eddie Nketiah, Emile Smith Rowe and Bukayo Saka before opting to leave for the Bees in 2018 in pursuit of more game time.

And he says his decision to depart the North London club was an extremely difficult one, but is happy with the way his career has panned out at Brentford.

"The decision itself was hard, but I had to think about my career," said

by DAN BENNETT

Dasilva, 23 (below). "At the time I didn't really see a pathway for me to get into Arsenal's first team.

"Eddie's chosen that path, I've chosen this path, Joe Willock chose to leave and has gone on to Newcastle. We're all enjoying playing in the best league and it's a very proud moment.

"I know how hard it is to be where they are and sharing that pitch with them playing in probably the best league in the world is second to none."

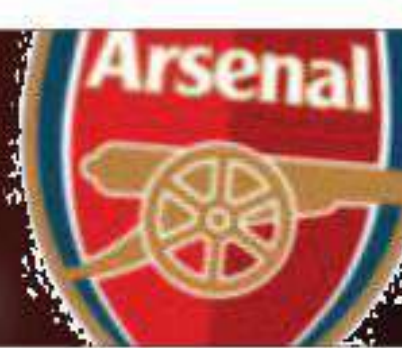

Dasilva endured a torrid time with injury prior to this season, missing 11 months because of a complex hip issue before suffering another setback shortly after making his comeback last season.

The former Gunner was initially told that he might not be able to play again because of the hip problem, but said he always had faith he would return and has made a fine start to this campaign, with goals against both Leicester and Manchester United.

Backline must cope with Ivan says Mikel

MIKEL ARTETA has warned his Arsenal stars they need to be ready for a battle with England new boy Ivan Toney today.

The Brentford striker's physicality played a big part in his side's victory over the Gunners at the start of last season.

His boss Thomas Frank knew that if his side could get at Arsenal they would beat them.

And after the Bees' 2-0 home victory, Toney put out a tweet which read, 'Nice kick about with the boys,' mocking the ease with which they'd won what was their first Premier League game.

Arteta was already well aware then that his side didn't have the muscle to compete with some of the stronger sides and it's something he has addressed in the transfer market in the last 15 or so months.

Asked if his team was better equipped now to cope with a more physical challenge from opponents, the Gunners boss said: "I will tell you after the game. I have seen a lot of their games, Toney stretches out his arms against any defender and he can hold the ball and make you feel like it's a physical challenge.

"I will prepare my players and they have to be ready for the battles, they have to win the duels.

"Physically powerful is the right word for a lot of the signings we have made.

"You have to be equipped physically in this league.

"That does not mean only the physical contact. You have to be equipped in your head as well, because if you don't read the situation you are always late. It is a balance you need."

One of the big boys Arteta has brought in is goalkeeper Aaron Ramsdale, who has again been called up to Gareth Southgate's England squad for the Nations League fixtures against Italy on Friday and Germany a week tomorrow.

And while Southgate has made it clear that Jordan Pickford remains his No.1 in recent months, with the Everton star missing this international get-together through injury there is a chance for Ramsdale to stake his claim to start at the World Cup.

The Spaniard added: "I hope he is the No.1, it will be great for us and it will be great for Aaron."

He has shown in the last year or so what he is capable of doing. We will be watching and waiting for that decision."

Asked how it would boost Ramsdale's confidence, Arteta laughed and said: "Aaron is pretty confident.

"It would be a good reward for him and what he has done."

With the release of former Arsenal vice-chairman David Dein's new book, former Gunners boss Arsene Wenger has been back in the news and so too has his 2018 exit from the club.

The Frenchman still hasn't been back despite being in charge there for 22 years and Arteta (left), who played under him, wishes that wasn't the case.

He said: "I would have loved to have had him closer to have the opportunity to open up and, in certain periods, just listen and learn from him and everything he has been through.

"But he did it in a way to make sure that whoever comes after him had the respect and space he believed was important and he honoured that."

PRESSURE: Steve Cooper

Cooper can't see Forest for team

by JOHN WRAGG

STEVE COOPER has the international break to find a team out of his £150million Nottingham Forest spend.

Boss Cooper is reeling after four successive defeats and 14 goals conceded.

It's not what Greek owner Evangelos Marinakis expected when he sanctioned a summer spend on 22 new players.

He has already sacked the manager of his Greek club Olympiakos and is renowned for his ruthlessness.

Successive home defeats to two clubs Forest were promoted with – Bournemouth and Fulham on Friday – leaves Cooper vulnerable.

Next up after the break is a trip to struggling Leicester and Cooper needs to improve his new team before that East Midlands derby.

"I've spoken about this with the lads, we're aware of it and I've challenged them to become a team," said the Welshman.

"That comes when you have real trust with each other. But trust comes over time."

Cooper celebrates one year in charge this week and a remarkable 12 months it has been, with him taking Forest off the bottom of the Championship to playing Premier League football for the first time in 23 years.

"We've lost four games on the bounce – that's not good at any stage," he added. "But while we're becoming a team, we have to stay with it in terms of points."

Forest have been ahead in both their last two games and collapsed, leaving them with one league win all season.

"That's on me. I have to make sure we improve," said Cooper.

Fulham climbed to sixth with their win at Forest and boss Marco Silva praised defender Tim Ream. He said: "He's been a top player and captain for me ever since I arrived at this club."

SERIAL WINNER: Walker

Champs will wait & see on Walker

■ EXCLUSIVE by HARRY PRATT

MANCHESTER CITY will wait until next year to sort out Kyle Walker's future.

The defender, 32, has 20 months left on his current contract with the Premier League champions.

Walker has been missing this month through injury but was still included in England's latest squad to face Italy and Germany in the Nations League.

And he remains first choice in the right-back role for both club and country.

But the City hierarchy have decided to delay talks about extending his stay at The Etihad beyond July 2024 until after the World Cup finals.

Although a regular under Pep Guardiola and having an excellent fitness record in his time with the club, Walker's age means that he is entering the twilight of his elite career.

That's why City are in no rush to tie down the former Tottenham ace just yet.

They will monitor how he copes with a possible five weeks' action in Qatar with England and then resuming City's latest bid for domestic and European glory.

Walker has 68 caps and he has been equally important to City.

After joining them in a then-record £50million move from Spurs in 2017, Walker has won four Premier League titles, four League Cups and one FA Cup.

Both parties are "relaxed" regarding the long-term future but, equally, are aware the matter needs to be addressed before next summer.

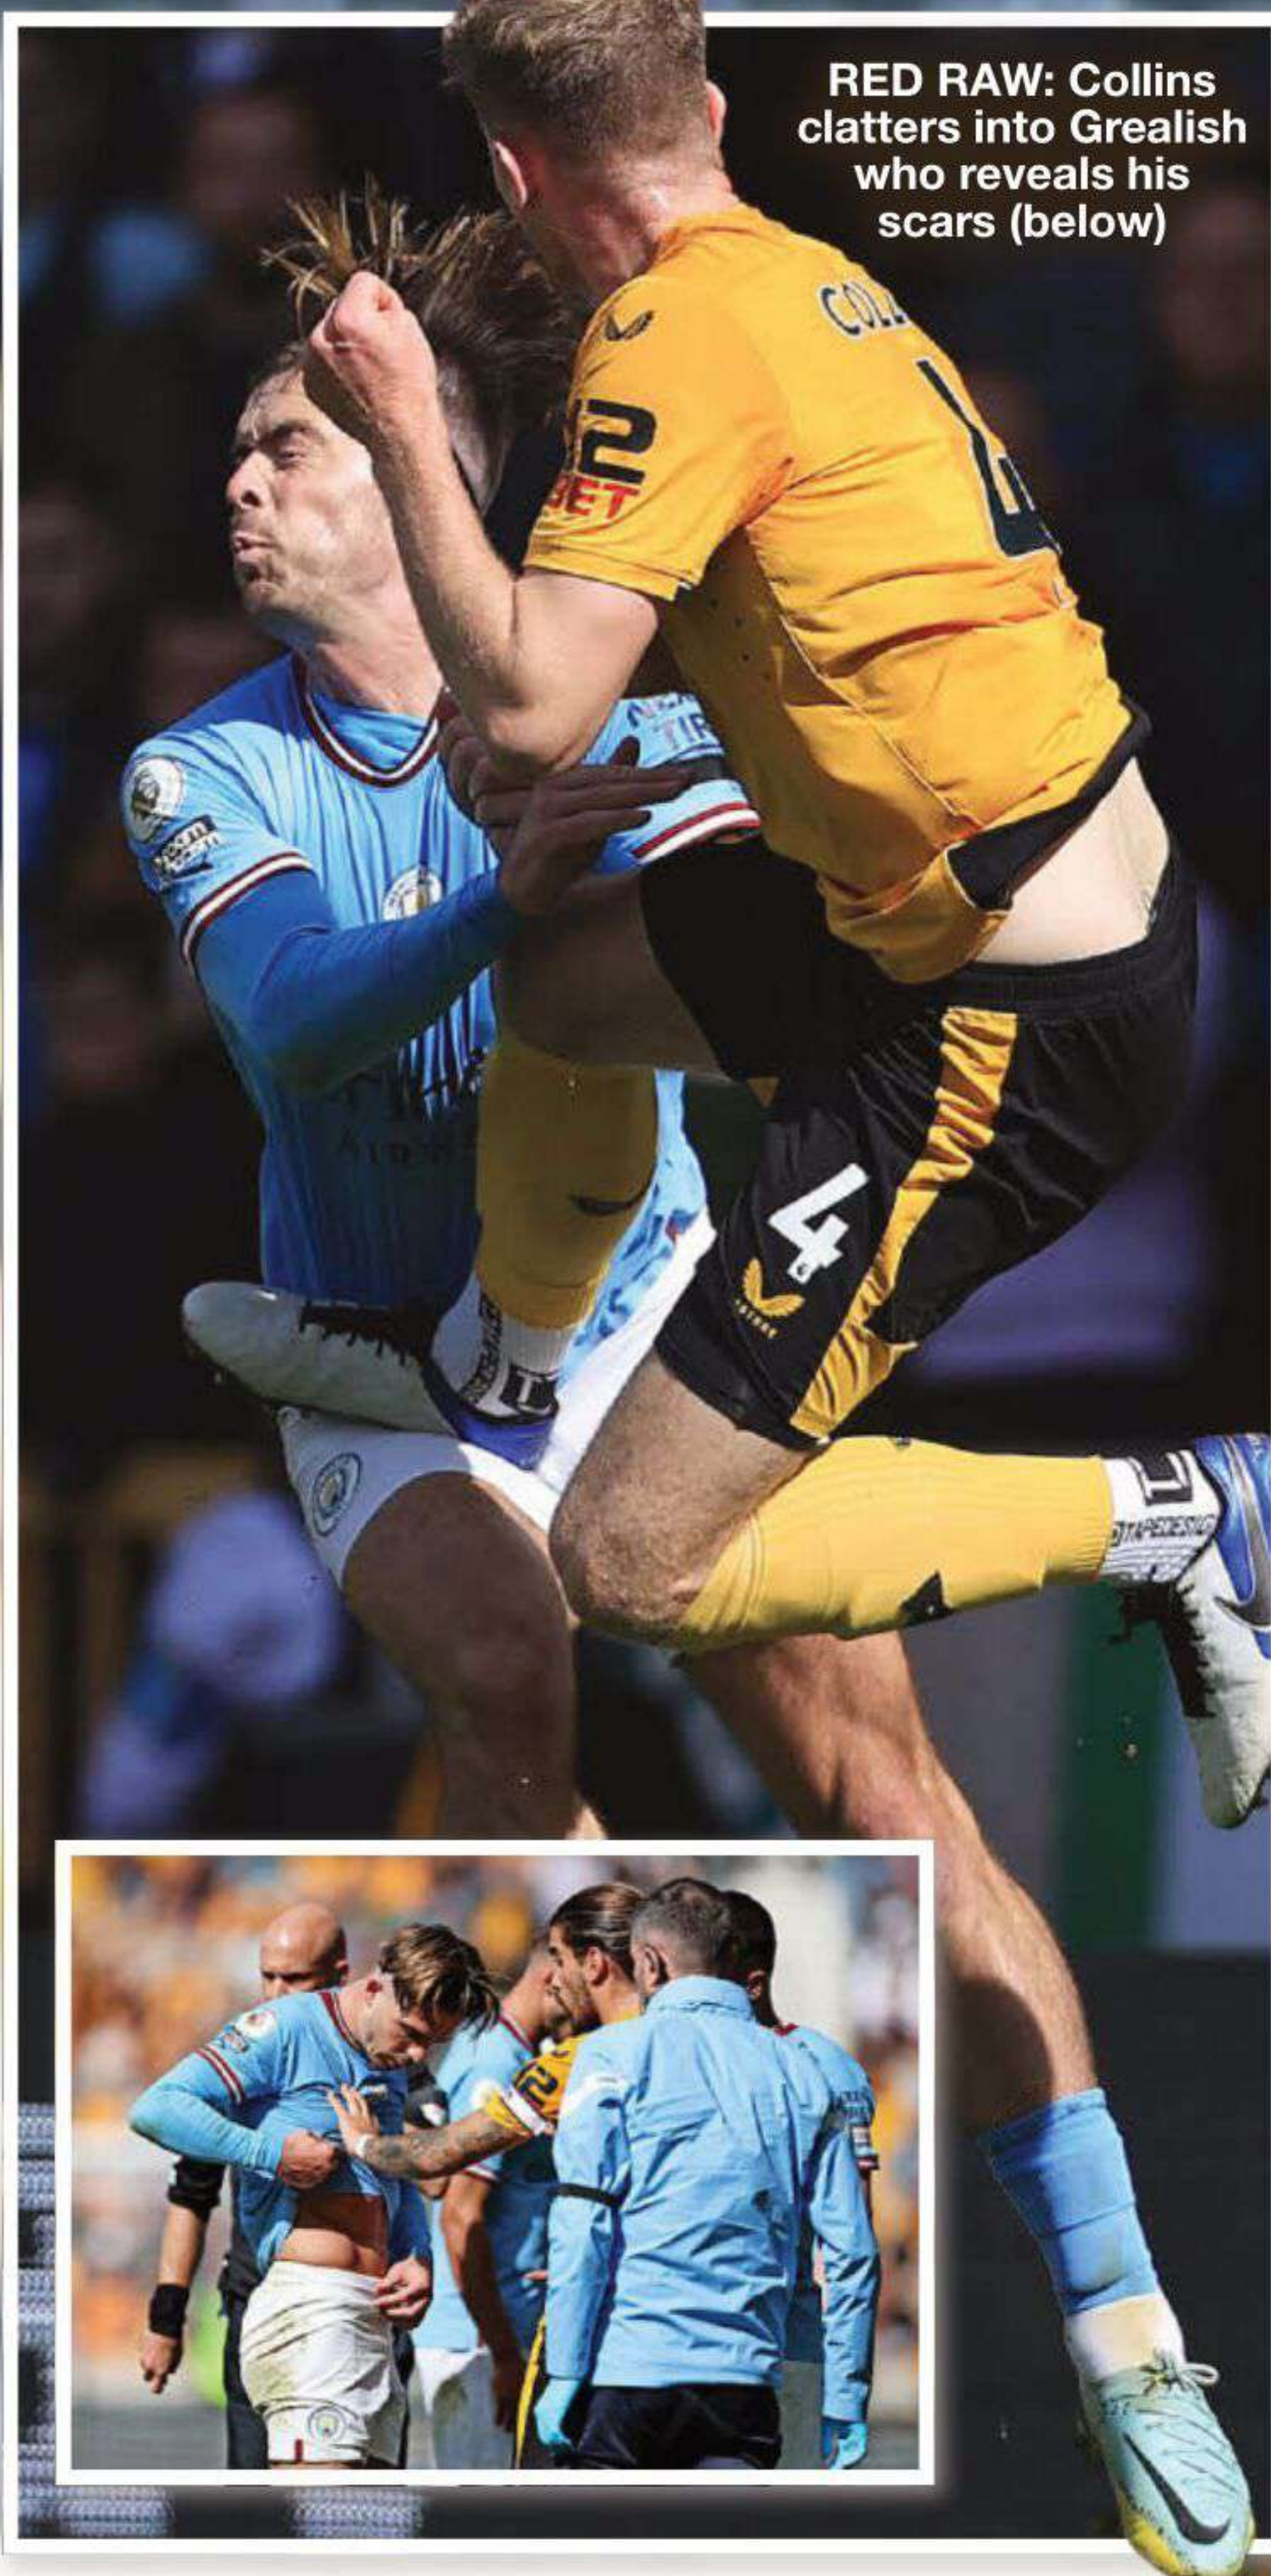

One consideration for Walker is to wind up his glittering career back where it all started – at his boyhood club Sheffield United.

His beloved Blades are riding high in the Championship and would appeal even more were they to secure promotion.

JACK AND Greal happy to kickstart

RED RAW: Collins clatters into Grealish who reveals his scars (below)

JACK GREALISH has confessed that he likes to take a bit of a kicking. He reckons it makes him play better.

Maybe that's why Pep Guardiola gave his £100million midfielder the nod at Molineux after a week when the boot really went in over Grealish's failure to give Manchester City enough bang for their buck.

It certainly worked. Perhaps Pep knows best, hey?

In fact, it took Grealish just 53 seconds to repay his manager's faith and answer the critics.

BIG MATCH VERDICT
by Simon Mullock

And how he enjoyed doing it in front of fans who will always have him down as a bona fide Villan.

Phil Foden and Kevin De Bruyne combined down the right in City's first attack.

And although De Bruyne's low cross was too strong for Erling Haaland as he arrived at the near post, it was perfect for Grealish to steer home his first goal of the season.

Injuries meant this was only his second Premier League start of the campaign.

But Grealish scored just six times and conjured up only four assists after arriving from Aston Villa last summer.

He knows that he will have to beef up those stats if he wants to be taken seriously in Guardiola's star-studded team.

The Brummie certainly played his part back on familiar West Midlands soil as City moved top of the table with some ease.

Wolves were forced to play the last hour with 10 men after Nathan Collins was sent off for an ugly challenge on Grealish that threatened to cut him off at the hip. But by then it was virtually game over.

Haaland had strode forward like a marauding Viking, pony-tail flapping behind him, to put

City two up in the 16th minute. The Norwegian certainly isn't struggling to live up to the hype and hysteria.

This was his 14th goal of a season that is already starting to look ominous for the rest of the top flight.

Haaland threatened to add to his impressive tally every time he got a sight of Wolves keeper Jose Sa.

And he also showed he is a maker as well as a taker of goals by brilliantly linking up with De Bruyne as the Belgian provided the cross for Foden to score in the second half. With Ruben Neves dropping back to play as an emergency centre-back after Collins' departure, Bruno Lage would have been worried that the beating could have become the kind of battering that might cost a manager their job.

But with City playing in second gear after the break, they only added Foden's smartly worked goal in the 69th minute.

Soon afterwards, Guardiola (right) sent on Ilkay Gundogan, Riyad Mahrez and Julian Alvarez as substitutes. Talk about flexing your muscles.

Molineux paid tribute to the Queen before kick-off with a silence that was observed impeccably by those fans who had taken their seats.

Unfortunately, it was broken by some City supporters who had opted for one more pint on the concourse and without the brains to realise the ceremony was taking place.

Wolves were one of English football's giants when the Queen's reign began 70 years ago.

The Old Gold lifted three championships during the 1950s and a statue of skipper Billy Wright stands outside the famous old stadium as a reminder of those times.

In 1952, Collins might have got the benefit of the doubt for the gruesome challenge that poleaxed Grealish.

He pleaded to referee

Anthony Taylor that when he smashed into the England man's stomach with all six studs it was accidental.

It may have been. But in the modern game it was a red card every day of the week and twice on a Saturday lunchtime.

Grealish took the trouble to lift up his shirt to show off the damage to home supporters who were suggesting he was faking it.

He looked like the real deal.

move to the champions from boyhood club Leeds during the summer in a £45million deal.

So far he has played just 13 minutes for Pep Guardiola's side and matters have now come to a head.

Medics have told the City boss that Phillips might need to undergo surgery to correct the problem.

And that means he will be withdrawn from Gareth Southgate's squad for the Nations League double-header against Germany and Italy.

Southgate is likely to give Phillips every chance to make the plane for the Middle East in November.

But there are now just seven weeks to go before he names his squad.

And there have to be questions asked about whether the midfielder will even have time to get match-fit if he goes under the knife.

His final campaign at Elland Road was disrupted hugely by injury and his move across the Pennines has not gone as planned.

Losing Phillips will be a huge blow for Southgate following the holding player's heroics during last year's European Championships.

He played a crucial role in the Three Lions' march to the final against Italy and was heralded for his performance alongside West Ham's Declan Rice.

Phillips was voted England's player of the year afterwards and his potential loss will be a huge blow to the country's World Cup preparations.

JACK GREALISH said ‘Thank you’ to Pep Guardiola after helping Manchester City back to the top of the Premier League. The England international poked home inside the first minute as his side romped to a 3-0 victory over 10-man Wolves at Molineux.

Grealish had been substituted by his boss (below) inside an hour during the 2-1 victory over Borussia Dortmund in midweek – admitting himself it “wasn’t the best”.

But the £100million man repaid the faith shown in him by scoring his first of the campaign and said: “It’s been a long time coming and it was nice to get off the mark.

“People have been asking questions – and rightly so. I should be scoring more and getting more assists. I do want to add that to my game.

“Obviously, with the money that was spent on me, I’m always going to have people talking about me.

“And Pep has been brilliant. It’s nice when he defends me.

“I probably have to thank him because he gave me the opportunity to play.

“My performance last Wednesday wasn’t the best – I’m thankful to him.”

HEUNG-MIN SON ended his scoring drought in stunning fashion with a sublime hat-trick and Eric Dier celebrated his England recall with a goal as Tottenham crushed Leicester 6-2 to move joint top of the league.

Rodrigo Bentancur's first goal for Tottenham was separating the sides in an entertaining tussle but Son, who started on the bench, exploded back to form with three goals in 13 minutes.

The South Korean, the Premier League's joint-top scorer last season, had not scored in Tottenham's first eight games.

Leicester took an early lead with a twice-taken penalty by Youri Tielemans but Tottenham hit back quickly with Harry Kane powering in a header.

Tottenham went ahead in the 21st minute as defender Eric Dier marked his return to the England squad with a glancing header from a corner.

Son said: "It was a top performance and I was really frustrated as well. The way I play I can do much better than I have been. I have been disappointed, the team has been doing really, really good but I was disappointed with my performance."

"I wanted to do my best for the team."

IT'S FUN IN

Spurs ace hits treble as he's HEUNG-MIN SON has had the kind of wait for a goal this season that only those who have queued at Buckingham Palace recently can relate to.

The Premier League's joint-top scorer last season had gone around 12 hours without scoring. And such was his lack of normal gusto that Tottenham boss Antonio Conte dropped him and put Richarlison and Dejan Kulusevski either side of Harry Kane against Leicester yesterday.

But Conte's decision proved just the kick up the backside he needed as the South Korean left the pitch proudly clutching the matchball after firing a 13-minute hat-trick in spectacular fashion. His goals came after strikes from Harry Kane, Eric Dier and Rodrigo Bentancur ramped the heat right up on Foxes boss Brendan Rodgers (right).

Although it must be noted that his side had a decent go for much of the game – and certainly didn't look like a team not playing for their manager.

They just weren't good enough to match a Spurs team who could afford to bring such a talent as Son off the bench. This was a cracking game and even though the home side ended up with six, Leicester actually had more shots.

The North London club just took their chances better, though, and fully deserved to win. The game exploded into life in controversial circumstances as the Foxes grabbed the lead after just six minutes.

Tottenham's players were aggrieved – and understandably so – when Davinson Sanchez was adjudged to have brought down James Justin in the box.

Referee Simon Hooper pointed to the spot and replays showed there was minimal contact.

But it wasn't a clear and obvious error – and VAR Andre Marriner did not feel obliged to send him to the monitor.

Justice appeared to be done as Hugo Lloris pulled off a cracking save to deny Youri Tielemans from the spot.

But this time Marriner did intervene, penalising the French ace for moving from his goalline, and the Belgian thumped home the retake.

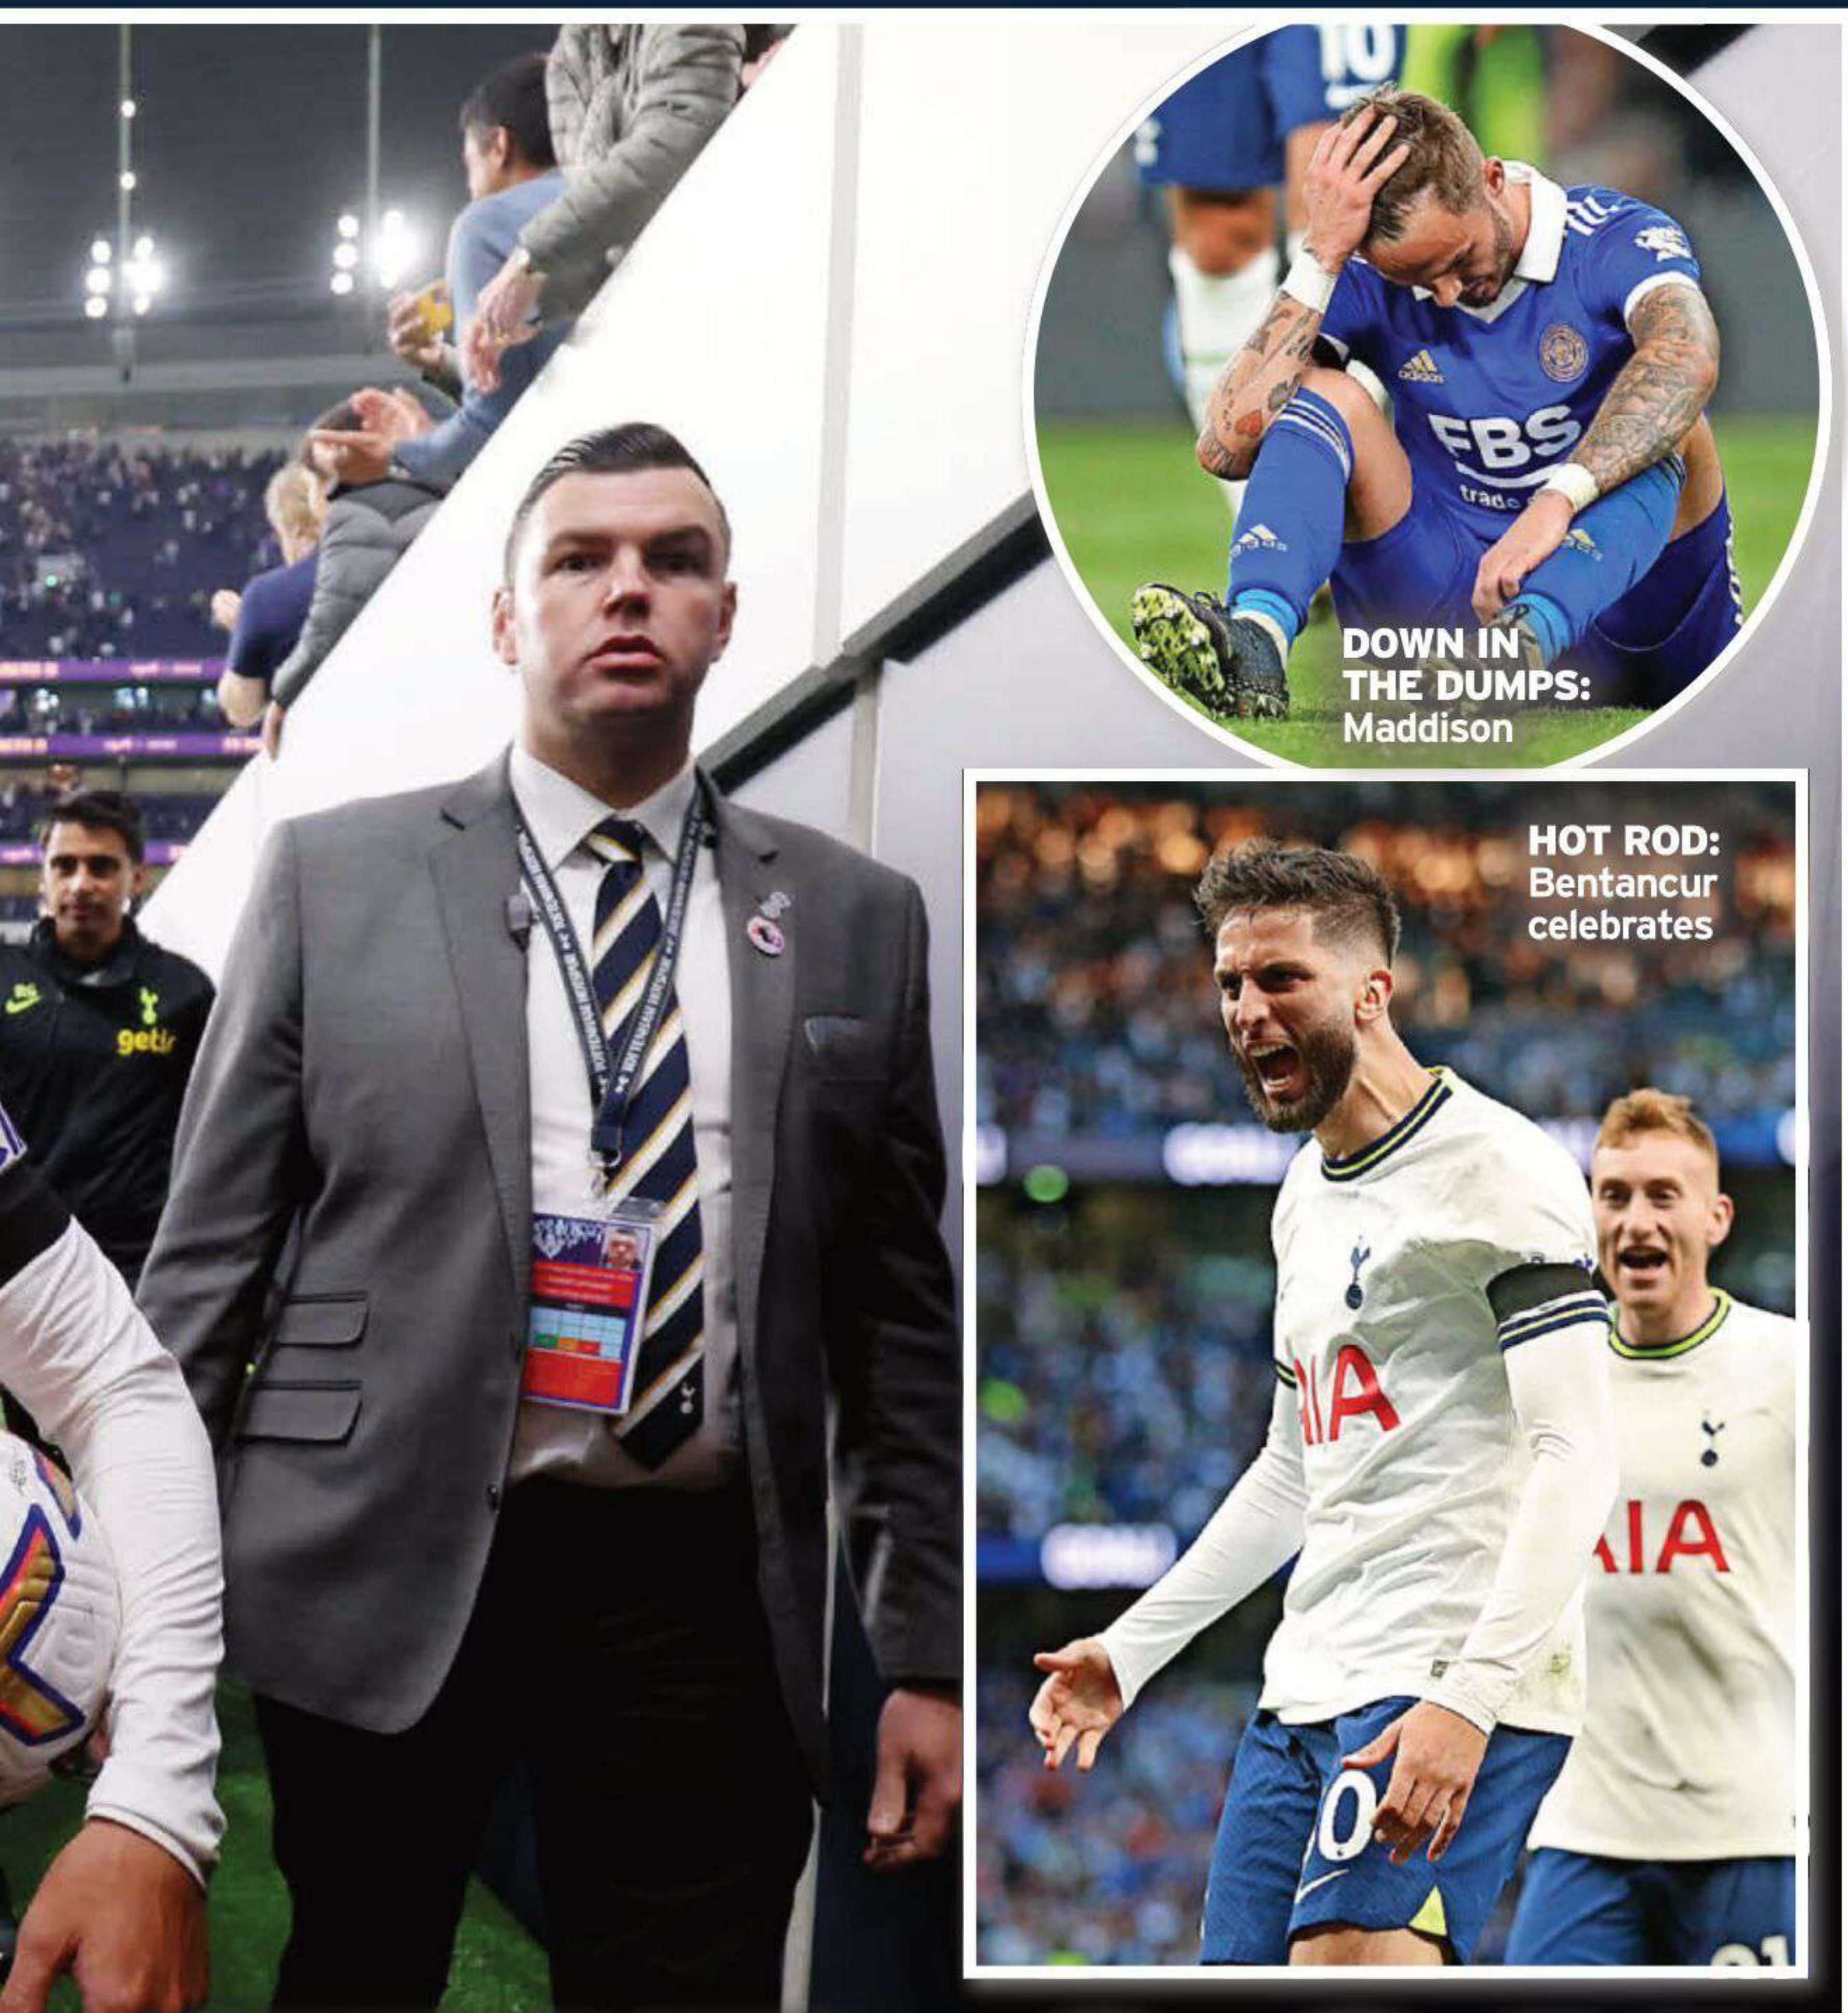

Spurs were behind for less than three minutes and, of course, it was that man Kane who headed them level, his 18th Premier League goal against Leicester.

Kulusevski fashioned an in-swinging cross from the right

■ Tottenham's 17 points from their seven Premier League games this season is their joint-best record at this stage of a campaign. They are currently joint-top.

■ Leicester are winless in their first seven league games of a campaign for the first time since 1983-84, while their 22 goals conceded is their most ever after seven league games.

■ Of all Premier League fixtures to have been played at least 30 times, Tottenham against Leicester has the highest average goals-per-game (3.73 - 123 goals in 33 games).

THE SON back to his best with his left boot and the striker rose highest to nod home.

Ivan Perisic then swung over another corner and Dier this time got up highest to head home on 21 minutes.

Spurs arguably should have extended their advantage again before the half-hour mark but Sanchez, who jumped for the ball with Leicester keeper Danny Ward, was penalised for minimal contact as the ball bobbed in after hitting Wilfred Ndidi.

Credit must go to Leicester, as five minutes before the break, they were back on level terms.

Timothy Castagne did well down the right, nodding the ball into his own path before crossing for James Maddison, who wrapped his right boot round the cross and curled his effort home.

Maddison has been the one shining light for the Foxes this season - but, unfortunately for him, those around him have struggled.

Jonny Evans' pass did not leave Ndidi many options, he dawdled long enough for Bentancur to nick the ball off him and the Uruguayan finished coolly just two minutes after the break.

Lloris then had to make a terrific save to deny Patson Daka before Son entered on 58 minutes.

His first was a beauty, curling home with his right foot from long range, and the second, with his left foot, was more powerful but just as precise.

He thought for a minute his third, a low finish, would be chalked out for offside, but a VAR check ruled him on to everyone in white's delight.

Hammer is useful tool

WHILE the cat's away, bet that Everton pay.

Frank Lampard got a gutsy tune out of his Toffees in the Merseyside derby draw when last seen, but must welcome West Ham today (2.15pm) without his saving grace, goalkeeper Jordan Pickford.

The Hammers brought home the bacon from Denmark on Thursday night, putting 1996 Intertoto Cup winners Silkeborg in their place.

That place would appear to be somewhere in League One - but say what you like about the Europa Conference group stage, at least it gets you out of the house.

David Moyes was able to give a host of key men a light shift or no shift at all, and with the brilliant Pickford missing, West Ham scorer angles appeal. Deputy Toffees keeper Asmir Begovic was great in his pomp, but he's let in 13 goals in his eight Everton games.

If he was half as good as Pickford someone at Goodison would have noticed by now.

I'll go for Jarrod Bowen (above) 'anytime' at a fair 7/2 - Thursday's England call will be a power-up, and he's a good fit.

Longshot fans want set-piece threat Kurt Zouma 'anytime' at 17/1 (Paddy) - the big lad's got a whisker of a chance.

GOOD VALUE: Guardiola with £100m man Grealish

Boss believes Jack is Greal deal ...and he doesn't need to say thanks

PEP GUARDIOLA said he trusts Jack Grealish "unconditionally" - and insisted the £100million man had no need to thank him in public.

The Manchester City boss spoke out after the England international fired home his first goal of the season as the reigning champions cruised to a 3-0 win at Wolves.

Grealish stabbed home Kevin De Bruyne's cross from close range inside the opening minute.

Erling Haaland added a second just after the quarter-hour before Wolves defender Nathan Collins was dismissed for a crude waist-high lunge on Grealish.

The former Aston Villa man battled on after being poleaxed.

He spoke afterwards of his admiration for his manager, who he said had stood by him following a below-par show in their 2-1 midweek victory over Borussia Dortmund.

But Guardiola was having none of it.

The Spaniard said: "I trust them all unconditionally. I know them. And I trust him unconditionally. Jack is no exception to that."

"He scored a goal, he had a good performance. Every time he has the ball, he's always taking on the full-back when it's one on one. All the time, all the time."

"Maybe we don't have more runners in the final third that gives him more space but he doesn't have to say, 'Thank you' to me."

them. They have to bring the best of themselves every single game. That's what I'm looking for.

"Of course, I'm happy for him and the victory."

"He has an incredible personality to play the way he does."

"Maybe I understand the focus on him because of the transfer. We have to admit it, yes, maybe."

"But he has to be who he is. That's all. Everyone has good moments. He just has to play like Jack Grealish, that's all."

Wolves boss Bruno Lage (below) admitted his side were floored by Grealish's goal after just 53 seconds.

He said: "There are two things they don't like. They don't like to spend too much time without the ball and they don't like to run."

"So our plan was simple - keep the ball."

"We need to try and make them run to recover the ball. They were playing today after a game on Wednesday."

"But when you start a game like that, you suffer."

Haaland already has 11 Premier League goals to his name. Wolves, by contrast, have bagged just three in seven outings so far this season.

Raul Jimenez was injured during pre-season, £15m capture Sasa Kalajdzic was injured after 45 minutes against Southampton and new signing Diego Costa is short of match fitness.

Lage said: "It's a worry when you don't score. Even a manager like Pep understands he needs a reference in the box."

GOAL HAAL: Haaland doubles City's lead at Molineux

THE WRITING was on the wall after 53 seconds.

At the end of 90 minutes, the letters were sky blue and 10 feet tall.

And they read that whatever is taking place among the elite elsewhere, that Manchester City will still be the team to beat this season.

This hasn't been a perfect start by Pep Guardiola & Co but it's been far better than any of their nearest rivals.

And a strangely comfortable afternoon in the Black Country only reinforced the growing feeling that while everyone else is struggling to find their feet, rebuild or readjust, the Etihad juggernaut is set on cruise control.

The final destination?

Well, that doesn't need spelling out but by leapfrogging Arsenal to go back on top of the table, the first clump of games in this Premier League campaign have been negotiated with less drama than by their title rivals.

And that was certainly the case at Molineux, where any inflamed passions were doused within the opening minute when Jack Grealish poked home the opener.

They were given another soaking when Erling Haaland added a second just after the quarter-hour and extinguished altogether when Wolves defender Nathan Collins was dismissed 12 minutes before the interval.

A third for Phil Foden after a spirited response then condemned the 10 men in old gold shirts to a final quarter of ball-chasing, while Guardiola indulged himself by bringing on an array of talent that must have left Wolves boss Bruno Lage drooling with envy.

The outcome wasn't harsh on the hosts in the slightest. If you are going to set up your side to have an open game of football against the kind of opponents they were facing, then you have to bring your 'A' game to the table.

If Lage had prepared his side to stop the champs, then he didn't do a very good job.

City dominated possession from the kick-off and worked an opening down the right when Foden backheeled to Kevin De Bruyne who had created an overlap.

AT MOLINEUX

The Belgian international whipped over a low cross, Haaland made a diversionary run, and Grealish popped up ahead of his marker for a textbook finish and set the stage for what was to follow - from both teams.

Wolves showed flashes but a neat triangle involving Grealish, Joao Cancelo and Bernardo Silva ended with the latter setting Haaland off with the ball at his feet 35 yards out.

Max Kilman made the job easier for him than it should have been by backing away from the Norwegian.

And the folly of that tactic was exposed when Haaland's right-foot shot - with which he didn't connect cleanly - still had the direction to flummox Jose Sa and extend the visitors' lead.

Grealish was causing untold problems with his close control and Collins paid for a moment of inexperience that ended the game as a contest.

The £100million man always appeared likely to be the winner as he attempted to chest down a bouncing ball and set off once more down the left.

However, he was stopped in his tracks by Wolves' £20m summer signing whose tackle caught the England international just below the rib cage. It was one of the season's more obvious dismissals.

This sparked a response from Wolves who are crying out for a natural goalscorer to finish off neat approach work. But it was all huff and puff with no end product.

All that remained was for Haaland and De Bruyne to combine again and Foden backheeled the third to cap a thoroughly satisfying afternoon in the autumnal sunshine for the visitors.

ANGER: Mark Robins

'It's Gust not good enough'

By JOHN WRAGG

COVENTRY boss Mark Robins slammed Gustavo Hamer after he was sent off for the second time in a month.

Hamer lashed out at Birmingham sub Hannibal Mejbri, kicking him in the head, as they tussled on the ground a minute from time.

Ref Graham Scott showed an immediate red card and Robins said: "Birmingham smelt a bit of blood when Hamer was sent off. His disciplinary record is absolutely ridiculous.

"That's a four-game suspension for Hamer.

"We need everybody fit and available and now that has happened. He is such a key player for us.

"I didn't see the incident at the time. I've seen it subsequently and it looked to me that Mejbri grabbed his legs and Hamer did what he had to, to try to get free.

"The eagle-eyed officials saw it and he's sent off for violent conduct. I'm going to speak to the referee but I don't think we will appeal it."

Hamer, who got 17 yellow cards last season, was sent off in a 3-2 defeat at Millwall in August for two more yellow cards and served a one-game ban.

The Sky Blues are bottom of the Championship, seven points adrift of safety with three games in hand on West Brom.

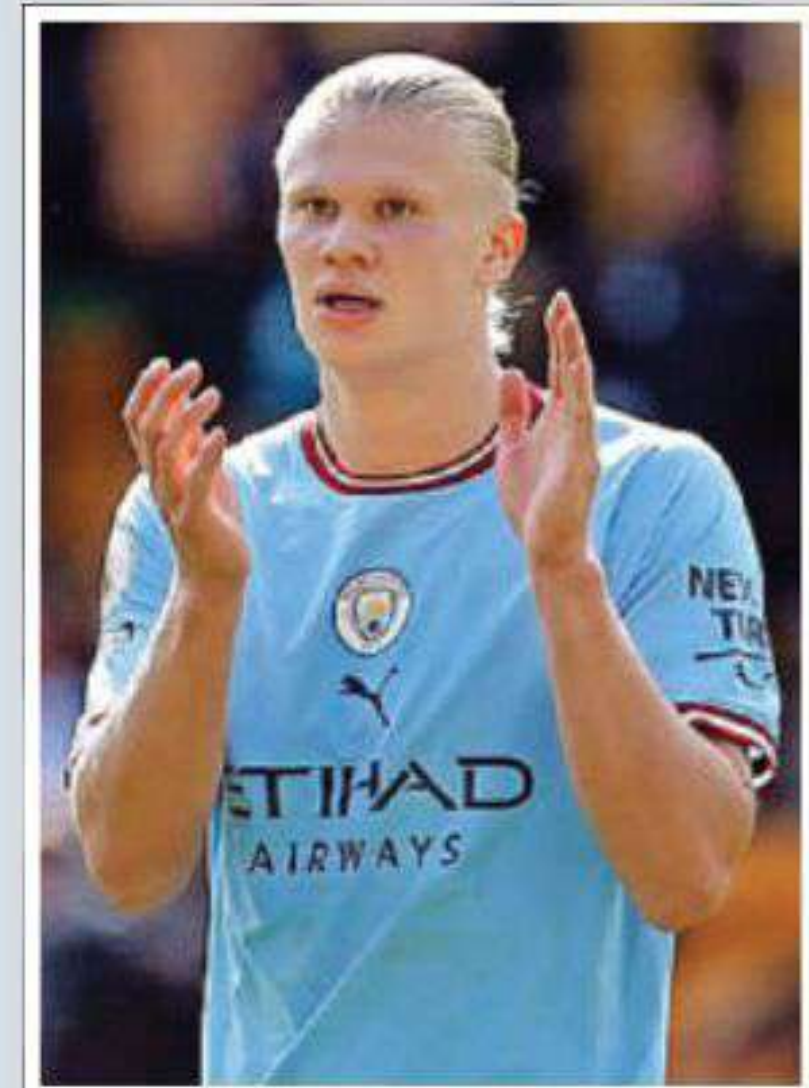

It might have been worse because when they were a man short, captain Kyle McFadzean cleared off the line from sub Lukas Jutkiewicz.

"I'm a bit disappointed we didn't win but we didn't start very well and overall a draw was a fair result," said Blues boss John Eustace.

TAKING FLIGHT: Joelinton is fouled by Ryan Christie

O'Neil wanting to stay after finding Bourne identity

GARY O'NEIL is hoping to hear if he will keep the Bournemouth job this week.

The caretaker boss, who stepped into the hot-seat when Scott Parker was sacked, has galvanised his squad.

They fought out a brave point on Tyneside and were disappointed not to go away with all three.

O'Neil will hold talks with the club, subject of an imminent takeover, in the coming days to see if he will keep the job longer term.

He said: "I will be finding out what's happening club-wise next week and see what the plan is. If it is me we'll get back to work on the grass with the lads."

"I have no idea what's happening - I knew I was taking today and I don't know about further, I guess I'll find out tomorrow."

"It is a good point for us, it is a tough place to come. The boys stood up."

"I am a little bit disappointed with the penalty but we would have taken a point before."

"I am pleased the boys got something out of it because they put in a hell of a shift."

"We had a couple of plans prepared so the boys were prepared to flip between them. We changed it a little bit in the second half and had to give up a little bit of ground but I never really felt under threat. I am relatively pleased.

"They will show spirit every game."

"It is such a tough league so we will reset. This game means nothing as of tomorrow."

"This game won't help you in the next one. I am just delighted for the lads, everyone, the fans, because it is a hell of a long way to come."

"We appreciate their support - the boys need them in those tough moments where they have to dig in."

Newcastle boss Eddie Howe (left) was unhappy with his side's show and admits it made for painful viewing.

He said: "Our performance was below the level we set ourselves."

"We played in front of them too much. I felt we were off in every aspect of our game."

"It was a difficult watch towards the end. We needed to do a lot better to break them down."

Allan Saint-Maximin has had an injury setback and is a doubt for the next game at Fulham.

TOUGH WATCH: Brazilian Joelinton covers his face

NO wins in six league games for Eddie Howe's Newcastle and the early season optimism is ebbing away.

Despite having more than 70 per cent possession, the hosts were rescued by VAR - and there were a few boos at full time.

Alexander Isak (right) kept his cool to level the game from a controversially awarded penalty, after Phillip Billing had put the visitors ahead.

Newcastle looked very ordinary in attack, and didn't do enough to cut open a resilient and well-organised Bournemouth.

They have lost just once in 13 league games at home this year, but this was their third draw in a row on Tyneside and they've only beaten new boys Nottingham Forest in seven games.

It seems breaking into the elite will be harder than some expected.

Despite having spent £200million on eight players in two windows this season, Newcastle are short on real creativity.

Brazil play-maker Bruno Guimaraes was back after missing three league games but they were still without Callum Wilson, Allan Saint-Maximin and Jonjo Shelvey through injury.

The impact of those three being out on their attacking play is significant.

Billing opened the scoring following a sweeping multi-pass move after an accomplished spell from the Cherries. The home fans were silenced by the attacker's deft touch past Nick Pope at the front post, after he ran off Fabian Schar.

Jordan Zemura provided the assist.

That was on the hour, and Newcastle were gifted a way back by VAR.

In recent weeks Howe's side have been on the wrong end of VAR decisions - a goal disallowed at Liverpool, penalty claims missed and a Joe Willock goal harshly disallowed against Crystal Palace.

The club complained to the VAR officials in the aftermath, and Bournemouth might claim the system was rewarding Newcastle for recent errors.

It was another controversy. Kieran Trippier's cross hit Jefferson Lerma but his hand didn't appear to be in an unnatural position as he ran.

But VAR sent Craig Pawson to the monitor and he awarded the penalty.

New boy Isak converted for his first goal at St James' Park and second since arriving for £60m in August.

Howe was unemotional about facing the club he made his managerial name with. But he admitted he wouldn't be in the Newcastle dug-out if it wasn't for leading the Cherries to the Premier League over a 10-year, two-stint spell.

Gary O'Neil's side, though, were excellent.

England right-back Trippier hit the post with a trademark free-kick after 27 minutes but for long periods the game, and Newcastle, were flat.

Bournemouth were sharp in the tackle and tactically in a good shape cutting out routes forward.

Just before half-time Joelinton hit the bar, then was denied by keeper Neto who also saved well from Ryan Fraser in a frenzy of shots.

After the break the visitors managed a break and low shot from Dominic Solanke.

The Cherries will stay up this season if they perform like this, with a threat on the break and it is now five points won since their 9-0 defeat to Liverpool.

Newcastle need to work out how to break teams down.

STAR MAN

Jordan Zemura - Excellent at left-back in defence and a real creative outlet.

Our voice of the North

Toon not All Star just yet

ONE of the most provocative answers ahead of a North East derby came from the question of who would get into a combined Newcastle and Sunderland side.

It was October 2012, Newcastle had just finished fifth in the Premier League under Alan Pardew and were playing in Europe.

I asked defender Steven Taylor which Mackem players would get into the Toon side. His answer: None.

Fair play to Taylor (below) for avoiding the boring, cliched answer, and for backing his team-mates. He caused a storm, wasn't far off the mark, and it was quite amusing in its partisanship, ahead of the game on Wearside, which was drawn 1-1.

It came to mind as fans debated the merits - mooted by Chelsea owner Todd Boehly - of a Premier League All Star Game.

Hardly any players outside of Manchester and Liverpool got a mention for the North team in public votes.

Fair enough, when the two best teams in Europe last season are on the patch.

From the back Ederson, Alexander-Arnold, Van Dijk, Dias, Cancelo.

Could Nick Pope break in there for shot-stopping this season? Kieran Trippier to push Alexander-Arnold?

In midfield we have Rodri, Neves, De Bruyne. No Bruno Guimaraes, who was left on the bench but a worthy contender.

Up front there is Salah, Haaland, Foden. Few arguments here too, but by the end of the season Eddie Howe will be hoping £60million Alexander Isak and Allan Saint-Maximin are at least being debated for inclusion.

Newcastle's mission given their new riches is to bridge that gap over the next couple of years.

Maybe Sunderland can get in on the act too with promotion. Did you see the sublime one-touch passing move that ended with Jack Clarke scoring against Reading on Wednesday? Incredible.

The last word...

THE hard work of an important charity looked set to go to waste last weekend when games were postponed because of the Queen's death.

Players of at least 10 clubs were set to wear 'If U Care Share' T-shirts aimed at tackling suicide with the words: I'm getting what's on the Inside Out.

Organisers are hoping hours of work can come good and get a new date agreed with clubs soon, especially after high-profile losses in the game, including Gary Speed.

Jones tells fans to cool it after ending rotten home run

NATHAN JONES pleaded for Luton supporters to be more patient after his side finally broke their home hoodoo.

The tightly-packed, ramshackle stadium at Kenilworth Road has traditionally been a fortress as Luton have readjusted to life in the second tier over the previous three seasons.

Yet Jones' men have stuttered there so far this term, so it was an enormous relief to get their first home win under their belt. Especially against such tough opposition.

Carlton Morris and Reece Burke both netted as the Hatters pinned Blackburn back during a rampant second-half display.

Yet Jones called for calm after the game, rounding on his critics.

He said: "I don't read social media but people sometimes show me stuff and things that are people saying, telling me we should be doing stuff.

"I've got a message for our fans - there are a lot of Championship teams that should be beating teams. And their fans keep saying it.

"We're not a team that should be beating teams. What we are is a team who goes about our business with humility.

"We're hard-working, we've got an honest group, we've got a wonderful way of doing stuff and we've got a fantastic environment.

"And at times it's difficult as Championship games are very difficult to win, as we found out the first year that we were in it.

"We can say we 'should be, should be, should be'. But those are the type of performances we put in and the crowd should get behind that as there's no God-given right to win a football game.

"We're a relatively new side in this at this level but we just keep doing it. And I'm really proud of the team. So get behind the team as they were magnificent today."

Jon Dahl Tomasson's Blackburn side controlled most of the first half without doing any damage to their hosts.

Chilean international Ben Brereton Diaz fluffed their only real chance when his scuffed effort beat home goalkeeper Ethan Horvath only for Dan Potts to clear off the line.

That turned out to be the visitors' only shot on target. Morris bagged his sixth goal of the season when he steered home

Jordan Clark's cross on 58 minutes.

Burke's strike nine minutes later had a touch of stardust about it. The big defender was allowed to carry the ball into enemy territory before unleashing a 25-yard curler that beat Thomas Kaminski.

Tomasson said: "It was a disappointing result. We probably had the best chance of the game. If that had gone in then we win the match.

"So when you're playing away you have to take your chance.

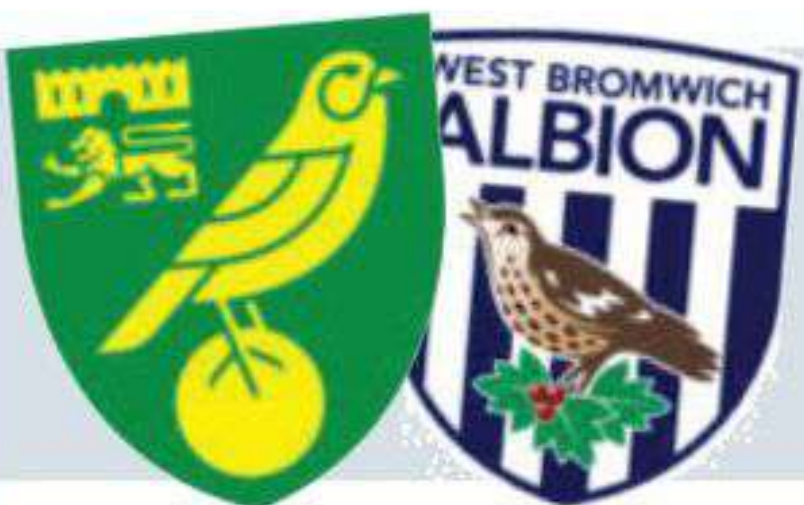

"I hate losing but I'm not someone who easily gets concerned as I prefer to look at the bigger picture."

STEVE BRUCE slammed referee Thomas Bramall for two controversial calls that could get him sacked.

West Brom boss Bruce was left fuming when Sam Byram's Norwich equaliser was not ruled out for handball.

And he was adamant Bramall had already blundered by failing to award a penalty at 1-0 when John Swift was barged over.

The result left the Baggies firmly in the relegation picture going into the international break - a time when many clubs axe struggling managers.

Bruce said: "I know it's a hard job but big decisions have cost us and if I don't win games I get my head chopped off.

"The big decisions they need to get right and we had two against us - their goal and the penalty."

Bruce must have felt his luck was in when Norwich were caught flat-footed for Dara O'Shea to head home in the ninth minute.

Swift swung a free-kick to the back post where the defender, in acres of space, planted a downward header past keeper Tim Krul.

By Jon West

Norwich, who stay second, were fortunate that Albion were not awarded a penalty a few minutes later.

Kenny McLean gave the ball away in his own half and Grant Hanley's attempt to intervene saw Swift barged over in the box.

Bramall decided it was no spot-kick however, to the disbelief of Baggies on the pitch and on the bench.

Norwich boss Dean Smith was convinced it had been the correct call however.

He said: "It's not a penalty. If it's a penalty it should have been a free-kick that led to it for the same thing so it's consistency from the referee, well done."

The Baggies continued to keep Norwich quiet for huge spells, although home fans were quick to accuse them of time-wasting. But fortune deserted Bruce and Co in the 68th minute when Byram was able to celebrate his first goal since December 2015, when he was at Leeds.

Not that he knew much about it as Teemu Pukki's shot from the edge of the box hit his body to deceive David Button.

Albion were convinced the left-back had used an arm to make the fateful deflection - and their protests convinced Bramall to consult assistant Matthew Wilkes.

Again Smith believed the official had got it right by deciding to give it.

He said: "I'm led to believe that if it's T-shirt - if it hits the top of the arm - then it's okay, so it looks like a good goal."

HECK HEROES GRIT OF ALRIGHT

SHEFFIELD United boss Paul Heckingbottom praised his side's character after they extended their lead to at the Championship summit to three points.

Oli McBurnie's fourth goal in five league games and Iliman Ndiaye's smart first-half opener did the trick as the buoyant Blades clinched a fourth successive league win.

Heckingbottom also took comfort from a fourth straight clean sheet from his tight team.

"Two-nil away wins don't come easy, you've got to do a lot of good things right to get them," he said.

"Credit to the players because we found a way to win. We weren't at our best in the first half but we showed our strength in the second half. It was much more like us.

"We were lethargic in the first half and weren't as aggressive as we normally are. We were second to things. They were better second half."

Preston were the better side in the first half and created a hatful of chances but lacked a killer instinct.

Senegalese midfielder Ndiaye made them pay when he sweetly slotted home five minutes before half-time after a mix-up between Whiteman and defender Liam Lindsay.

Then McBurnie did what he does best, firing home from close range in front of the travelling supporters.

"We're creating chances but it's concerning we're getting into good areas and we're not finding the back of the net," said Preston manager Ryan Lowe.

Zian mighty as Flemming close call gives Lions a lift

MILLWALL boss Gary Rowett prays record signing Zian Flemming is confirmed as the scorer of his first goal for the club.

The Lions claimed a vital second win in seven games through Benik Afobe's second goal of the season.

That came after debutant Flemming, a £1.7million summer capture from Fortuna Sittard, saw a goal awarded via goal-line technology although it was initially deemed an own goal by goalkeeper Daniel Grimshaw.

The Dutch striker's header was cancelled out before half-time by an equaliser from on-loan Arsenal teenager Charlie Patino.

Rowett, who saw half-time jeers from fans turn to cheers, said: "I hear there was a doubt about the first goal but Zian claimed it and the referee wrote down his name."

"At half-time I just told the players to be brave and trust me."

In the 14th minute Flemming got in a header that Grimshaw just failed to keep out.

It was millimetres over the line via a post but referee Darren Bond got the signal on his watch. The Tangerines were level when Patino finished a fine move.

Flemming also hit a post but Afobe restored Millwall's lead, smashing in the rebound after Callum Styles' effort was blocked.

Blackpool boss Michael Appleton said: "It is frustrating. I didn't think Millwall did enough to win."

Ince strikes but dad wants more for promotion push

PAUL INCE will not be giving son Tom any pocket money this week, despite his sublime match-winning free-kick settling the game for the Royals.

His second-half strike earned the Royals a sixth league victory this term and ensured the Latics are winless from their five home matches.

But father Paul feels Tom needs to show a ruthless streak if Reading are to push for promotion, saying:

"I expect Tom to get double figures this season. He should have three already, but he missed one today, so he won't be getting any pocket money."

Boss Ince hailed his team's resilience as they bounced back with a win after losing to Sunderland. He said: "The lads put in a brilliant performance to bounce back from the defeat mid-week."

After a lacklustre first half, the only goal of the game came after the hour mark when Ince was brought down on the edge of the box and he dispatched the free-kick into the top corner.

Wigan almost hit straight back when James McClean whipped in a cross from the left finding Will Keane, but his glancing header was denied by the post.

Latics boss Leam

Richardson said: "It was a game we could have won, we had the momentum and possession without really turning it into penetration."

"This league is unforgiving and if you're not at it teams will ask you questions."

MOOR TO SHOUT ABOUT: Jay Rodriguez celebrates his winner at Turf Moor

Hot Rod

CLARET JAY HAS LAST LAUGH

HE was mocked by the visiting fans that he was "a st Andy Carroll" but Jay Rodriguez had the final word with a brilliant header.

And it was a finish the aforementioned former Newcastle and Liverpool striker would have been proud of.

It certainly brought a smile from Burnley boss Vincent Kompany who, until the Carroll lookalike struck three minutes before the 70th-minute homage was paid to the Queen, appeared to be in for a frustrating afternoon.

Kompany said: "This was a real tricky game but I am happy because we go into the international break with everything we want."

When substitute Johann Berg Gudmundsson crossed into the box Rodriguez stole in ahead of his marker and glanced a well-executed header into the corner of the net.

Until then the headlines appeared reserved for one-time Burnley misfit Nahki Wells, who had cancelled out an early home goal from Manuel Benson.

Wells joined in a £5million deal but only managed 46 minutes of league action in two-and-a-half years and didn't score, being sent out on loan. It had been a flying start by Kompany's side and it was right-sided speedster Benson who capitalised on Bristol's inability to close down, the Belgian advancing to the edge of the box and firing past Dan Bentley via the inside of the post.

His fourth-minute strike was his first for the club since a summer move from Royal Antwerp.

And it could have been worse for Nigel Pearson's slow-starting side as a Josh Brownhill attempt was deflected just over the bar.

Pearson said: "They have some lively players and it wasn't for the fainthearted. After that we had our chances but we have to be realistic."

ROB EDWARDS is bracing himself for a big two weeks as he looks to address his inconsistent Watford start.

The Hornets are never shy in axing managers and their current streak of one victory in eight matches is bound to cause alarm amongst the hierarchy.

Watford were amongst the favourites for an immediate Premier League return but will go into the international break outside the top six, after Jewison Bennette denied them a crucial win.

Edwards said: "There's always pressure at this football club but I won't shy away from that.

"If you look at consistency of performances there are lots of good signs. We've seen that but not for 90 minutes.

"We will have a rest and then need to work hard. We have an opportunity to build something here and I aim to make that happen.

"I'd say we've been inconsistent overall and we saw that again. There is lots of potential. We have to see it now for the entirety."

After a slow start this game came to life on 35 minutes.

Yaser Asprilla's incredible pass found Hassane Kamara who crossed for Keinan Davis to score his first Hornets goal.

But Sunderland were level in first-half stoppage time in bizarre fashion.

Aji Alese netted his first goal for the club thanks to the aid of goal-line technology.

His scrambled shot was cleared off the line by Hamza Choudhury but ref John Busby's watch beeped, with replays suggesting it was marginally over.

Watford started the second-half brightly but were lucky to take the lead on 63 minutes as Luke O'Nien, an ex-Hornets trainee, inexplicably headed into his own net after William Troost-Ekong had nodded on Joao Pedro's free-kick.

But the hosts, without the injured Ismaila Sarr, faltered after that.

And after Jack Clarke had seen a goal disallowed for offside it was left to Costa Rica star Bennette, 18, to score his first goal in English football with a neat finish from Patrick Roberts' classy 87th-minute cross.

Wearsiders boss Tony Mowbray, in his fourth game in charge, said: "Bennette is off to prepare for Costa Rica and the World Cup. He hardly speaks a word of English but comes in with a smile on his face.

"I think he is going to surprise a lot of people this season. He is one hell of a story. I want some of these lads to learn to speak English better."

FIRING BLANKS: Willock tries to break the deadlock

Neil doesn't have a Paal in ref Matt after penalty no-no

ALEX NEIL could not believe what he was seeing when Stoke appeals for a last-second penalty were waved away.

Even QPR boss Mick Beale admitted it was a heart in the mouth ending when Ben Wilmot appeared to have been bundled over by Kenneth Paal.

It ended up being a head in hands in disbelief moment for Potters boss Neil, who had seen his side finish strongly after being outplayed for much of the second half.

He said: "The game shouldn't be remembered for one incident because I thought we were good first half and they were better in the second half but it is a clear penalty.

"I have watched it back. I don't know what the referee has seen.

"It was clear as day.

"The kid just runs across his path and puts his hands out and hits him.

"It is not one where there is a little bit of contact.

"He hits him and Ben goes over because there was that much contact on his back leg."

Beale quipped that Neil must be sick of the final minute of games against the Hoops this season after keeper Seny Dieng scored a last-gasp equaliser in one of his final games as Sunderland boss.

Neil would have had his keeper Joe Bursik to thank if Stoke had given him some revenge by snatching a last-second winner.

The away side bossed large spells of the first half and had the ball in the net inside two minutes but Dwight Gayle was flagged offside as he turned in Wilmot's cross.

The former Newcastle striker then hit the top of the bar with a 20-yard free-kick and hooked another shot narrowly wide before Bursik palmed out Stefan Johansen's 44th-minute left-foot strike from the edge of the box.

That was the prelude to three top-class second-half blocks.

First he scrambled across his line to keep out the unmarked Paal from a 48th-minute corner.

Then he pulled out a star jump to somehow catch Jimmy Dunne's point-blank header with the majority of the crowd waiting for the net to ripple.

Bursik saved the best for last, as he kept out Ethan Laird's fierce drive at the near post.

That paved the way for Aden Flint and Tyrese Campbell to almost snatch a late winner.

The former saw his header tipped over by Dieng with sub Campbell pushing his snapshot agonisingly wide of the goal.

A level-headed Beale said: "We really pushed in the second half and couldn't find the goal, and if we can't find it then I am pleased with the clean sheet.

"It was a game neither side was in control of.

"It would have been a glorious win if we had got the goal and a devastating defeat."

JOR BLIMEY: Jordan Rhodes celebrates his goal

All Rhodes lead to big future for new boss says Pelach

HUDDERSFIELD caretaker boss Narcis Pelach claims their new manager will inherit a side showing the fighting spirit needed to survive.

Huddersfield are searching for Danny Schofield's successor and Pelach was delighted by the Terriers' attitude as they recorded only their second league win of the season thanks to Jordan Rhodes' early strike.

"The new manager is going to come in and as a staff we have to prepare this team so when he comes in, the squad will be ready," he said.

"I think the club needed this win, not playing football, but by showing fight.

"This is what we did last season and we did something very nice.

"We were not the best today, but we were fighting for every action.

"This is what we need to do in training and in every game because the Championship is very demanding," Cardiff boss Steve Morison backed Callum Robinson to bounce back from his missed penalty, which cost them a point at the John Smith's Stadium.

Robinson's spot-kick was saved by Lee Nicholls and Morison claimed they should have had a second penalty for Jack Rudoni's foul on Jaden Philogene, which was given as a free-kick on the edge of the box. "He'll be gutted, he'll feel a sense of responsibility, but I'm sure he will score many goals when he gets the opportunity," said Morison.

"The second one's a stonewall penalty. It's in the box by a yard.

"They couldn't tell so they gave the safe option of a foul on the edge of the box, but the lino is looking straight at it along the line."

Huddersfield showed all the qualities needed to climb the table and they played with grit and desire.

Rhodes led the line well and produced a clinical finish for his goal, while teenager Etienne Camara was dominant in midfield on his full league debut and Michal Helik was resolute at the back.

The winner came after just eight minutes when Tino Anjorin linked with Duane Holmes to feed Rhodes, who scored right-footed inside the near post for his third of the season.

The Terriers were on top and Holmes cut in from the right to hit a left-foot shot, which was Philogene, only for Robinson to miss his 21st-minute effort.

The Bluebirds kept up the pressure and Perry Ng fired a drive just over while Nicholls saved Callum O'Dowda's free-kick, which Morison felt should have been a penalty.

Huddersfield could have won by more and Rudoni dallied too long when through on goal allowing Cedric Kipre to get in a vital challenge.

SOMETIMES a manager just needs a lucky break, so Russell Martin will forever be grateful to the fixture computer that brought Hull south for a lunchtime start.

The paper Tigers had lost three on the bounce by an aggregate score of 8-1 and so their folding in the final half hour was as predictable as a soggy cardboard box collapsing in the rain.

Ryan Manning inflicted the first rip with a well-struck volley, before a comedy goal for Luke Cundle three minutes later.

The third for Joel Piroe was another farcical concession - especially for Hull boss Shota Arveladze - who is surely heading for a final deadly punchline from owner Acun Ilicali.

It could not have been very funny, either, for the small knot of Hull fans, whose seven-hour trip to west Wales deserved better.

"I haven't spoken to the owner, but the boys are very, very down," said Arveladze.

"We are on a bad run and we aren't in form. I feel under pressure. I will talk to myself about the situation, but on this form it is no surprise at all.

"It is about what we can change. Whatever course is taken, it is going to be what is best for the club that matters."

Georgian Arveladze could well find the change involves a different manager in charge for their next game against Luton after the international break.

Hull's performance was so poor that even Swansea - who give away late goals themselves - could not hand any over.

Their form remains patchy, but they have now lost only once in four games and have two wins in their last three.

Joe Allen is likely to miss Wales' final two matches before the World Cup in Qatar after picking up a fresh hamstring issue.

The midfielder, 32, came off in the 30th minute and looks set to miss out on the Nations League clashes with Belgium and Poland. "It's his hamstring, but it's not the one he has done before, that's why there's not a huge amount of concern at the minute," said Swans boss Martin.

"Joe doesn't feel it's a bad one. I think he has a good understanding of his own body and he is hopeful he came off as more of a precaution.

"He is a really important player for us and for Wales."

Martin praised his team and added: "They were relentless and I'm really proud of them. Being picky, we should score more."

Manning scored before Hull keeper Nathan Baxter tripped his own defender Tobias Figueiredo to hand Cundle a tapin.

Figueiredo then passed straight to Piroe who made it 3-0.

SKINNER'S SIDE FOUR-MIDABLE

MANCHESTER UNITED showed off their WSL title credentials with a 4-0 win against Reading yesterday.

Marc Skinner's side comfortably won their opening home game of the season thanks to goals from captain Katie Zelem, Alessia Russo and a double from new signing Maya Le Tissier.

It was a momentous occasion for United, as they broke their attendance record at Leigh Sports Village by selling more than 7,200 tickets.

Many of those fans came to watch several Lionesses in action, with Mary Earps, Ella Toone and Russo all starting for the hosts.

United needed just four minutes to break the deadlock when Le Tissier, who is not related to ex-Southampton star Matt, scored from Zelem's corner.

It was a cheeky finish, too, as the defender, 20, flicked the ball over goalkeeper Grace Moloney.

Zelem got the chance to double United's lead moments later when

By Tom Blow

AT LEIGH SPORTS VILLAGE

Moloney brought Russo down in the box. The skipper stepped up and confidently dispatched the penalty.

It was a lovely moment for Zelem, who was making her 100th appearance for United.

Zelem and Le Tissier were at it again in the 25th minute, as the captain's corner found the new recruit in the box. Le Tissier headed in to make it 3-0.

Russo all but ended the contest ten minutes before the break when she made it 4-0.

It was a trademark goal as she towered over her marker to nod in Ona Batlle's cross.

The game quietened down after half-time, with chances coming few and far between.

England star Nikita Parris was introduced late on following her move from Arsenal to United.

Hayes focus is on winning with new-look Blues squad

EMMA HAYES wants Chelsea to get even better ahead of the start of their Women's Super League title defence.

Chelsea were due to start their season against West Ham at Stamford Bridge last weekend.

But with the opening-day programme postponed following the death of Queen Elizabeth II, the Blues will now kick-off at promoted Liverpool today.

"I just want to get better,

TODAY'S WSL GAMES

I'm not focused on winning," boss Hayes said.

"I want to make sure training is top class and that the starters I select perform at the levels we demand in this environment."

Five internationals - Kadeisha Buchanan, Jelena Cankovic, Eve Perisset, Johanna Rytting Kaneryd and Katerina Svitekova - have arrived since last season when Chelsea completed a league and FA Cup double.

Hayes said: "It's nice always to see top players coming into our league and every single one of them has settled."

"It's not a European championship where you've got to play maybe six games, those players have got to play 44 games minimally."

Liverpool won last season's FA Women's Championship by an 11-point margin, and former Chelsea boss Matt Beard says his players are excited by the Prenton Park clash with the champions and the campaign ahead.

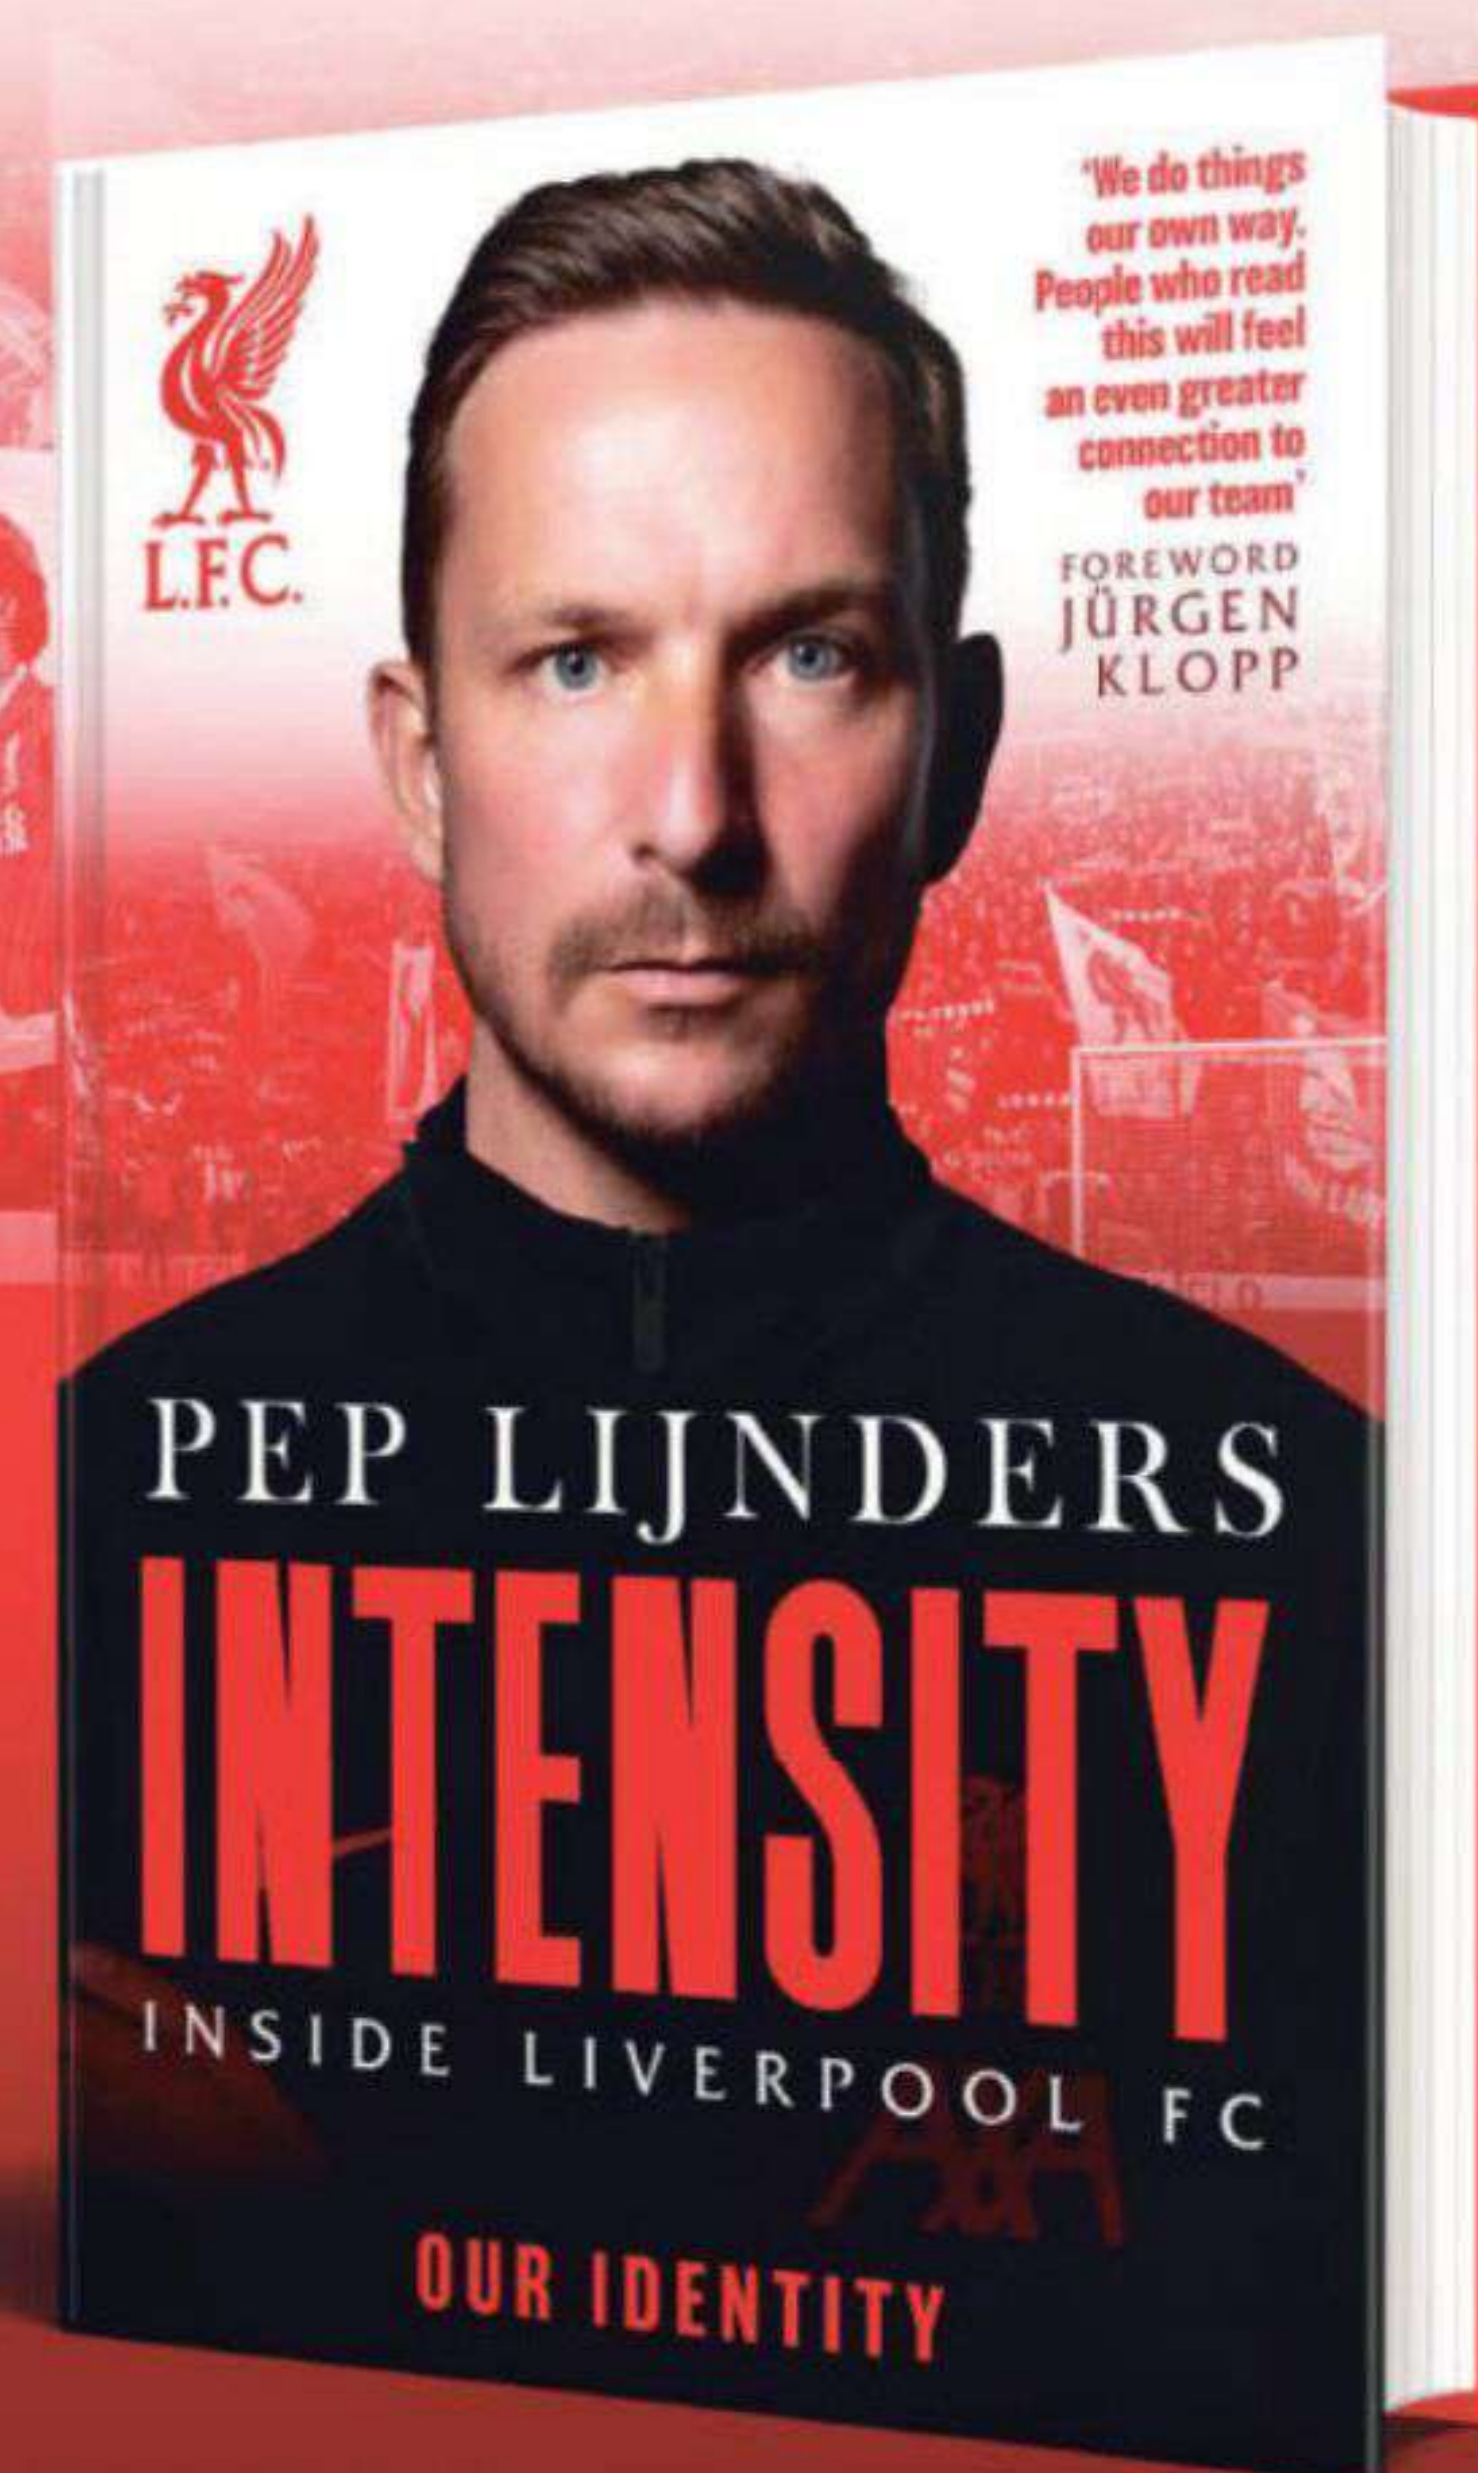

Beard said: "We feel we are equipped and we can compete in this division."

"Chelsea are a fantastic team. But we will be setting up to try to get something out of the game."

"I'm confident we can give a good account of ourselves."

Today's Games: Aston Villa v Man City (12.30), Leicester v Tottenham (3pm), West Ham v Everton (3pm), Liverpool v Chelsea (5pm).

Mellon's level head

Salford 0 Tranmere 1

MICKY MELLON insists his young Tranmere team will reach a "different level" when they add consistency to the energy and enthusiasm that earned a deserved victory.

Josh Hawkes scored the only goal after 34 minutes to inflict a first home defeat of the League Two campaign on Salford. "We put together a gameplan but it is up to the players to execute it and they did that fantastically well," said Mellon, whose side won away from Prenton Park for the first time this term.

"They were excellent from the first minute... it was a real team performance and we could have scored more goals.

"It is a very young side with bags of energy and enthusiasm, now it needs to become consistent." Salford rarely threatened and quickly ran out of ideas following a bright start. Head coach Neil Wood acknowledged his team's performance was a long way below par. "We were too sloppy, with too many players off their games," he Wood.

"The passing wasn't great and the end product wasn't good enough. The standard and quality needs to be better."

MARK HUGHES feels Bradford hotshot Andy Cook is not getting enough support from referees. Cook reached 11 goals for the season with a brace against Stevenage, with Tyreik Wright also notching.

Boss Hughes said: "I'm jumping up and down on the sidelines. I've been there before as a striker when you feel you're not getting enough from the officials to allow you to play. The way the game is refereed at the moment, a lot more challenges are going unpunished and that's not helping good players."

Boro manager Steve Evans said: "Diehard Bradford fans will say this is deserved but it wasn't. If I come out and say we were the better side for long spells then I'll probably get put in a straitjacket and taken away in a wee white van."

Carlisle 2 AFC Wimbledon 1

CARLISLE'S grit impressed manager Paul Simpson as they beat AFC Wimbledon.

Callum Guy and Kristian Dennis got the goals which won it for the hosts, either side of Ayoud Assal's leveller.

Simpson said: "I accept it wasn't the best game of football, but we battled, scrapped."

Wimbledon boss Johnnie Jackson said: "I thought we deserved more from the game."

GRIMSBY boss Paul Hurst liked the way Ryan Taylor and Harry Clifton teamed up for the goal which sealed a win at Colchester. Clifton lobbed the winner following Taylor's pass and Hurst said: "It was a moment of quality, the ball and then a very composed finish. It was obvious from the sidelines what Clifton should do; I wasn't sure if he'd seen it but, he executed it really well."

Colchester boss Wayne Brown said: "All defeats are disappointing, this especially."

Crewe 1 Crawley 0

ALEX MORRIS is happy with Crewe's progress. Courtney Baker-Richardson netted the winner and Morris said: "It has been an okay start." Crawley boss Kevin Betsy said: "I was very disappointed with the result as we were excellent."

D'caster 0 Swindon 1

SCOTT LINDSEY hailed the attitude of Jacob Wakeling and his Swindon side after the youngster scored the only goal. "He's been outstanding," Lindsey said. Doncaster boss Gary McSheffrey admitted: "It's a sticky period we need to get through."

Gill'ham 0 Mansfield 2

NIGEL CLOUGH said Mansfield's win at Gillingham was their "best away game as we've had for some time". After Lukas Akins and George Lapslie had scored, Gillingham manager Neil Harris said: "There's so much work we have to do."

RICHIE WELLENS is confident Leyton Orient still have room for improvement after beating Walsall.

Omar Beckles' second-half goal stretched Orient's lead at the top to four points to make it eight wins from nine games. Wellens said: "At times in the first half we struggled. Teams will change the way they play when they come DAVE CHALLINOR felt Stockport and Harrogate appeared low on confidence in their goalless draw.

"It seemed that as the game went on, it turned into a match between two teams bereft of a bit of confidence," said Challinor.

Harrogate boss Simon Weaver was more positive, claiming: "We've shown that we're continuing to grow."

Sutton 2 H'pool 0

MATT GRAY hailed Sutton's "dominant" second-half performance.

Goals from Will Randall and Harry Beautyman secured the U's a fourth successive home league win. The boss said: "It could have been three or four more. It was a great performance."

Pools manager Paul Hartley said: "People have got to perform better."

Bayern stunned by Berisha's winner

BAYERN MUNICH slipped to a surprise first defeat of the season at Augsburg.

Mergim Berisha (below) scored the winner - the 1-0 loss meaning Bayern have now failed to earn a victory in their last four matches in the German top flight.

Borussia Dortmund went top following yesterday's 1-0 win over local rivals Schalke. Youssoufa Moukoko, 17, headed the winner for Edin Terzic's side to become the youngest player to have scored in the fixture. The win was marred by a nasty-looking injury to captain Marco Reus.

The German, who was called up for the Nations League match against England, turned his ankle and was carried off. In La

EURO ROUND-UP

Liga, Barcelona cruised to an impressive 3-0 win over 10-man Elche.

Barcelona's task against the league's bottom side was made easier when defender Gonzalo Verdu was sent off in the 14th minute for pulling Robert Lewandowski's shirt as he bore down on goal.

And he was soon scoring for the fifth consecutive league game. Memphis Depay scored a fine goal to double Barcelona's lead in the 41st minute before Lewandowski grabbed his second.

The victory took Barca top although Real Madrid can return to the summit if they win away at rivals Atletico Madrid tonight.

Portsmouth 2 Plymouth 2

DANNY COWLEY called for goal-line technology in League One. Portsmouth needed a stoppage-time Reeco Hackett equaliser to draw with 10-man Plymouth. But Cowley felt his side were denied a clear goal earlier when the referee ruled Sean Raggett's effort was cleared off the line.

"It is about two yards over the line," said the Portsmouth boss. "I think to help the officials we should have goal-line technology. It is the 21st century."

Josh Koroma gave Portsmouth the lead but Raggett's own goal and a Niall Ennis strike turned the game on its head. But seconds after Brendan Galloway was dismissed, Hackett levelled.

Plymouth boss Steven Schumacher said: "We are gutted not to come away with three points."

Sheff Weds 2 Ipswich 2

DARREN MOORE praised Sheffield Wednesday's character after their late fightback. Leaders Ipswich led 2-0 thanks to Kayden Jackson's early strike and a Dominic Iorfa own goal. But late goals from George Byers and Michael Smith earned Moore's men a point.

The Wednesday boss said: "Being two down was not ideal, but the pleasing thing for me was the character of the boys. I'm so proud of them. We kept on going and we felt that the momentum was with us to perhaps get a winning goal."

"In the end, it was a point shared and I'm pleased for everyone at the football club."

Ipswich manager Kieran McKenna said: "One of the overriding emotions at the moment is disappointment because at 2-0 it was such a good performance."

"We executed the game-plan so well and did almost everything that we wanted to do and from there you feel that you deserve and want to go on and win it. We have to learn from it and I'm sure we will because the boys are getting better."

Cambridge Utd 0 Barnsley 3

MICHAEL DUFF still feels his Barnsley side should be better despite easing to victory with 10 men. The visitors had Liam Kitching sent off at 1-0 up, having also lost keeper Brad Collins to injury. But Robbie Cundy and James Norwood scored to seal the points after Devante Cole's opener.

"We aren't going to get carried away with ourselves because I don't think we were brilliant," Duff said.

"The best thing that has happened to us was Kitch getting sent off. From that moment onwards I think we controlled the game."

Cambridge boss Mark Bonner said: "From the second goal, which came quickly after the red card, the game was fairly comfortable for them. We didn't play with the thrust that we had been playing with."

DIAMOND DAY

THE JACK OF DIAMONDS: Diamond scores Lincoln's fifth

A HAT-TRICK from on-loan Sunderland winger Jack Diamond ultimately proved to be the difference between Lincoln and Bristol Rovers.

Striker Ben House, with a brace, and Matty Virtue also got on to the scoresheet for the Imps, however, Rovers boss Joey Barton insisted he was proud of his players despite their humbling defeat.

Rovers striker Aaron Collins took his tally of goals this season to six with two smartly taken goals while Ryan Loft's strike raised hopes of a miraculous comeback but there was no stopping the visitors.

Barton said: "It was tough and tricky to take. We've lost three points but I am proud of the players for the way they applied themselves, the way they kept taking the game to them, getting on the ball, and the way we kept going which was brave."

By Mike Rimmer
AT LNER STADIUM

And I'll take responsibility for the shape we played and the fact we were so porous. We tried to play a really aggressive system, taking the game to them but it didn't go to plan."

Barton, whose side are now in the relegation zone, added: "It was tough to take but you come in at half-time and you don't know how you are behind. There was a bit of a Keystone Cops-type of moment just before break when we kicked the ball at one of our own and that put one of their lads through to score."

"You have games like these where your opponents can't believe their luck and this was one of those games."

"I believe if we had shown more care and composure we could have been going in at the break level or ahead but it wasn't to be." Despite the emphatic nature of the win, Lincoln manager Mark Kennedy refused to lavish his players with praise after they moved to within touching distance of the play-off places.

"I've got mixed feelings because there were plenty of positives but too many negatives for my liking," the former Republic of Ireland international said.

"At times were looked unstoppable going forward, but there were aspects of our game that were unacceptable."

"We were sloppy at times and I've told the players that they've got great careers ahead of them but they've got cut out the silly mistakes."

"I don't want to sound too harsh but I know the team can do a lot better and some of the performances showed what potential we've got and it helps that Jack was brilliant because he gave us a vital edge."

Fleetwood 1 Charlton 1

SCOTT BROWN called for more energy and smarter play from Fleetwood after Miles Leaburn's goal denied them victory.

Callum Morton put Town ahead but Brown said: "We need to manipulate the ball better. We want to play with high energy at home, put teams under pressure, and we didn't do that."

Charlton assistant Simon Marshall said: "We want 90 minutes of quality."

Oxford Utd 1 MK Dons 2

LIAM MANNING was delighted with his side's performance after Matt Smith and Will Grigg fired MK Dons to victory. The two efforts meant John Mousinho's 89th-minute goal served only as a consolation for Oxford. "We've set a benchmark," said Manning. Opposite number Karl Robinson commented: "We know what people expect of us and it's hurting."

P Vale 2 Shrewsbury 1

DARRELL CLARKE urged Port Vale not to get carried away after Ellis Harrison's double delivered victory.

"We just have to keep the consistency," said Clarke, who saw Christian Saydee equalise for Shrewsbury in the first half.

"We don't get too high when we win and we don't get too low when we lose."

Shrewsbury boss Steve Cotterill added: "We needed to do better."

Forest G 1 Morecambe 2

DEREK ADAMS hailed an early boost to Morecambe's survival bid. Farrend Rawson headed a late winner for the Shrimps after Kieran Phillips cancelled out Connor Wickham's opener. Adams said: "This is a great day for the whole of Morecambe and we want to be in League One next season." Rovers boss Ian Burchall admitted defeat was "a bitter pill".

Accrington 1 Cheltenham 0

JOHN COLEMAN revealed Accrington's victory over Cheltenham came at a cost.

Sean McConville's strike after just 30 seconds was enough to secure all three points. "The only disappointment is the injury curse has struck again as we lost Harvey Rodgers, Tommy Leigh and Joe Pritchard during the game which is a worry," the Stanley boss said.

"It is nice though when you get the points your hard work deserves as we have felt we deserved something from the previous three games."

Cheltenham boss Wade Elliott added: "We have got to make sure we are at full tilt every minute of every game and we do the basics."

Bolton 1 Peterborough 0

IAN EVATT praised his Bolton side for showing persistence.

Dapo Afolayan, a 70th-minute substitute, scored with a deflected shot four minutes from time to seal a fourth successive win in all competitions for Wanderers.

Boss Evatt said: "I am delighted. The players thoroughly deserved that win. It felt like a proper game between two good teams."

"We saw glimpses of the football we can play and also we stood up to some physical tactics at times."

Peterborough manager Grant McCann said: "It's been a topsy-turvy start to the season for us."

"It's about how we get out of this and how we turn it around."

Derby 2 Wycombe 1

LIAM ROSENIOR revealed how his "stay calm" message was rewarded. Wycombe led until the 72nd-minute thanks to Anis Mehmeti's goal, but Derby's pressure told with a Conor Hourihane double sealing victory.

Rosenior said: "I was really calm on the side because I felt it would come and I told the players to stay calm, don't go off the plan, it will work for us."

"What made me happy was the character and resilience of the group and the quality of the football we played. I see a group that trusts the process we are working to."

Wycombe manager Gareth Ainsworth said: "It was really good learning for my boys."

Exeter 0 Burton 2

DINO MAAMRIA knows Burton have further improvements to make.

Albion secured their first win of the season courtesy of goals from Deji Oshilaja and Davis Keillor-Dunn.

Maamria said: "The clean sheet was massive for us, something we have been talking about. Our defenders put in a lot of blocks and defended the box well."

"This will help us going forward, there are going to be ups and downs. We have not cracked it, it is just one win and we are still bottom of the league. There is still a lot of work to do."

Exeter manager Matt Taylor said: "We are obviously disappointed to lose the game."

'Becoming a mum has given me a purpose'

Former Love Island Cara De La Hoyde on the show that made her famous and how parenthood has helped her depression

She's a Love Island star with more than a million social media followers, winning the hearts of the nation and bagging the £50,000 cash prize in 2016 with her now husband, Essex lad Nathan Massey, 30.

But when Cara De La Hoyde, 32, – who now has son Freddie, four, and daughter Delilah, two, with Nathan – sits down for a chat with us, she's the first to admit her life is far from perfect. Always open about her struggles with anxiety and depression, Cara revealed earlier this year that she's started taking antidepressants again, telling her followers, "There is no shame in asking for help."

Here, Cara tells us why she gives fans such a raw account of parenting, why she no longer watches Love Island and how having children has helped improve her mental health...

Hi Cara! Freddie's just started school. How was his first day?
It was fine, I didn't cry! He had a great time. Fred is such a confident child – if he met you he'd be your best friend in two minutes.

You show the realities of parenting on your social media. Is that important to you?

When we came out of Love Island I tried to be so perfect, but as soon as I had kids I realised it's hard.

I was trying to put on this persona and it became so stressful for me. I suffer with anxiety and depression anyway, so I decided to stop putting pressure on myself and start showing what it's like to be married with children.

Is it hard watching the kids grow up so quickly?

I'm not an overly sentimental person, but one day before Fred started school I just got really sad and emotional about it. My babies are growing up!

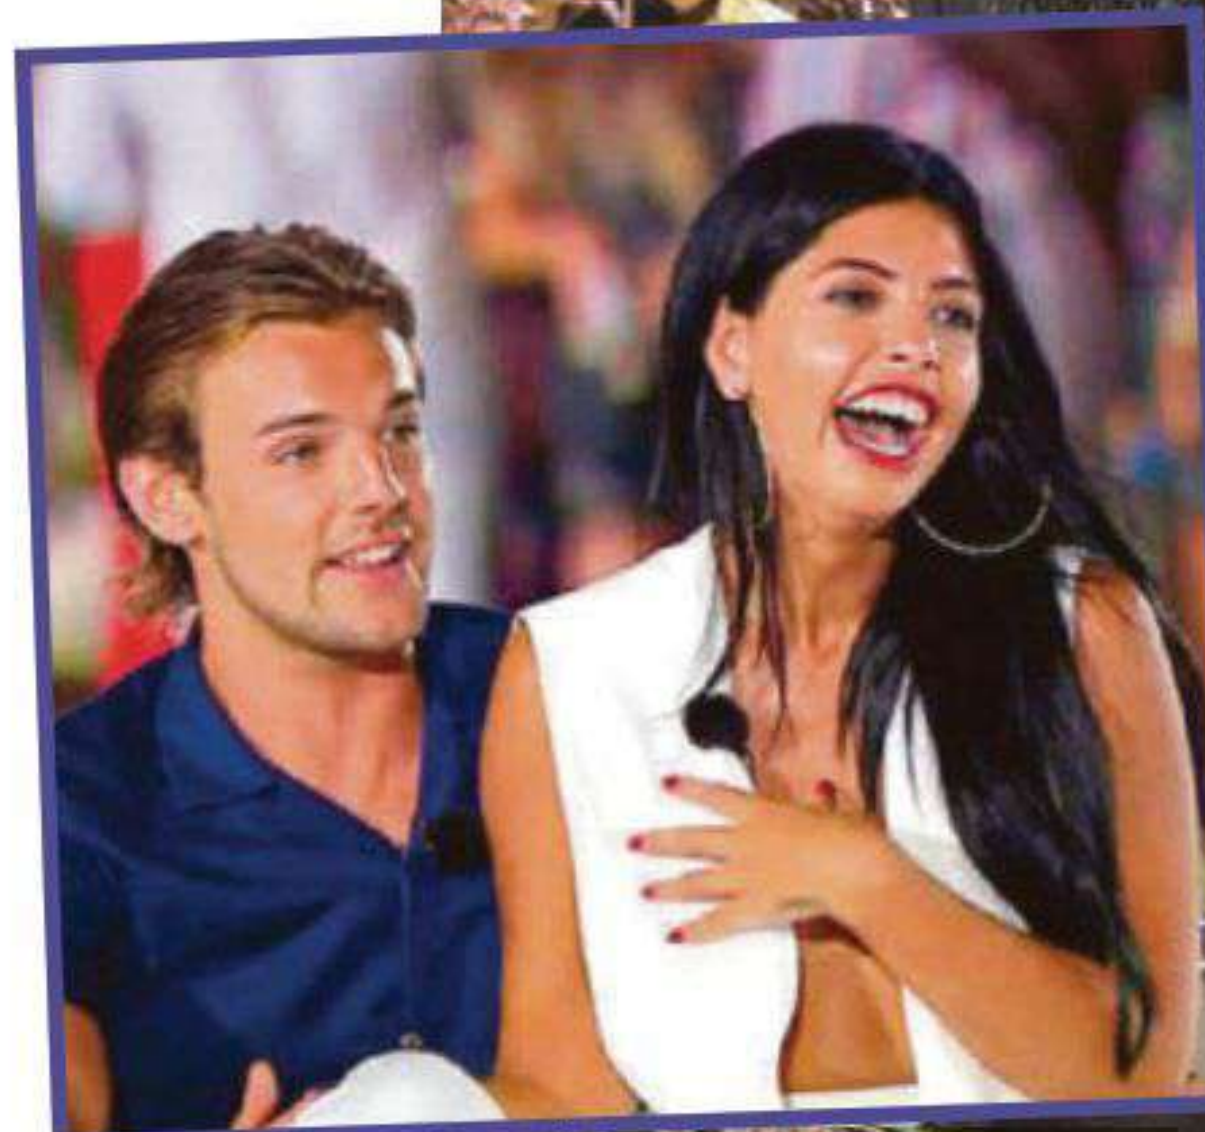

What do you love most about being a mum?

It sounds cheesy, but it has given me a proper purpose. I've always said I wanted to be a mum. I suffer badly with my mental health and I take my happy pill every day, but I find that my depression hasn't been as present since I've had children. It's like there has always been a hole and since I've had Fred, that's been filled. I still suffer, but now I have children I have to get up and get through it.

Do you still watch Love Island?

No. We used to, but I just think, "I'm 32 now, I can't be watching

'You need to take joy in the little things that happen'

18-year-olds in bikinis trying to put it on people." I do check in, but it's on every night – I can't commit to that!

Tell us about your partnership with Bing's Little Wins...

I'm very open on social media about the good and bad of parenting – nothing is off limits. If something happens I'm going to show it, because it's funny and we're all in it together. It's nice to be able to say to other parents and grandparents and carers that it is hard and that you need to take joy in the little things that happen.

Vogue Williams has so much on her plate that we feel exhausted just thinking about her daily schedule. Not only is the Irish model a doting mum to Theodore, four, Gigi, two and five-month-old Otto, she has so much work on we're not entirely sure when she sleeps.

Luckily for Vogue, she likes going to bed at 8pm and tells us that her husband Spencer Matthews, 34, is "really good" at supporting her. "If I need him to help with anything, he always will," the 36-year-old explains, as she settles down to talk to us about the range she's been working on for I Love Wallpaper.

But it's not just homeware that the DJ and presenter has been focusing on. She's also been busy with her new show, Send Nudes: Body SOS, and her successful podcasts My Therapist Ghosted Me and Spencer & Vogue, which she presents with her husband.

So how does Vogue – who met Spenny on The Jump in 2017 – juggle it all? "I really love being a mother. But I also really love, love my job. So it's nice to be able to do those with such amazing support along the way," she explains.

Here, Vogue opens up about her tricky pregnancies, why Gigi is feeling a bit left out at the moment and how she and Spencer have ups and downs just like everyone else...

Hi, Vogue. How are you finding being a new mum again?

I love the new-mum phase. I love that Otto is with me all the time. I have my first day away from him and the kids in three and a half months tomorrow – I'm going to Edinburgh to DJ. I'm like, "What am I gonna do?" It makes me nervous leaving.

Have you learnt anything new?

It has been really difficult because, obviously, I have the other two kids. And Gigi was so used to having so much attention. I think she is going through a little phase, so I have been trying to spend as much time as I can with all of them and I'm now trying to do separate things with each of them. At the moment, I'm just kind of focusing on Gigi because I think that she's feeling a little bit left out.

What was the birth like?

Otto was probably the easiest. I quite enjoy the whole birthing process. It's probably because I have such difficult pregnancies.

Why was the pregnancy so hard?

I was sick every day for so long and you don't realise how sick you are until you're not sick any more. The day after Otto was born, I was like, "Oh my gosh, I haven't felt like this in so long," because you get so used to feeling sick.

How have Theodore and Gigi handled having a baby brother?

They're besotted. They're obsessed.

Gigi has gone a bit backwards now, she keeps saying she's a baba. Theo absolutely adores him. It's crazy but Theo and Gigi are best pals. So we're just waiting for Otto to get to that age where he'll be old enough to play with them.

Gigi just turned two. Did you throw a party?

Gigi had a terrible birthday! I planned this party for her but I cancelled most of it because everybody was away. Spenny and I took her to the farm but it wasn't what she wanted to do, bless her. The whole morning she was desperate for us to sing Happy Birthday, and when we did it, she bawled her eyes out.

What have you learnt about being a mum?

Every day is different and the lack of sleep is intense. But I'm a fan of going to sleep before 8pm so it's not the worst thing I have to do.

What's Spencer like as a father?

Spenny is really good. As I'm breastfeeding, I do the nights by myself. The other night, I was shattered. He was with Otto and when he woke up he passed him to me and he wasn't settling, but him being there made all the difference.

What's it like working together?

Working together kind of feels like we are having a date night as we get time alone and we get to sit together in silence. We get to have a chat about fun topics, it's the best.

A lot of your listeners say you're made for each other...

It's so nice to hear that. But everyone goes through their ups and downs. We do have our disagreements, but we are best pals. We just really enjoy each other's company.

When did you realise that you wanted to spend your life with Spencer?

As soon as we met on The Jump, I remember just thinking that we'll be really good friends. I rang a couple of friends and they were like, "Did you fancy anyone on the show?" And I was like, "No, but this guy is really sound and he's really lovely and we'll always be friends."

Spencer's best mate Jamie Laing is getting married soon...

I'm delighted for Jamie. He's hilarious. He's a really nice person. Sophie [Habboo] is gorgeous and so nice. We're delighted they're getting married and will be there cheering them on.

Was it a surprise?

I was kind of expecting it. I think he'd spoken to Spenny about it before but he didn't tell me. They get on so well, Jamie and Sophie.

Tell us a bit about your I Love Wallpaper collaboration...

I Love Wallpaper was a dream to work with – a lovely crew. Everyone was so collaborative and open to my ideas. I'm obsessed with homeware – I think everyone is deep down. We spend so much time in our homes and you want it to be nice. I wanted to create a collection of wallpaper and wall murals that could be used in any room, and I feel like we've captured that with the 10 designs. I've already put the Bee Happy wallpaper up in my house!

Savour sensationally sweet shallots with these simple recipes

Butter bean purée with roasted shallots

For the shallots

400g round shallots, peeled
2 tbsp extra virgin olive oil
Salt and pepper, to taste

For the butter bean purée

4 tbsp extra virgin olive oil
1 garlic clove, crushed
2 tins of butter beans, drained and rinsed
100ml vegetable stock
Zest and juice of 1 lemon

For the salsa verde

1 clove of garlic, peeled
25g parsley
25g basil
25g mint
1 tsp capers
3 gherkins
1 tbsp Dijon mustard
3 tbsp red wine vinegar
8 tbsp extra virgin olive oil
Salt and pepper, to taste

● Preheat the oven to 180°C/160°C fan/gas mark 4. Toss most of the peeled shallots (reserving a couple for the bean purée) with the oil and seasoning in a baking tray, then place in the oven and cook for 25-30 minutes, until soft and golden.

● Finely chop the remaining shallots. Heat 4 tbsp extra virgin olive oil in a medium saucepan, then add the finely chopped shallots and garlic. Fry until soft and translucent, then add the beans, stock and zest and juice of the lemon. Cook on a low heat until the beans are soft, then pour everything into a food processor and blitz until smooth. Taste and add more lemon or salt if needed.

● Return the bean purée to the saucepan and keep warm on a very low heat until the other components are ready.

● Wash the food processor. Add all the salsa verde ingredients and pulse to a chunky paste.

● To serve, spread a quarter of the purée on each plate and top with the shallots. Drizzle each plate with a couple of tablespoons of salsa verde. Alternatively, serve on a big plate and let everyone tuck in with hunks of crusty bread.

4

Stovetop mac and cheese

50g butter
200g shallots, finely chopped
 1-3 red chillies, chopped (to taste)
1 tbsp plain flour
 400g macaroni
1 litre milk
 250ml water (plus a little extra if necessary)
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
 1-2 tsp Dijon mustard (optional)
250-300g extra mature cheddar (to taste), plus extra to serve

● Melt the butter in a large saucepan over a low heat then add the shallots, cooking very gently for about 15 minutes until really soft but not coloured. Add the chilli and stir, cooking for another minute. Then stir through the flour, blending it well into the buttery shallots.
 ● Tip in the macaroni and stir well, then pour in the milk and water. Season well with salt and pepper and stir through the mustard if you are using it. Bring up to the boil, then reduce the heat to a steady simmer. Cook for about 12-15 minutes, stirring often (just like making a risotto) until the pasta is tender and the sauce thickens. If it seems dry, add a splash of extra water.

● Turn off the heat and allow the macaroni to rest and cool for 5 minutes. Scatter over the cheese, stirring until it is melted, and serve immediately.

● Resting the pasta before stirring through the cheese is an important step, so don't be tempted to skip it. If you add cheese to the sauce when it is too hot, you will risk it going granular.

4

4

500g diced chuck beef
 1 tbsp plain flour
2 tsp smoked paprika
 Sea salt and cracked black pepper
1 tbsp rapeseed oil
 2 tsp cocoa powder
1 tsp ground cumin
 1 tsp cayenne pepper
1 tbsp sweet chilli sauce
 1 pint beef stock, hot
1 tin chopped tomatoes
 1 tin kidney beans
1 cinnamon stick

● Place the shallots in a bowl and pour over boiling water. Allow the shallot skins to soften in the water for 10 minutes before easily peeling – keep the shallots whole.

● In the meantime, put the beef in a large bowl with the flour, paprika and salt and pepper. Thoroughly coat the beef in the flour mixture.

● Heat the oil in a large frying pan and, in batches, brown the meat well until just caramelised. Once browned, place the meat into the slow cooker along with the prepared shallots.

● In a large jug, dissolve the cocoa powder in 20ml of hot water. Add the cumin, cayenne pepper and sweet chilli sauce to create a thick paste. Stir in the hot stock before pouring it all into the slow cooker. Add the chopped tomato, kidney beans and cinnamon to the slow cooker along with a large pinch of salt and pepper. Stir all the ingredients and then place the lid on.

● Cook on low for 7-8 hours (3.5-4 hours on high) until the meat is tender and the sauce has thickened.

● Half an hour before serving, if the sauce needs reducing further, pour the chilli into the pan and simmer over a medium heat until the sauce has thickened to your desired consistency.

Caught by a Fitbit: the love rat who killed wife before mistress gave birth

How could Connie Dabate be walking around if she was already dead?

While most people who knew them would have admitted that Connie and Richard Dabate had very different characters, they nevertheless seemed to be a happy couple. They had been married for 12 years and lived in a colonial-style home in upmarket Ellington, Connecticut, with their sons, aged six and nine.

Connie, 39, worked as a pharmaceutical sales representative, while Dabate, who was a computer network administrator, was known for his offbeat humour. Connie was described as being kind, with a “sunshine” personality.

The pair were comfortably off and their home had an alarm connected to the law enforcement authorities. Two days before Christmas in 2015 the alarm sounded and police rushed to the house where they found Dabate with knife wounds, bound to a folding metal chair and lying on the kitchen floor. An arm and one leg were tied to the chair, from which, it seemed, he’d managed to partially free himself.

Minutes later, Connie was discovered in the basement. She’d been shot in the head and abdomen. At first, the scene appeared to have been a burglary that had gone wrong. The couple’s two sons were safe at school – but their mother was dead.

A shaken Dabate told officers that he’d dropped his sons off at school before heading to work. But realising he’d forgotten his laptop, he turned back. As he drove back, he noticed the house alarm had been triggered at about 9am, at which time Connie was at a gym class. On entering the property he heard a noise, which he assumed was the cat. Going upstairs, though, he found an intruder in the bedroom.

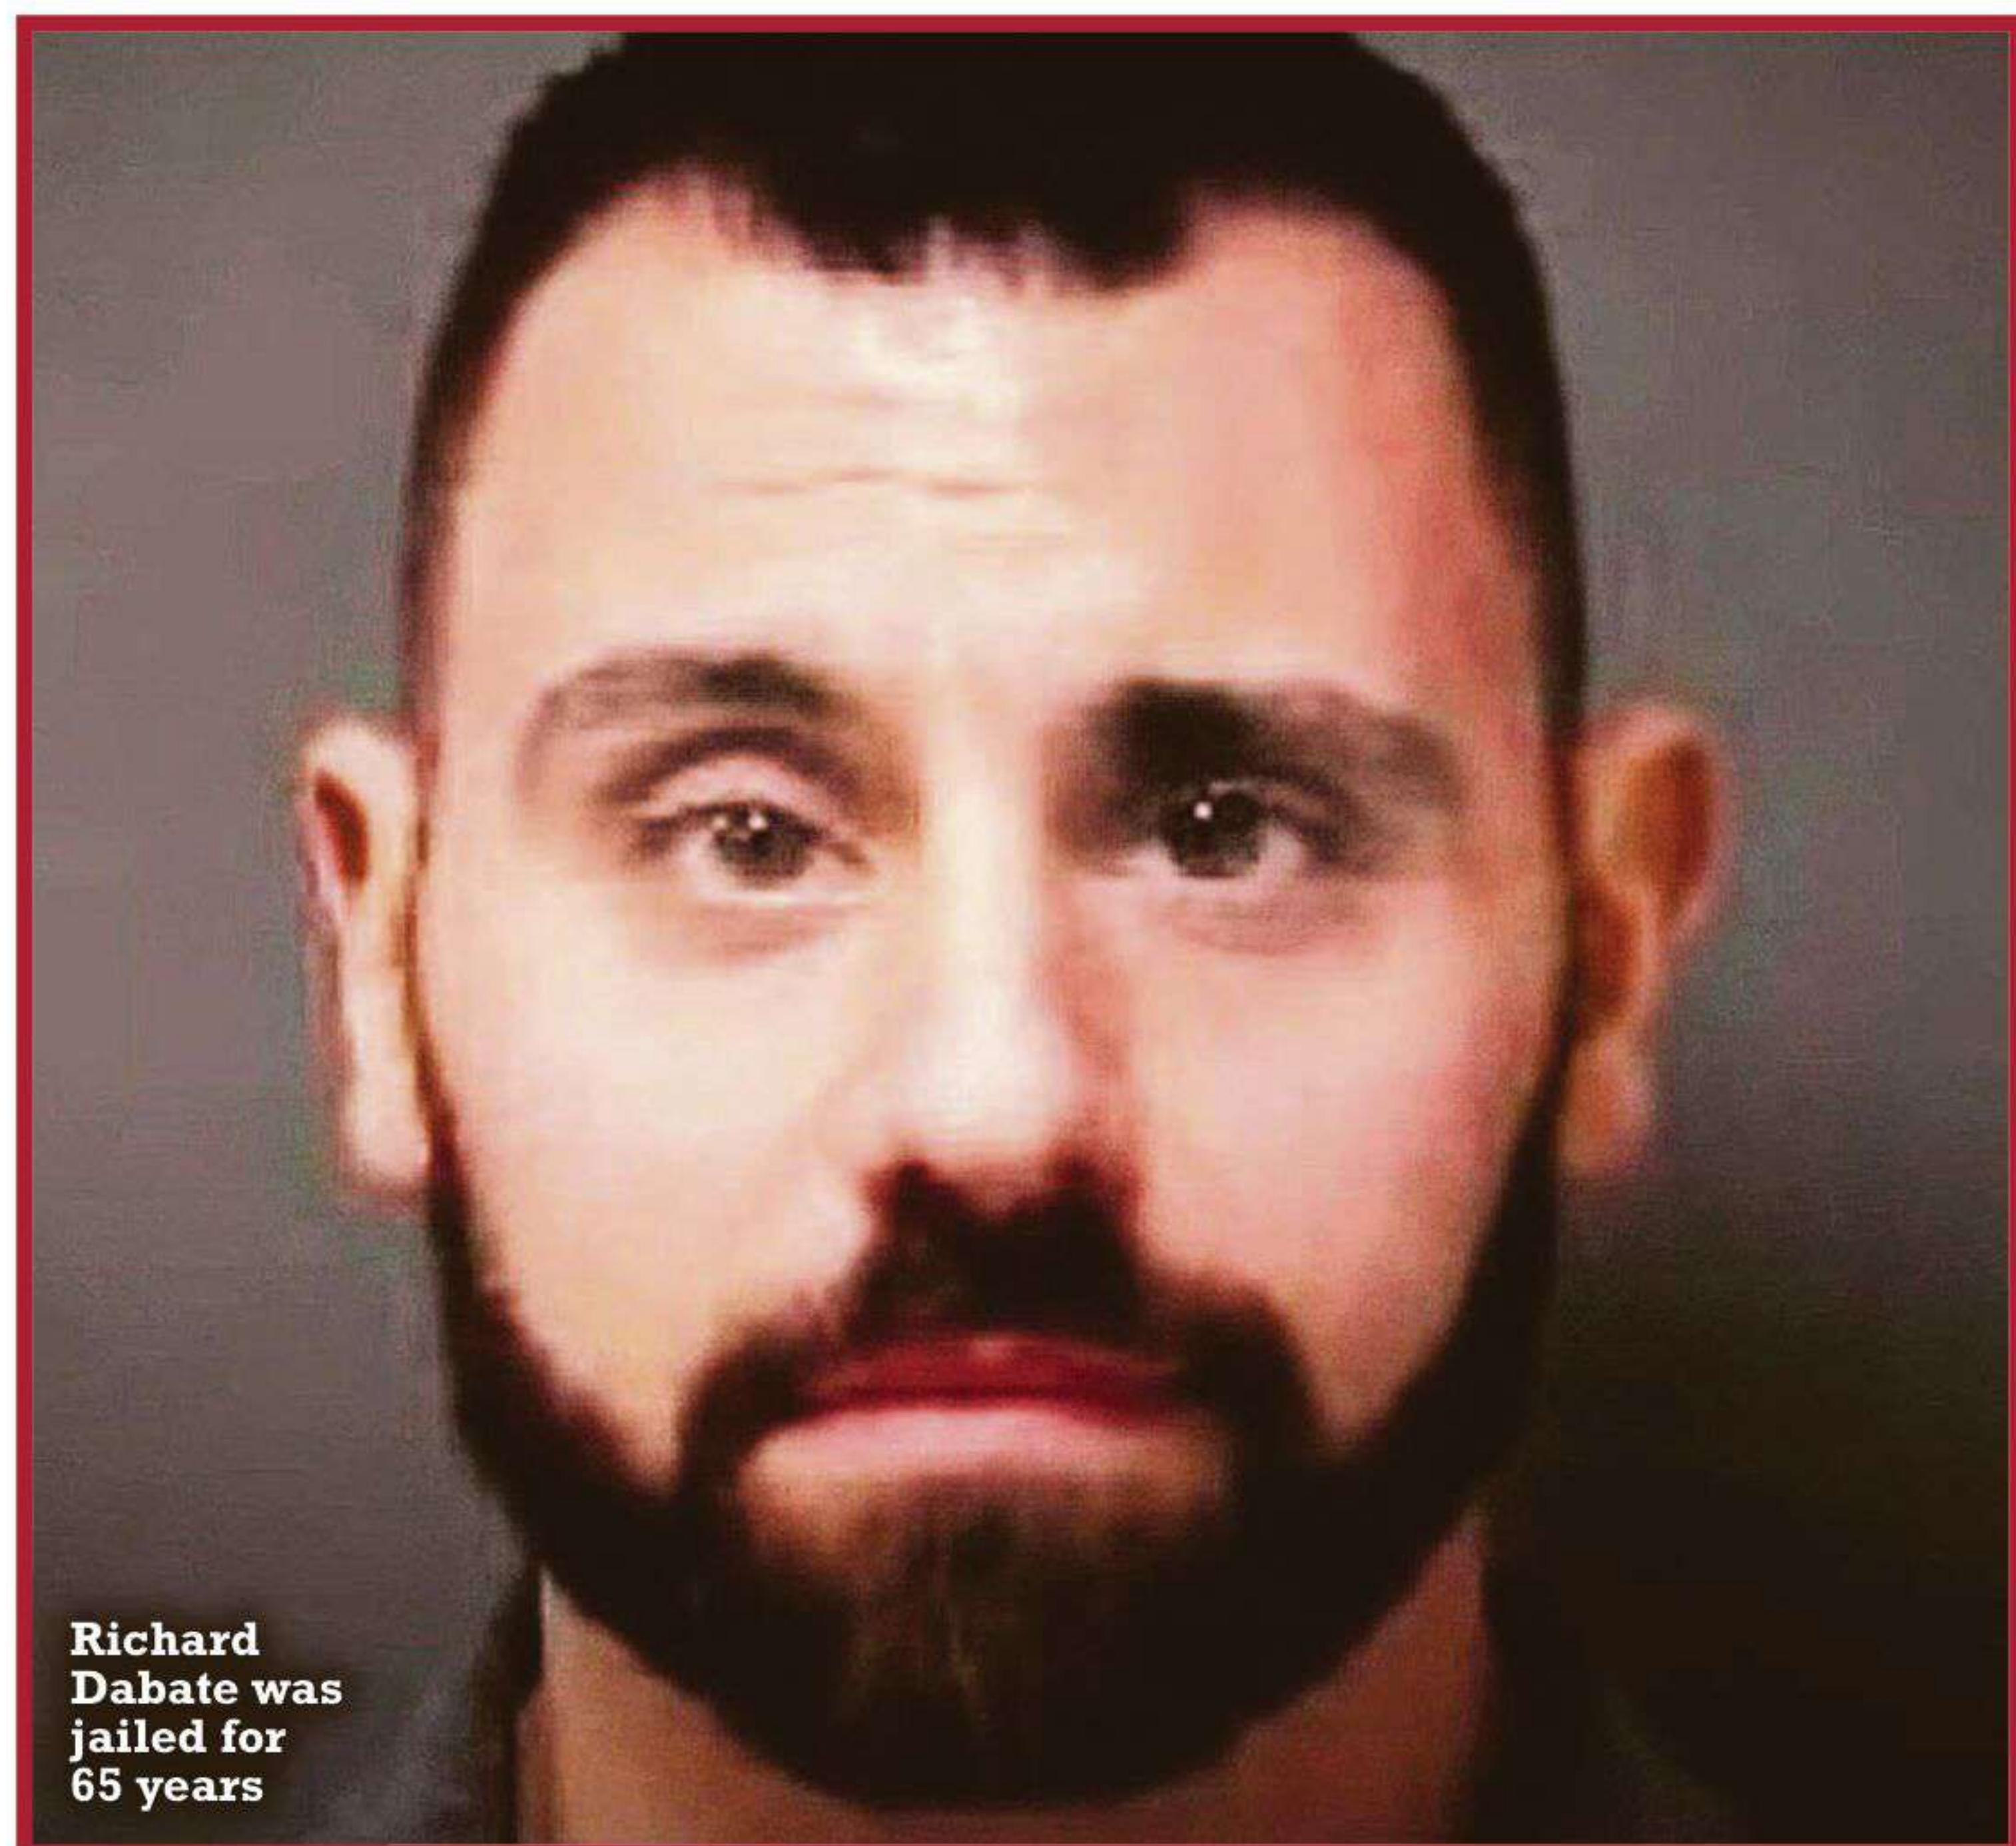

Dabate said the 6ft 2in masked man, who was wearing camouflage, sounded like actor Vin Diesel. He claimed the intruder threatened him with a knife and demanded the PINs for his bank cards. The man then zip-tied Dabate to the chair and slashed at him with a box-cutter knife to force him to reveal the numbers.

In the meantime, Connie returned home and Dabate said he called out a warning, but she was chased into the basement by the intruder, who shot her dead with one of her husband’s guns. Later, Dabate would tell her family he believed she had been running to the place he kept his guns.

Kind and “sunny” murder victim Connie Dabate

Richard Dabate was jailed for 65 years

As the intruder fled, Dabate managed to press the alarm’s panic button, calling 911. Concerned that an armed attacker was on the loose, a police dog was put on the intruder’s trail but failed to pick up the scent. However, it did follow Dabate to the ambulance, where he was being treated for “superficial” wounds.

Nothing had been stolen, Dabate’s wallet was untouched and there were no signs of a struggle. And evidence from his mobile phone showed he hadn’t headed to work that morning as he’d claimed. Police soon realised his story didn’t hold up and a full investigation was launched.

Over the following months, his lies started to unravel. Police discovered Dabate had been having an affair with a friend of many years. The woman was pregnant and, eight weeks after Connie’s murder, she gave birth to his baby.

LIES ABOUT HIS AFFAIR

When asked about his mistress, Dabate insisted that

Connie knew about the affair and that while it had caused some problems, they would work through them.

He also told investigators that Connie wasn’t able to have another baby, so they were planning on co-parenting the child together. Later, however, he admitted Connie hadn’t known about his other relationship.

On being questioned, his mistress said Dabate had told her he was getting a divorce and they would be together. He had texted her the day before Connie's death, saying, "I'll see you tomorrow my little love nugget."

The smiling husband who secretly plotted his wife's death

Most damning of all was the evidence Connie had on her wrist. At the time of her death, she had been wearing an exercise activity tracker – and it contradicted Dabate's version of events in what became known as the "Fitbit murder case".

He claimed Connie had been killed at about 9.05am – but she hadn't returned home until 9.18am. In fact, her Fitbit showed that she had been calmly walking about at 9.27am and her last movement was at 10.05am. How could she have been moving around soon after 10am if she had been shot dead by then?

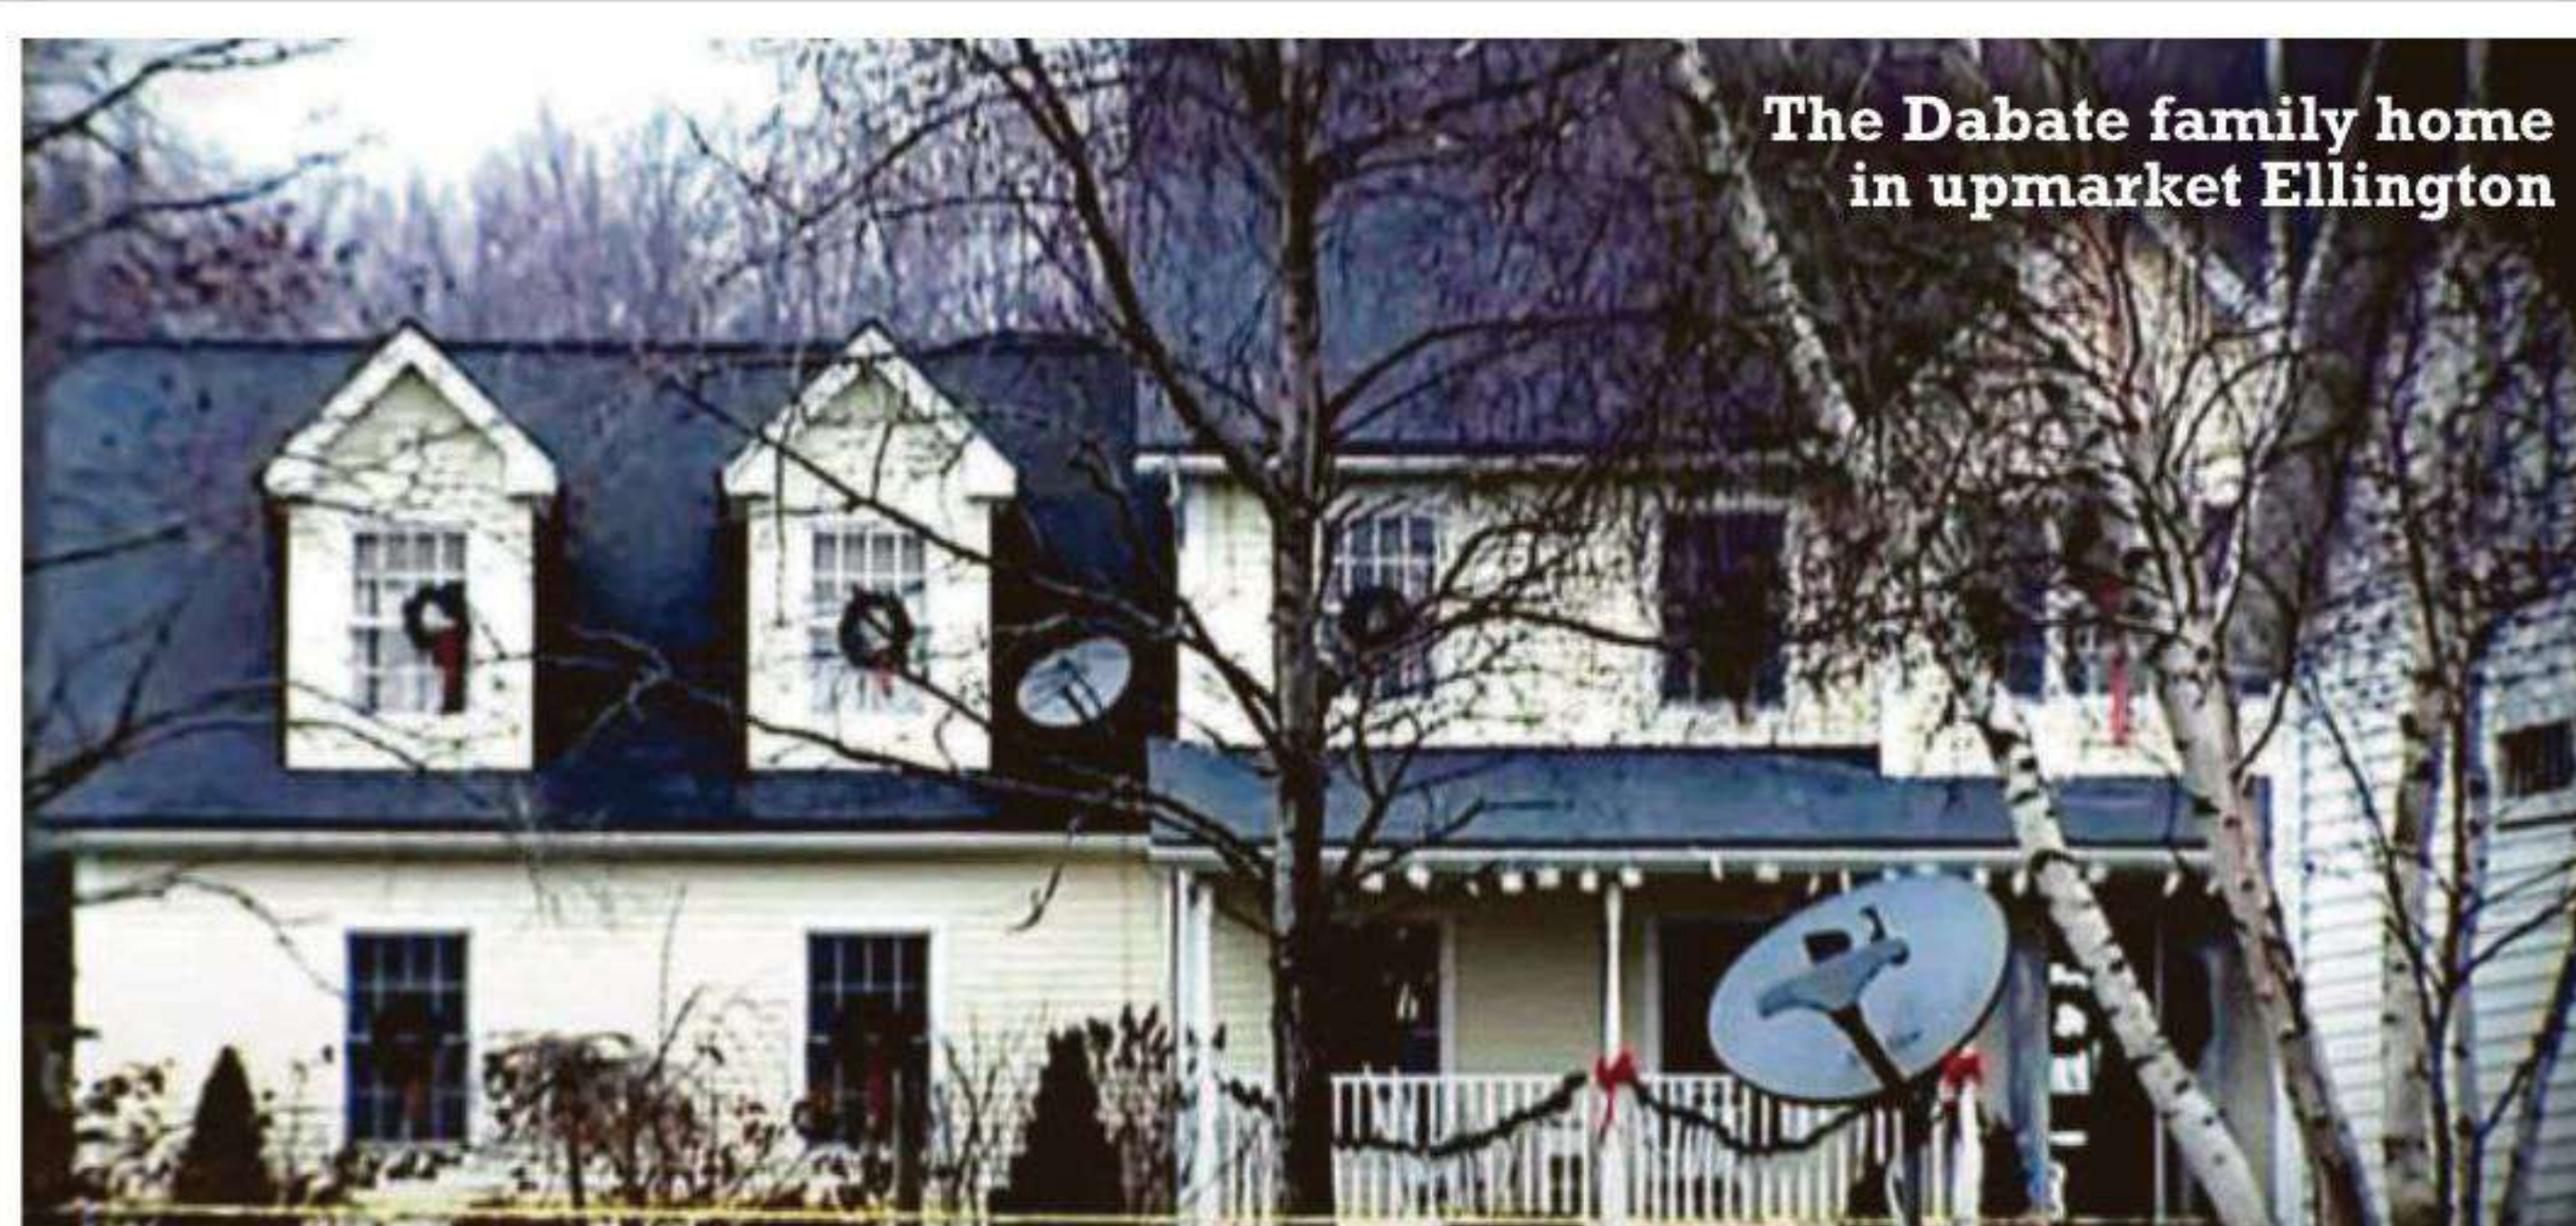

The Fitbit showed that Connie had walked more than 1,200ft after arriving home, but the total distance from her car to the basement was no more than 125ft. The distances – and the timeline – simply didn't add up.

It would take until April 2017 for Dabate to be arrested and charged with murder, tampering with evidence and making a false statement to police. He posted a $1 million bail and was able to live freely at home until his trial this year.

During the five-week hearing at Rockville Superior Court, the prosecution argued that Dabate had staged a home invasion because his life was about to unravel over his pregnant mistress. "It was a cold, methodical plan to avoid the consequences of his infidelity," they said.

There were no signs of a break-in and nothing had been stolen. The intruder had apparently tortured Dabate and killed Connie – then walked away with nothing.

The Dabate family home in upmarket Ellington

The prosecution also revealed that at the time Dabate claimed he was being attacked, he was actually browsing the internet at home, including looking up the time his wife would return from her spin class. He had emailed his work supervisor at 9.04am from the house computer, saying his house alarm had sounded and he'd gone back to check it.

While experts for the prosecution insisted the Fitbit evidence was enough to prove Connie's movements, the defence argued the technology wasn't 100% accurate and pointed to the fact that unidentified DNA had been found in the Dabate home.

A 'CALCULATED' KILLING

More than 100 witnesses and 600 pieces of evidence were presented during the trial and in May Dabate was found guilty of first-degree murder, tampering with evidence and providing a false statement. He was handcuffed and led into custody.

At his sentencing last month, the now-46-year-old maintained his innocence and insisted his wife had been killed by an unknown person. "I will never stop fighting for justice for my wife, Connie, who I think about every single day," said Dabate, who plans to appeal against his sentence of 65 years in prison without the chance of parole.

Her heartbroken family described Connie as generous and caring and said her death had left her sons traumatised. They also criticised Dabate for taking her money while he was on bail, leaving nothing for the boys.

Outside the court, her family said that while sentencing had given them closure, it wouldn't bring Connie back.

The judge described the killing as brutal and calculated and said that after listening to stories from her loved ones, she believed "the world is truly a lesser place without Connie in it".

And her Fitbit was evidence that the devoted mum was a dead woman walking.

Frozen Planet II

8.05pm, BBC One

The second edition, Frozen Ocean, dives into a world of water and ice to reveal the animals that survive on and under the Arctic sea ice. It begins in the depths of winter, a time of plenty for polar bears who can afford to play during the short days.

A pod of beluga whales has been confined to an ice hole for five months, risking starvation as the food around them runs out.

In spring, the sun melts the sea ice and allows their escape. And off the east coast of Greenland, the floating pack ice becomes a nursery ground for harp seals.

Plankton blooms feed millions of tiny skeleton shrimps and ancient bowhead whales during summer in the Arctic Ocean. And finally, we see how a loss of sea ice is having a profound impact on these creatures.

Stolen: Catching the Art Thieves

8.05pm, BBC Two

During Christmas 2000, three paintings with a combined value of more than £40 million – Renoir's Conversation and Jeune Parisienne and a 1630 Rembrandt self-portrait – were stolen at gunpoint from Stockholm's National Museum. This documentary looks at the police's pursuit of the thieves, who made their escape by boat.

Celebrity SAS: Who Dares Wins

9.05pm, Channel 4

In teams led by the fiercely competitive brothers Curtis and AJ Pritchard, the celebs take on the gruelling task of moving a broken-down one-tonne Jeep to a safety zone in searing heat and through thick sand. Former sprinter Dwain Chambers is eager to impress the DS as the recruits are tasked with balancing on ropes 160ft up to cross a ravine.

Deep Impact

2.05pm, Channel 4

Unlike most disaster movies, Mimi Leder's sci-fi drama benefits from showing the human side of an impending catastrophe, rather than just the CGI devastation. Téa Leoni plays a reporter who believes that she has discovered a sex scandal in the US government. As it turns out, "Ele" isn't a mistress, but a term used to describe an event that could destroy the planet.

BATTLESHIPS

Find where the fleet of ships shown is hidden in the grid. The numbers to the right of and below the grid indicate how many of the squares in that row are filled in with ships or parts of ships. The ships do not touch each other, even diagonally. Some squares have been filled in to start you off.

CELEB WORDMATCH

Find a word that can follow the word on the left and precede the word on the right. When you have filled in all the answers, the name of a celebrity can be read from top to bottom in one of the lines.

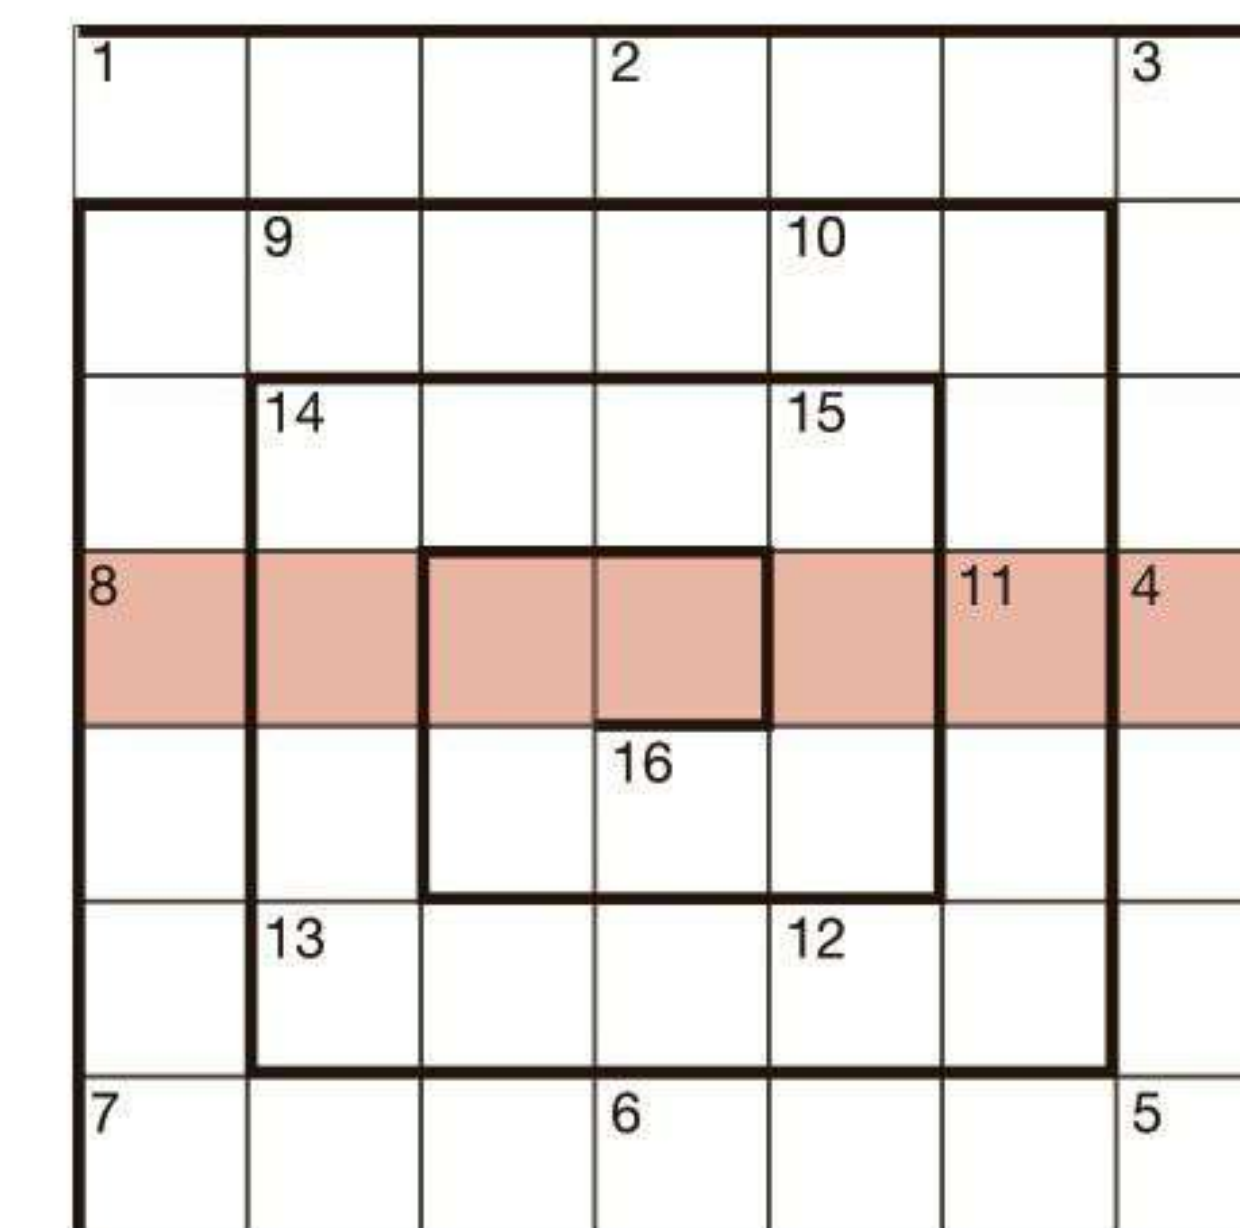

HOLY						STACK
POINT						CHEQUE
BLUE						NECK
GOD						FIGURE
STEAM						ROOM
RED						BAG
BABY						CAP
CREAM						CAKE
WIND						VISION
WILD						INSTINCT
SPRING						RING
BROWN						LOAF

WORD SPIRAL

Starting from 1, fill in the grid in a clockwise direction with four-letter words. The last letter of each word becomes the first letter of the next to reveal the seven-letter keyword in the shaded boxes.

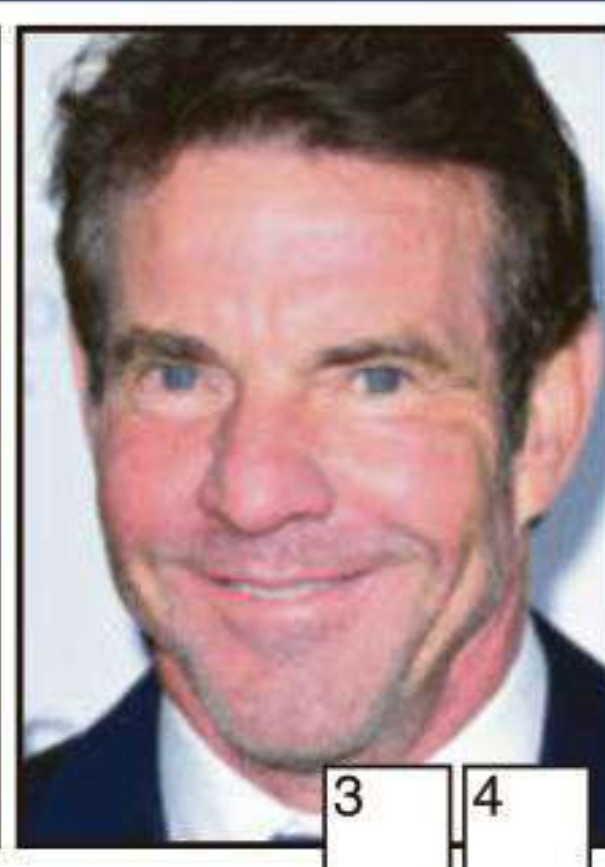

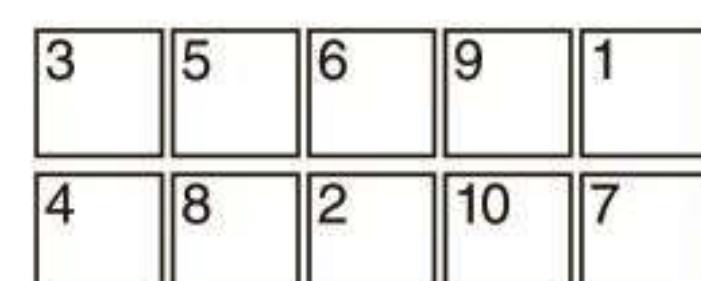

1. Ado
2. Lather
3. A few
4. Nobleman
5. Cooking fat
6. Action
7. Record
8. Crustacean
9. Rear
10. Monarch
11. Young female
12. Jump
13. Rugby forward
14. Fruit
15. Planet
16. Badger's burrow

Keyword clue: A type of building

Welcome to our Wordsearch with a difference. Not only are there 16 lost names hidden in the grid, written forwards, backwards, up, down or diagonally, but if you find them and cross them out, the letters that remain will spell out a further related name. As usual, we're not going to tell you what the lost names are, but they do all have a strong connection. The hidden name needs a bow but it isn't an arrow – and that's a clue!

ANSWERS: The lost names are BASSON, CELESTA, CHIMES, CLARINET, FLUTE, OBOE, ORGAN, PIANO, SAXOPHONE, SNARE DRUM, TAMBOURINE, TRIANGLE, TRUMPET, TUBA, VIOLA, XYLOPHONE, all instruments of the orchestra. The hidden name is CELLO.

WORDWHEEL

Using only the letters in the wordwheel, take 10 minutes to find as many words as possible, none of which may be plurals, foreign words or proper nouns. Each word must contain the central letter and at least three others. Letters can only be used once in every word. There is at least one nine-letter word in the wheel.

Police: Suspect No 1

9pm, Channel 5

With full access to CID and the suspects themselves, this series follows detectives as they investigate serious cases from the very start of an investigation to the moment when they confront their suspects. Can they find, catch and charge their No1 suspect?

In a terrifying case of home invasion by three hooded men wielding a baseball bat, a family is subjected to a violent ordeal, late at night, in their own home in a suburban street. The family members are abused and violently assaulted, with the men demanding one thing – “where are the drugs?”.

Rushing to the scene, officers discover that the family have no idea why they were attacked. Searching for their suspects, CID Detective Simon Hawkins and the team work day and night to track down the offenders.

Mastermind

7.30pm, BBC Two

As TV's toughest quiz is celebrating its 50th year, host Clive Myrie is back to present the first heat of a new series. Tonight's specialist subjects are typically eclectic – the life of Spanish painter Francisco de Goya, period drama series Peaky Blinders, Team GB at the 2020 Olympics, and Raymond Chandler's Philip Marlowe novels.

Jamie's One-Pan Wonders

8.30pm, Channel 4

If you're looking for a bit of post-weekend meal inspiration, Jamie Oliver has more recipes from his new cookbook. First, he whips up super-speedy smashed lemongrass chicken, before demonstrating how to make sweet potato chilli with homemade nachos. For dessert, it's a chocolate tray cake with tinned mandarin and buttercream filling.

Iolo: A Wild Life

7.30pm, BBC Two

Ornithologist and nature observer Iolo Williams delves into the archives to look back at the fantastic wildlife that he's filmed in his native Wales during the past 25 years.

It all began for Iolo in 1996 when he was still working as a warden for the RSPB. He was filmed for the series Visions of Snowdonia, walking on a remote moor looking for the nest of his favourite bird, the hen harrier. Since then, he has made many series for BBC Wales. In the first episode, he recalls discovering delightful barn owl chicks in a Trawsfynydd barn, great crested newts in a housing estate pond in Johnstown, Wrexham and dormice in a Gwent woodland. He also comes across a stoat on the Great Orme in Llandudno, and arctic alpine plants and relic fish from the ice age in Snowdonia.

First Dates Hotel

9.30pm, Channel 4

Private chef Georgia's ideal man would be someone filled with confidence and ambition, who's also a food and wine lover. Can Nick wow Georgia with his knowledge of the local produce? Meanwhile, grandmother Debbie is seeking her knight in shining armour. Is stationery sales manager Rob the hero she has been looking for?

Rosie Jones' Trip Hazard

10.35pm, Channel 4

Rosie takes Cold Feet actress Fay Ripley to Pembrokeshire for a spot of coasteering – basically climbing up cliffs, launching yourself off them and swimming in the freezing sea. As well as that, they face Fay's childhood fear of horse riding, spend the night in a decommissioned plane, feed crocodiles and hunt the ghost of a 400-year-old ape in a haunted castle.

FILM CHOICE

Once Upon a Time in Hollywood

9pm, Film4
Quentin Tarantino's acclaimed drama is set in Tinseltown in 1969, where fading western star Rick Dalton (Leonardo DiCaprio) is considering his future. Meanwhile, his new neighbour, actress Sharon Tate (Margot Robbie), is on the cusp of stardom. When Rick's stunt double Cliff Booth (Brad Pitt), stumbles across a gang of hippies led by Charles Manson, their paths collide.

Nadiya's Everyday Baking

8.30pm, BBC Two

Despite its title, this cookery series is about more than just traditional baking. In fact, if you're looking to make food in an oven, then Nadiya Hussain has loads of useful tips to help overcome the midweek meal lull.

Tonight, she demonstrates her go-to roasts for any day of the week, beginning with a roast chicken packed with kimchi under a crispy skin, nestled on a bed of buttery miso leeks, served with honey and soy-infused sushi rice. Then, she creates a vegetarian curry, made with caramelised onions roasted in a tomato and tamarind curry sauce, before putting a new spin on roast lamb, cooking it in a pineapple and coriander marinade.

To finish, she roasts a whole sea bass in a chickpea and citrus crust, served with a refreshing carrot and courgette salad.

Escape from Kabul Airport

9pm, BBC Two

This documentary examines the largest airlift in modern American history, when the US withdrew its troops from Afghanistan in August 2021. Combining archival footage alongside interviews with eyewitnesses, it shows how local civilians struggled to reach Kabul airport, which was their last hope of leaving the country before the Taliban took control.

Doc Martin

9pm, ITV

We're going to miss Martin Clunes' grumpy GP when he hangs up his stethoscope in a month or so's time. But before that, he has plenty of drama to deal with, including this week when he attends Stewart's survival course. Meanwhile, the Ellinghams get a new dog, Morwenna is back as receptionist and Louisa agrees to help Pippa by speaking at the school.

FILM CHOICE

Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade

9pm, Film4

Harrison Ford and co should have probably called it a day when the original trilogy triumphantly concluded with this adventure 23 years ago. With a fifth film currently in production, here is another chance to see Indy team up with his archaeologist father Henry Jones (Sean Connery) to take on the Nazis and secure ancient religious artefact the Holy Grail.

My Grandparents' War: Keira Knightley

9pm, Channel 4

The Pirates Of The Caribbean actress unearths a deeply moving story concerning her grandparents Mac and Jan MacDonald. Mac was a sonar operator with the Royal Navy and Keira learns how he was a crew member on board HMS Wolverine, rescuing hundreds of Irish Guards from a sinking ship. As well as meeting a man whose existence is linked to her grandfather, she reveals how millions of women, including Jan, volunteered to bolster Britain's war effort. In Scotland, retracing her grandmother's footsteps, Keira discovers Jan worked in a military hospital and then played a vital – and secret – role assisting the US Army during the D-Day landings. As well as all that, there is also an epic story of escape from a prisoner of war camp.

Saving Lives At Sea

8pm, BBC Two
In Eastbourne, new recruit Chris is put to the test when two people become cut off by the tide near Beachy Head. Meanwhile, off the coast of south Wales, crew-member Tom faces his first challenge when a paddle-boarder finds herself in trouble. Finally, in Fistral in Cornwall, lifeguard Kai must rescue a surfer who is in danger of hitting the rocks.

The Great British Bake Off: An Extra Slice

8pm, Channel 4
On Tuesday we saw the bakers tackle Biscuit Week, with a fair few of them crumbling under the pressure. Jo Brand is joined by celebrity guests to discuss what went on in the tent and if the judges made the right decision on who to eliminate. As usual, Tom Allen is also in the studio to assess more viewers' home bakes – both good and bad.

FILM CHOICE

Ad Astra
9pm, Film4
Containing "the most realistic depiction of space ever", according to director James Gray, this sci-fi drama stars Brad Pitt as Major Roy McBride, an astronaut who is sent into space to investigate wrinkles far beyond the solar system. But are the events connected to his father (Tommy Lee Jones) who went missing during a voyage to Neptune years before?

Ghosts

8.30pm, BBC One

We're back at Button House for another chapter of the supernatural comedy. It's an exciting time for Mike and Alison as they prepare to welcome the first guests to their new bijoux B&B. The pair are determined to get a glowing review, whatever the cost, but will their interfering housemates play ball? While the current owners are upbeat, Mary is feeling down and reveals she has never had a holiday. Step forward Pat to teach her the joys and pitfalls of a week on the Costa Del Sol. Meanwhile, the Plaguers have taken to idolising Thomas, since spotting Alison's fetching portrait of him in the basement. Thomas assumes their obsession stems from a love of his poetry, which annoys the Captain who, as usual, wants everything in military order, and challenges them to a recital.

Professor T

9pm, ITV Although we all enjoy seeing Jasper helping the police solve crimes, the best scenes in this drama are between star Ben Miller and Frances de la Tour who plays his mother Adelaide. Here's hoping for plenty more of that this season. Tonight, a barrister and his wife are found shot in a crime that has parallels to a case that he prosecuted.

Gogglebox

10pm, Channel 4 The nights are drawing in, so be thankful that Friday night telly comfort blanket Gogglebox is on our screens – albeit in a later slot than usual due to tonight's football. The armchair critics, including old favourites Dave and Shirley, will be sharing their views on the week's best shows, whether it's reality TV, soaps, documentaries, nature films or a classic movie.

FILM CHOICE

Oblivion

9pm, 5STAR Like many other sci-fi tales, this thriller from Tron Legacy director Joseph Kosinski is set in a world where humans are struggling for survival in a world controlled by technology. In the year 2077, drone repairman Jack Harper (Tom Cruise) is counting down the time before his mission is due to end when he rescues a stranger (Olga Kurylenko) from a downed spacecraft.

Picks of the day

Saturday 24

Strictly Come Dancing

6.45pm, BBC One

The belated launch show only aired last night but at least that should mean we're all revved up and raring to go, eager to see how the new batch of celebrities and their partners get on as they compete for the first time.

Claudia Winkleman and Tess Daly take charge of the proceedings again, while Dave Arch, his orchestra and a quartet of singers provide the accompaniment. But who will catch the eye of judges Craig Revel Horwood, Motsi Mabuse, Anton Du Beke and Shirley Ballas, as well as those watching at home?

Helen Skelton was an early favourite, with Fleur East, Will Mellor and Matt Goss also fancied to do well. Do any of them have what it takes to win the 20th series of the much-loved show? Or will somebody else surprise us all by being a funky mover?

The Masked Dancer

6.30pm, ITV

The competition clashes with tonight's episode of Strictly, which leaves dance fans with a dilemma – should they tune into this show, or opt for its glamorous rival? And, perhaps more importantly, can Oti Mabuse, one of the judges on ITV's series, beat her big sister Motsi, who's on Strictly's panel, in the ratings? Let the battle commence!

The Voice UK

8pm, ITV

Emma Willis takes charge of another edition of the hit talent show. The blind auditions are still taking place and that's no bad thing – the series always loses a little of its drama and suspense once those have come to an end. As ever, mentors will.i.am, Anne-Marie, Tom Jones and Olly Murs hope their ears are in fine fettle as they listen out for potential superstars.

FILM CHOICE

The Day After Tomorrow

5.55pm, Channel 4

When it comes to spectacular, CGI-laden blockbusters, few directors do them better than Roland Emmerich, who made Independence Day. He was also behind this disaster thriller, which focuses on what happens when a series of freak weather events threaten to push the planet into another ice age. Dennis Quaid, Jake Gyllenhaal, Ian Holm and Emmy Rossum head the cast.

ENJOY DELICIOUS CRAFT BEER THIS SEPTEMBER

Introducing the delicious Hopsmore September craft beer box

As it's now September, we're all stocking up on woolly jumpers, thick scarves, and of course, some tasty craft beers to see us through the colder months.

If you haven't heard of Hopsmore, it's a craft beer club that is on a mission to deliver the best craft beer around straight to Brit's doors.

If you're a first-time subscriber, you can get a box of eight delicious craft beers straight to your door this month for just £8. Just subscribe at hopsmore.co.uk and use the code 8FIRSTBOX to grab the deal.

That's right, just £8, and the delivery is free.

So, if you never did conquer that summer six-pack you were aiming for, you can certainly conquer this eight-pack!

Why should I join the Hopsmore craft beer club?

Joining the Hopsmore craft beer club is a bit like taking the very first bite of a hearty roast after a long walk in the crisp, fresh September air.

Every month you'll receive a selection of craft beers from hand-picked breweries, a snack and a magazine full of fun and interesting articles (this month's issue includes tips for visiting Oktoberfest).

It's all a bit of a craft journey, and it gives you something to look forward to every month!

It's also perfect for the colder autumn days when you'd like to take refuge indoors with a tasty brew and your favourite TV series.

So, don't miss out. Make the most of your September. Take outdoor walks, eat hearty roasts and enjoy delicious craft beer from Hopsmore.

WHEN YOUR BEER BOX WILL COME IN HANDY

OUR BRILLIANT BEER BOX WILL BE IDEAL THIS SEPTEMBER - HERE'S WHY:

- 1 After a long day at work when a can of beer and an episode of your favourite TV show calls.
- 2 If you're off to a BYOB restaurant or a party, having these beers to hand means that there's no need to do a detour to the corner shop for some pricier options.
- 3 If you're off on a September weekend away, these are perfect to have for when you arrive. Just 'hop' out a couple and chill in your new surroundings.
- 4 When you've got mates round, and you'd all like to drink great beer with them while watching a footy match on the telly.

Fun facts about beer in September

September is a great time to enjoy quality craft beer. So, we've gathered together some fun, random facts all about beer and September. Get 'crafty', drop them into convos with your mates and impress them all.

Although Oktoberfest sounds like it would be held in Oktober, it actually starts on 17 September.

On September 10, 1976, the British rock band Queen celebrated winning the golden disk for three albums with a beer while in London's National Opera House.

Long-distance runner Shalane Flanagan of the US celebrated coming third in the Berlin Marathon on September 28, 2014, by drinking a giant glass of beer.

It's known as being the home of tennis, but Wimbledon also hosts an annual beer festival in September.

BIRD FEEDING STATION WITH FOUR FEEDERS

They will appreciate the food on offer and the safe haven that the hanging bird feeders afford.

Treat your local birds to a tasty and varied feast by hanging the 4 feeders that are supplied with the bird feeding station – there are 2 seed, 1 nut and 1 fat ball feeder – from the curved metal hanging frame and side rail of this traditional-design feeding station. A water dish and a mesh food tray are also included, so you really can put out a wide array of tasty treats for your lucky garden birds!

Putting your bird feeding station together is really easy; simply slot the poles together, attach the side rail and, using the sturdy ground spike, secure the bird feeder into the ground.

Height 226cm
